NOW, THEREFORE, I, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, President of the United States of America, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the foregoing provision of section 8 of the Joint Resolution approved August 31, 1935, as amended by the Joint Resolution approved May 1, 1937, do by this proclamation find that special restrictions placed on the use of the ports and territorial waters of the United States, exclusive of the Canal Zone, by the submarines of a foreign belligerent state, both commercial submarines and submarines which are ships of war, will serve to maintain peace between the United States and foreign states, to protect the commercial interests of the United States and its citizens, and to promote the security of the United States;

Such submarines may depart from ports or territorial waters of the United States only while running on the surface with conning tower and superstructure above water and flying the flags of the foreign belligerent states of which they are vessels.

Parity payments will be made to producers of wheat, cotton, corn (in the commercial corn-producing area), rice, and tobacco, in accordance with the provisions of these regulations and such modifications thereof as may hereafter be made.

§ 741.101 Eligibility for payment. In order to be eligible for a payment with respect to a commodity a person must have an interest as a landlord, tenant, or sharecropper in a farm (1) for which an acreage allotment has been established for the commodity under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program; (2) on which the acreage planted to such commodity for harvest in 1940 is not in excess of such acreage allotment; (3) which is being operated in 1940; and (4) on which the county committee finds that the sum of the acreages of corn, cotton, rice, tobacco, and wheat does not exceed the sum of the allotments or permitted acreages for such crops under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program. Application may be made prior to determination of performance under (4) above, in which case the person shall agree to refund the payment made if full performance is not rendered.

§ 741.102 Measure of payment. The payment for a farm with respect to any commodity shall be measured by the product of the normal yield per acre and of the acreage allotment established for that commodity for such farm under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program.

§ 741.103 Rate of payment. The rate of payment with respect to any commodity shall be determined, within the limits of available funds, in accordance with the provisions of Section 303 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 and the item "Parity payments" in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1940. The rate of payment with respect to a commodity shall not exceed the amount by which the 1939 average farm price of the commodity is less than 75 per centum of the parity price.

§ 741.104 Division of payment. The payment for a farm with respect to any commodity shall be divided among the landlords, tenants, and sharecroppers in the same proportion (as indicated by their acreage shares expressed in terms of either planted acreages or percentages) that such persons are determined by the county committee to be entitled, as of the time of harvest, to share in the proceeds (other than a fixed commodity payment) of such commodity planted on the farm for harvest in 1940. Such determination shall be made at the time the county committee approves the application for payment: Provided, That if any such commodity is not planted for harvest on the farm in 1940 or the acreage of such commodity is substantially reduced by flood, hail, drought, or insects, payment with respect to such commodity shall be divided among the landlords, tenants, and sharecroppers in the proportion that the county committee determines such persons would have been entitled to share in the proceeds of such commodity if the entire acreage in the acreage allotment for such commodity had been planted and harvested in 1940; Provided further, That in cases where two or more separately owned tracts of land comprise a farm, in any area designated by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration as an area in which a substantial proportion of the farms comprise two or more separately owned tracts of land, upon the written agreement of all persons who are entitled to receive a share of the proceeds of any such commodity the share of each such person in the payment with respect to such commodity on the farm shall be that share which fairly reflects the contribution of each such person to performance with respect to such commodity and also results substantially in a division of such payment among landlords, tenants, and sharecroppers as classes as each such class shares in the commodity or proceeds thereof with respect to which the payment is being made: Provided, further, That if for any reason the total acreage of cotton on the farm in 1940 is less than 80 percent of the cotton acreage allotment established for the farm and the acreage of cotton which is or would have been planted for harvest on the farm in 1940 by any tenant or sharecropper is not substantially proportionate to the acreage of cotton which such tenant or sharecropper would normally plant thereon, and all the persons who are or would have been entitled to receive a share of the proceeds of cotton agree, as shown by their signatures on the application for payment or a separate statement, the payment computed for cotton for the farm shall be divided among the landlords, tenants, and sharecroppers in the proportion that the county committee determines such persons would have been entitled to share in the proceeds of the cotton crop if the entire acreage in the cotton acreage allotment had been planted and harvested in 1940, but in no event shall the acreage share so determined for any person be less than such person's acreage share of the acreage planted to cotton on the farm in 1940.

§ 741.105 General provisions relating to payments—(a) Payments restricted to effectuation of purposes of the program. All or any part of any payment which would otherwise be made to any person under these regulations may be withheld or required to be refunded if the county committee finds that (1) he has overplanted or caused the overplanting of the acreage allotment which was or could have been established for a separately-owned tract of land included in a combination farm and refuses to cooperate with other producers having an interest in the farm in making equitable adjustments with respect thereto, or (2) he has adopted any practices which the Secretary determines tend to defeat any of the purposes for which parity payments are made.

(b) Overplanting on other farms. All or any part of any payment which would otherwise be made to any person under those regulations may be withheld or required to be refunded (1) if such person's share of the 1940 acreage of corn, cotton, rice, tobacco, or wheat on other farms in the county exceeds his share of the acreage allotments or permitted acreages under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program on such farms and the county committee determines, in accordance with instructions issued by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that such overplanting substantially offsets the performance on the farm with respect to which payment might otherwise be made, or (2) if the State committee finds that the person's share of the 1940 acreage of corn, cotton, rice, tobacco, or wheat on any other farms in which the person has an interest exceeds such person's share of the allotment or permitted acreage under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program on such farms to such an extent as to offset substantially the performance on the farm with respect to which payment might otherwise be made.

(c) Payments made without regard to claims. Any payment or share of payment shall be made without regard to questions of title under State law, without deduction of assignments or claims for advances (except indebtedness to the United States subject to setoff under orders issued by the Secretary), and without regard to any claim or lien against any crop, or proceeds thereof, in favor of the owner or any other creditor.

(d) Changes in leasing and cropping agreements, reduction in number of tenants, and other devices. If on any farm in 1940 any change of the arrangements which existed on the farm in 1939 is made between the landlord or operator and the tenants or sharecroppers and such change would cause the landlord or operator to receive a greater proportion of the payments than they would otherwise receive, payments to the landlord or operator shall not be greater than the amount they would have received if the arrangements which existed on the farm in 1939 had been continued in 1940, if the county committee certifies that the change is not justified and disapproves such change.

If on any farm the number of sharecroppers or share tenants in 1940 is less than the average number on the farm during the three years 1937 to 1939 and such reduction would increase the payments that would otherwise be made to the landlord or operator, such payments shall not be greater than the amount that would otherwise be made, if the county committee certifies that the reduction is not justified and disapproves such reduction.

If the State committee finds that any person who files an application for payment has employed any other scheme or device (including coercion, fraud, or misrepresentation), the effect of which would be or has been to deprive any other person of any payment under these regulations to which such person would normally be entitled, the Secretary may withhold, in whole or in part, from the person participating in or employing such a scheme or device, or require such person to refund, in whole or in part, the amount of any payment which has been or would otherwise be made to such person in connection with the program.

§ 741.106 Deduction for association expenses. No part of the parity payment computed for any farm shall be deducted for county association expenses incurred or to be incurred in connection with 1940 parity payments.

§ 741.107 Application for payment. Payment will be made only upon application submitted through the county office on or before a date fixed by the Regional Director, but not later than December 31, 1940. The Secretary reserves the right (1) to withhold payment from any person who fails to file any form or furnish any information required with respect to any farm, (2) to refuse to accept any application for payment if any form or information required is not submitted to the county office within the time fixed by the Regional Director. At least two weeks notice to the public shall be given of the expiration of a time limit for filing prescribed forms, and any time limit fixed shall be such as affords a full and fair opportunity to those eligible to file the form within the period prescribed. Such notice shall be given by mailing the same to the office of each county committee and making copies of the same available to the press.

§ 741.108 Death, disappearance, or incompetency—(a) Death. Where any person who is otherwise eligible to receive a payment dies before the payment is received, payment will be made upon proper application therefor, without regard to claims of creditors other than the United States in accordance with the following order of precedence:

(1) To the administrator or executor of the deceased person's estate;

*Sections 741.101 to 741.113 are issued under the authority contained in item entitled "parity payments" 53 Stat. 974; 52 Stat. 45.

†The source of Sections 741.101 to 741.113 is P-1940, AAA, October 18, 1939.

(2) If there is no administrator or executor and none is expected to be appointed, to the surviving spouse;

(3) If there is no surviving spouse, to the sons and daughters in equal shares. Children of a deceased son or daughter of a deceased person shall be entitled to their parent's share of the payment, share and share alike. If there are no surviving direct descendants of a deceased son or daughter of such deceased person, the share of the payment which otherwise would have been made to such son or daughter shall be divided equally among the sons and daughters of such deceased person who are alive or who have surviving children;

(4) If there is no surviving spouse and no direct descendant, payment shall be made to the father and mother of the deceased person in equal shares, or the whole thereof to the surviving father or mother;

(5) If there is no surviving spouse, no direct descendant, and no surviving parent, payment shall be made to the brothers and sisters of the deceased person in equal shares. Children of a deceased brother or sister shall be entitled to their parent's share of the payment, share and share alike. If there are no surviving direct descendants of the deceased brother or sister of such deceased person, the share of the payment which otherwise would have been made to such brother or sister shall be divided equally among the brothers and sisters of such deceased person who are alive or who have surviving children;

(6) If there is no surviving spouse, direct descendant, parent, or brothers or sisters of their descendants, the payment shall be made to the heirs-at-law.

Legally adopted children shall be entitled to share in any payment in the same manner and to the same extent as other children. If any person who is entitled to payment under the above order of precedence is a minor, payment of his share shall be made to his legal guardian, but if no legal guardian has been appointed payment shall be made to his natural guardian or custodian for his benefit, unless the minor's share of the payment exceeds $500, in which event payment shall be made only to his legal guardian. Any payment which the deceased person could have received may be made jointly to the persons found to be entitled to such payment or shares thereof under this subsection, or, pursuant to instructions issued by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, a separate check may be issued to each person entitled to share in such payment.

(b) Disappearance. In case any person entitled to payment hereunder disappears after making application but before receiving the payment, such payment will be made without regard to claims of creditors other than the United States to one of the following in the order mentioned:

(1) The conservator or liquidator of his estate, if one be duly appointed,

(2) The spouse,

(3) An adult son or daughter or grandchild for the benefit of his estate.

(4) The mother or father for the benefit of his estate.

(5) An adult brother or sister for the benefit of his estate.

A person shall be deemed to have disappeared if (1) he has been missing for a period of more than three months, (2) a diligent search has failed to reveal his whereabouts, and (3) such person has not communicated during such period with other persons who would be expected to have heard from him. Proof of such disappearance must be presented to the county committee in the form of an affidavit executed by the person making the application for payment, setting forth the above facts, and must be substantiated by an affidavit from a disinterested person who was well acquainted with the person who has disappeared.

(c) Incompetency. Where any person who is otherwise eligible to receive a payment is adjudged incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction before the payment is received, payment will be made, upon proper application therefor, without regard to claims of creditors other than the United States to the guardian or committee legally appointed for such incompetent person. In case no guardian or committee has been appointed, payment, if not more than $500, may be made without regard to claims of creditors other than the United States to one of the following in the order mentioned for the benefit of the incompetent person:

(1) The spouse.

(2) An adult son, daughter, or grandchild.

(3) The mother or father.

(4) An adult brother or sister.

(5) Such person as may be authorized under State law to receive payment for him (see standard procedure prescribed for the respective region).

In case payment is more than $500, payment may be made only to such person as may be authorized under state law to receive payment for the incompetent producer.

§ 741.109 Appeals. Any person may, within 15 days after notice thereof is forwarded to or made available to him, request the county committee in writing to reconsider its recommendation or determination in any of the following matters respecting any farm in the operation of which he has an interest as landlord, tenant, or sharecropper (a) eligibility to file an application for payment; (b) the division of payment; or (c) any other matter affecting the right to or the amount of his payment with respect to the farm. The county committee shall notify such person of its decision in writing within 15 days after receipt of such written request for reconsideration. If such person is dissatisfied with the decision of the county committee he may, within 15 days after such decision is forwarded to or made available to him, appeal in writing to the State committee. The State committee shall notify such person of its decision in writing within 30 days after the receipt of the appeal. If such person is dissatisfied with the decision of the State committee he may, within 15 days after such decision is forwarded to or made available to him, request the regional director to review the decision of the State committee.

Written notice of any decision rendered under this section by the county or State committee shall also be issued to each person known to it who, as landlord, tenant, or sharecropper having an interest in the operation of the farm, may be adversely affected by such decision. Only a person who shows that he is adversely affected by the outcome of any request for reconsideration or appeal may appeal the matter further, but any person who, as landlord, tenant or sharecropper having an interest in the operation of the farm, would be affected by the decision to be made on any reconsideration by the county committee or subsequent appeal shall be given a full and fair hearing if he appears when the hearing thereon is held.

§ 741.110 Forms and instructions. The Agricultural Adjustment Administration shall prescribe such forms and issue such instructions as may be necessary to carry out these regulations.

§ 741.111 Performance of duties of State and county committees in Hawaii and Puerto Rico. In the event State and county agricultural conservation committees have not been established in the Territory of Hawaii or Puerto Rico, the Officer in Charge, Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Territory of Hawaii, or Puerto Rico, as the case may be, shall perform the duties of both the State and county committees as set forth in these regulations.

§ 741.112 Definitions. As used herein and in all forms and documents relating to 1940 parity payments for producers of wheat, cotton, corn (in the commercial corn-producing area), rice, and tobacco, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires, the terms:

(a) Secretary, Regional Director, State committee, county committee, person, landlord, tenant, sharecropper, commercial corn-producing area, acreage planted to wheat, acreage planted to cotton, and acreage planted to corn shall have the same meanings assigned to them in the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program Bulletin and supplements thereto.

(b) Farm means the area of land considered as a farm for the purposes of the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program.

(c) Parity and marketing year shall have the same meanings assigned to them in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938.

(2) Rules of the road,

(3) Buoyage system in the United States,

(4) Navigation laws applicable to the vessel upon which his application for membership is based,

(5) Regulations of the Reserve.

The vessel upon which the applicant bases his application for membership must be competently operated, well-found, in good operating condition, ship-shape, equipped in accordance with law and, in addition, must be provided with adequate ground tackle and equipped with suitable devices for day and night signalling. Applications for membership shall be made on the prescribed form to a District Commander or to the Commander of a Flotilla.

(c) Action on application for membership. Except where applications for membership accompany a request to the District Commander for permission to establish a Flotilla, applications will be passed on by the personnel of the Flotilla of which the applicant will become a member if accepted and qualified. If the application is approved the Commander of the Flotilla shall appoint one or more of the Flotilla personnel to examine the applicant and his motorboat or yacht. Upon completion of the examination, the Flotilla Commander shall forward the application, with a report on the results of the examination and with suitable recommendations in the premises, to the District Board. The District Board shall pass on the application and recommend appropriate action to the District Commander.

If the application is disapproved by the personnel of the Flotilla, it shall be so indorsed by the Flotilla Commander and forwarded to the District Commander.

The District Commander shall pass upon and admit to membership in the Reserve, applicants who qualify under the Act and these Regulations.

If any application is disapproved by the District Commander, the applicant may apply directly to the Commandant, whose decision in the matter shall be final.

Where applications accompany a request to the District Commander for permission to establish a Flotilla, that officer may, after examination of the applicants and their motorboats or yachts, admit the applicants to membership in the Reserve if they and their vessels are found qualified.

(d) Admission to membership. An applicant who is accepted for membership shall be enrolled in the Reserve and issued a membership certificate and identification card. The certificate and identification card shall be valid for three years from the date of issue, unless the Reservist is in the meantime disenrolled. Membership in the Reserve may be continued for like periods of three years upon suitable evidence that the Reservist is still eligible. Upon renewal of membership this fact shall be endorsed on the membership certificate and a new identification card issued.

Duplicate membership certificates and identification cards may be issued on suitable evidence of the loss of a certificate or card.

(e) Advancement. Two lines of advancement, those of deck and engineering, are established. The designations in these specialties shall be in order of advancement, as follows:

| Deck | Engineer |
|---|---|
| Navigator | Engineer |
| Senior Navigator | Senior Engineer |
| Master Navigator | Master Engineer |

A Reservist to be eligible for advancement to the designation of Navigator or Engineer, must have been a member of the Reserve for not less than six months and must attain a passing mark of 70% in a written examination in his specialty.

A Reservist to be eligible for advancement to the designation of Senior Navigator or Senior Engineer, must already hold the designation of the junior designation in his specialty and must have been a member of the Reserve for not less than twelve months. In addition, he must produce satisfactory evidence that he has had not less than two years experience in the active operation of motorboats or yachts and must attain a passing mark of 70% in a written examination in his specialty.

A Reservist to be eligible for advancement to the designation of Master Navigator or Master Engineer, must already hold the designation of the next junior designation in his specialty and must have been a member of the Reserve for not less than eighteen months. In addition he must produce satisfactory evidence that he has had not less than five years' experience in the active operation of motorboats or yachts, at least one year's experience at sea, and must attain a passing mark of 70% in a written examination in his specialty.

(f) Method of advancement. A Reservist who meets the Service requirements for advancement to any designation as set forth above, shall, if he desires advancement, make application in writing for examination to the District Commander.

Upon receipt of the application, the District Commander will, if satisfied that the applicant meets the Service requirements, set a date for examination and convene an examining board, which shall consist of the Director and two members of the District Board, to examine the applicant.

The applicant will be advised at least thirty days before the date set for the examination of the nature and scope of the examination. Upon written request of the applicant to the President, Examining Board, the board may defer the date of the examination.

The written examination may be supervised by a sub-board, which sub-board shall transmit the examination papers to the examining board. The latter board shall grade the papers and if the applicant attains a passing mark, the board shall recommend to the Commandant, via the District Commander, that the applicant be advanced to the next senior designation.

Upon receipt of the recommendation, the Commandant will appoint the Reservist to the proper designation and issue a certificate of appointment.

Reservists who fail to attain a passing mark in any examination shall be so notified, and will be entitled to be re-examined after a period of six months from date of examination upon application in writing to the District Commander.

(g) Transfer. A District Commander shall be notified in writing by a Reservist whenever his permanent residence is changed to another District. Upon receipt of such notification, the District Commander shall transfer the records of the Reservist to the District in which his new residence is located. The District Commander of the District to which transfer is made, shall arrange affiliation with a Flotilla of that District.

District Commanders may transfer Reservists between Flotillas of their District, upon request for such transfer, and provided that the transfer is agreeable to the Flotilla to which transfer is requested.

(h) Disenrollment. A Reservist shall be disenrolled.

(1) On request.

(2) On loss of vessel on which his membership is based, unless a sufficient interest is acquired in another motorboat, or yacht, within six months from date of loss, to requalify the Reservist.

(3) On sale of vessel or sale of interest in vessel on which membership is based, unless a sufficient interest is acquired in another motorboat or yacht within six months from date of sale, to requalify the Reservist.

(4) For cause.

(5) Upon direction of the Commandant.

No Reservist shall be disenrolled under "(4)" except on a written complaint of a Reservist, and after a hearing before the District Board of his District. A majority vote of the Board will be required for disenrollment, but a Reservist disenrolled under "(4)" shall have the right of appeal to the Commandant whose decision in the matter shall be final. A person disenrolled under "(4)" shall not thereafter be eligible for membership in the Reserve except by unanimous vote of the District Board to which his application for new membership is directed.

A Reservist disenrolled as indicated above, shall surrender his membership certificate and identification card to the District Commander of the District in which he was a Reservist.*

§ 5.4 Vessels—(a) Classification. Reserve vessels shall be classified as follows:

Class 1—Seagoing motorboats or yachts possessing accommodations and capable of extended off-shore cruises.

Class 2—Motorboats or yachts possessing accommodations and adapted for use upon protected waters.

Class 3—Motorboats or yachts without accommodations.

(b) Merit designation. Reserve vessels may be awarded a merit rating of "excellent", based upon general upkeep, appearance, competency of operating personnel, and conformity with the navigation laws of the United States and the Regulations for the Reserve, both with regard to equipment carried by the vessel and its operation. This rating may be awarded by the Commandant upon the recommendation of a District Commander, and will be withdrawn by the Commandant if a vessel fails to merit continuance of the rating.

(c) Offer of vessels. The Coast Guard may employ a reserve vessel, voluntarily offered by the owner, as follows:

(1) For the conduct of its duties incident to saving of life and property.

(2) For the patrol of marine parades and regattas.

Any Reservist desiring to place his vessel at the disposal of the Coast Guard, for either or both of the above-mentioned purposes, shall communicate his offer in writing to the District Commander, who may, in his discretion, accept it. The offer shall state the period for which the vessel is proffered, whether the Reservist or his agent is to accompany the vessel, and an estimate of the present value of the vessel, and of the equipment, stores, and supplies aboard. If the vessel is owned by two or more Reservists, the offer must be signed by all owners. No vessel will be accepted unless the complete ownership is vested in Reservists.

(d) Acceptance of vessels. The District Commander shall, upon acceptance of an offer, direct an officer to take charge of the vessel proffered. Upon going aboard the vessel, the designated officer will immediately inspect the vessel to ascertain its condition. If the Reservist or an agent of the Reservist is not to accompany the vessel for the duration of the loan of the vessel to the Coast Guard, the officer shall, in the company of the Reservist or his agent, make a complete inventory of the equipment, unless the Reservist waives such inventory. The officer may then accept the vessel for the Coast Guard, signifying his acceptance by a written and signed acceptance on a prescribed form, in triplicate, one copy of which shall be delivered immediately to the Reservist or his agent, one copy retained by the officer, and one copy forwarded to Headquarters. Any defects noted during the inspection, and the inventory, or waiver of the inventory shall be noted on the acceptance form. Immediately upon acceptance of the vessel for the Coast Guard, the officer will strike all yacht or designating flags or pennants and hoist the Coast Guard ensign, which ensign shall be flown continually until the vessel is released to the Reservist or his agent, at the expiration of the duty for which loaned. From the time of acceptance of the vessel by the officer until released to the Reservist or his agent, the vessel shall be under the exclusive control of the Coast Guard and during such time the vessel shall be deemed a public vessel of the United States.

(e) Acceptance of vessels in emergencies. In an emergency the provisions of secs. 5.4 (c) and (d), insofar as they relate to the placing of a vessel at the disposition of the Coast Guard, may be waived. In such a case, any officer in charge of a Coast Guard unit may accept vessels offered by Reservists without requiring a written offer or making an inspection or inventory; provided that the Reservist or Reservists offering a vessel sign a release relieving the Government from a claim for supplies or equipment lost except in case of total loss of vessel and equipment.

The written and signed acceptance required by Sec. 5.4 (d) shall be executed by the officer assuming charge of the vessel.

(f) Return of vessels. A vessel voluntarily placed at the disposal of the Coast Guard by a Reservist, for a specified period, shall be returned to the reservist or his agent at the expiration of such period, unless circumstances or emergent need make the return of the vessel impracticable at that time. The Reservist or his agent shall personally receive the vessel, inspect it, and make inventory of the equipment, unless such inventory is waived by the Reservist, or unless the inventory on acceptance by the Government was waived. If the vessel is found to be in all respects satisfactory, the Reservist or his agent shall so indorse this fact across the face of the original acceptance held by the officer in charge, and the officer in charge shall strike the Coast Guard ensign and release the vessel to the owner.*

§ 5.5 Reimbursement for operating expense and damage—(a) Reimbursement for expense. A Reservist who voluntarily places his vessel at the disposal of the Coast Guard, shall be reimbursed by the Coast Guard for actual necessary expenses incident to the operation of the vessel; such expense to include fuel, oil, water, supplies, and provisions, but shall not include compensation for personal services, damages, repairs, replacement of equipment, or hire of the vessel beyond the period for which loaned.

To obtain reimbursement for expenses authorized, a Reservist shall submit to the District Commander a signed and itemized bill, in quadruplicate, setting forth the amount claimed for each item. The bill shall be indorsed "Certified just and correct, payment not received" and signed. Upon receipt of the bill the District Commander will refer it to the officer who had charge of the vessel during the loan to the Coast Guard and the officer will note on the bill his approval of the amount claimed, or any discrepancy. The District Commander will investigate any discrepancy and upon ascertaining the proper amount of the bill, prepare a voucher in favor of the claimant.

(b) Action in case of damage noted on return. If upon return a vessel is found to be damaged in any respect, the Reservist or his agent may either,

(1) Refuse to accept the vessel; in which case it shall remain under the control of the Coast Guard, and repairs shall be effected in accordance with the customary practice for repairing Coast Guard vessels, or

(2) Accept the vessel, noting on the face of the original acceptance held by the officer in charge, the defects noted. The District Commander shall be notified of the damage by the officer in charge and shall immediately convene a board of investigation to inquire into the facts and circumstances of the damage. If it is found that the responsibility for the damage rests with the Coast Guard, the vessel may either be,

(i) Again placed under the control of the Coast Guard and repairs effected in accordance with the customary practice for repairing Coast Guard vessels, or

(ii) Repaired by the Reservist at his own expense, in which case the Commandant will initiate action for Congressional relief to the Reservist in the amount of the damages.

(c) Action in case of damage noted after return. Damages observed after the return of the vessel will be reported in writing to the District Commander by the Reservist or his agent, and the District Commander shall convene a board of investigation to investigate the facts and circumstances of the damage. If it is found that the responsibility for the damage rests with the Coast Guard, the vessel may either be,

(1) Again placed under the control of the Coast Guard and repairs effected in accordance with the customary practice for repairing Coast Guard vessels, or

(2) Repaired by the Reservist at his own expense, in which case the Commandant will initiate action for Congressional relief to the Reservist in the amount of the damages.

(d) Action in case of loss of equipment. In cases where equipment of a vessel loaned by a Reservist to the Coast Guard is reported lost or missing, either upon return of the vessel or subsequent thereto, the District Commander shall convene a board of investigation to inquire into the facts and circumstances and if it is found that the responsibility for the loss rests with the Coast Guard, the Commandant will initiate action for Congressional relief to the Reservist in the amount of the loss.

(e) Action in case of total loss of vessel. In case of the total loss of a vessel loaned by a Reservist while such vessel is under the control of the Coast Guard, the Commandant will initiate action for Congressional relief to the Reservist.*

§ 5.6 Flags, pennants and insignia.—(a) Authorized emblem. The following described emblem has been prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury:

Division of Marketing and Marketing Agreements.

[Docket No. A-116 O-116]

NOTICE OF HEARING WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER REGULATING HANDLING OF ONIONS GROWN IN CERTAIN DESIGNATED COUNTIES IN STATE OF IDAHO AND IN MALHEUR COUNTY IN STATE OF OREGON

Whereas, under Public Act No. 10, 73rd Congress, as amended and as reenacted and amended by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, notice of hearing is required in connection with a proposed marketing agreement or a proposed order, and the General Regulations, Series A, No. 1, as amended, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, provide for such notice; and

Whereas, the Secretary of Agriculture has reason to believe that the execution of a marketing agreement and the issuance of an order will tend to effectuate the declared policy of said act with respect to such handling of onions grown in the counties hereinafter designated in the State of Idaho and in Malheur County in the State of Oregon as is in the current of interstate or foreign commerce, or which directly burdens, obstructs, or affects such commerce:

Now, therefore, pursuant to the said act and said general regulations, notice is hereby given of a hearing on a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed order regulating such handling of onions grown in the counties of Ada, Adams, Bannock, Bear Lake, Bingham, Blaine, Boise, Bonneville, Butte, Camas, Canyon, Caribou, Cassia, Clark, Custer, Elmore, Franklin, Fremont, Gem, Gooding, Jefferson, Jerome, Lemhi, Lincoln, Madison, Minidoka, Oneida, Owyhee, Payette, Power, Teton, Twin Falls, Valley, and Washington in the State of Idaho, and in the county of Malheur in the State of Oregon, said hearing to be held in the Study, Nampa High School, Nampa, Idaho, at 9:30 a. m., m. s. t., October 28, 1939, and in the American Legion Hall, Twin Falls, Idaho, at 9:30 a. m., m. s. t., October 30, 1939.

This public hearing is for the purpose of receiving evidence as to the general economic conditions which may necessitate regulation in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act and as to the specific provisions which a marketing agreement and order should contain.

The proposed marketing agreement and the proposed order each provides, in similar terms, a plan for the regulation of such handling of the aforesaid onions as is in the current of interstate or foreign commerce, or which directly burdens, obstructs, or affects such commerce. Among other matters relating to such regulation, the proposed marketing agreement and order provide for: (a) the establishment of an Administrative Committee consisting of ten members, six of whom shall represent producers and four of whom shall represent handlers; (b) regulation of shipments of any variety or varieties of onions by grades or sizes or combinations thereof; (c) inspection of shipments by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service during periods when regulation is in effect; (d) levying of assessments by the Administrative Committee to cover expenses of administration; and (e) reports to the Administration Committee by handlers.

It is hereby declared that an emergency exists in the handling of onions in the aforesaid area and that a shorter period of notice than fifteen (15) days is therefore required. It is hereby determined that the period of notice given is reasonable under the circumstances.

Copies of the proposed marketing agreement and the proposed order may be procured from the Hearing Clerk, Office of the Solicitor, United States Department of Agriculture, in Room 0310 South Building, Washington, D. C., or may be there inspected.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.

Wage and Hour Division.

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION FOR EXEMPTION OF THE PROCESSING OF HYBRID SEED CORN FROM THE MAXIMUM HOURS PROVISIONS OF THE FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT

Whereas, the Garst and Thomas Hybrid Corn Company, the National Hybrid Corn Company, and sundry other parties filed applications for the exemption of the processing of hybrid seed corn from the maximum hours provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 as a branch of an industry of a seasonal nature within the meaning of Section 7 (b) (3) and Part 526 of the Regulations issued thereunder, and

Whereas, it appears from the said applications that:

(1) Hybrid seed corn comes to maturity and is harvested each year during the period between September 15 (approximately) and the first killing frost (usually about November 1) after which time unharvested corn is no longer usable as seed corn, and

(2) After harvesting, hybrid seed corn is perishable and must be immediately delivered to processing plants where it is and must be immediately husked, sorted and dried, and where it is shelled, graded and sacked either during the harvest season proper or during the winter months, but not later than February, save for an unsubstantial amount of corn upon which these operations are performed in March or April, and

(3) The above described processing of hybrid seed corn is carried on only by plants which engage in no other operations and which completely cease operations, except for such work as maintenance, repair, clerical and sales work, during the balance of the year.

Whereas, the Administrator published a preliminary determination in the FEDERAL REGISTER on September 16, 1939,[1] pursuant to Section 526.5 (c) of the Regulations, that a prima facie case was shown by the application for the granting of an exemption, pursuant to Section 7 (b) (3) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and Part 526 of the Regulations issued thereunder, to the processing of hybrid seed corn, and

Whereas, no objection and request for hearing was received by the Administrator within fifteen days following the publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER of the said preliminary determination.

Now, therefore, pursuant to Section 526.5 (c) of the Regulations, the Administrator hereby finds upon the prima facie case shown in the said applications that the processing of hybrid seed corn, when carried on in plants which engage in no other operations, is a branch of an industry of a seasonal nature within the meaning of Section 7 (b) (3) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and the Regulations issued thereunder and, therefore, is entitled to the exemption provided in Section 7 (b) (3) of the said Act.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 19th day of October 1939.

[Project No. 16]

IN THE MATTER OF THE NIAGARA FALLS POWER COMPANY

ORDER GRANTING FURTHER HEARING

Commissioners: Clyde L. Seavey, Chairman; Claude L. Draper, Basil Manly, Leland Olds, John W. Scott.

It appearing to the Commission that:

(a) The Commission on March 2, 1921, issued to The Niagara Falls Power Company a license to construct, operate, and maintain a hydroelectric project located on the Niagara River in the State of New York;

(b) Pursuant to orders of the Commission dated March 21, 1939, and April 26, 1939,[1] public hearings have been held on thirty-seven (37) days between June 1, 1939, and September 8, 1939, with respect to the matters involved in the determination of the actual legitimate cost as of March 2, 1921, of Project No. 16, The Niagara Falls Power Company, Licensee;

(c) During the course of said public hearings, counsel for Licensee moved to dismiss the proceedings for the reasons that (1) under the provisions of Section 23 of the Federal Water Power Act and Articles 9 and 10 of the license, there is no issue before the Commission requiring the determination of the actual legitimate original cost of the project as of March 2, 1921, but that the sole issue before the Commission is the determination of the fair value of the project as of March 2, 1921, and (2) under the provisions of Section 23 of the Federal Water Power Act such determination must be reached by negotiation and agreement between the Licensee and the Commission, or be determined by a District Court of the United States;

(d) Counsel for Licensee offered to introduce evidence in support of the contentions enumerated in paragraph (c), which proffer was refused by the Hearing Examiner;

(e) At the close of the testimony counsel for Licensee renewed his various objections, including the objections enumerated in paragraph (c) above, and requested the Hearing Examiner to convey his contentions directly to the Commission;

(f) The Hearing Examiner, in accordance with said request, has notified the Commission of the statements of counsel for Licensee, aforesaid, and upon consideration of the same;

The Commission orders that:

(A) The proceedings be reopened for the sole purpose of receiving of record relevant and competent evidence relating to the contention of Licensee that the order of the Commission dated March 21, 1939, fixing the issue in this proceeding as the determination of the actual legitimate original cost as of March 2, 1921, of Project No. 16, The Niagara Falls Power Company, Licensee, is beyond the jurisdiction of the Commission for the reasons that:

(i) Under the provisions of Section 23 of the Federal Water Power Act and Articles 9 and 10 of the license, there is no issue before the Commission requiring the determination of the actual legitimate original cost of the project as of March 2, 1921; but that the sole issue before the Commission is the determination of the fair value of the project as of March 2, 1921; and

(ii) Under the provisions of law there is no authority to hold any hearings in respect to such issue, but that the determinations of such issue must be by negotiation and agreement between the Licensee and the Commission or be determined by a District Court of the United States as provided in Section 23 of the Federal Water Power Act;

(B) The Hearing Examiner, at the date hereinafter fixed for hearing, receive evidence as provided in paragraph (A), and direct the staff and the Licensee to include within the scope of their briefs, on the issues involved in the determination of the actual legitimate original cost of Project No. 16, such argument as they may deem pertinent upon the matters referred to in said paragraph;

(C) A hearing, in accordance with the provisions of this order, be held on October 31, 1939, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., in the Hearing Room of the Commission at 1757 K Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

By the Commission.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

CONDITION OF THE APPORTIONMENT AT CLOSE OF BUSINESS SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1939

Important. Although the apportioned classified civil service is by law located only in Washington, D. C., it nevertheless includes only about half of the Federal Civilian positions in the District of Columbia. Positions in local post offices, customs districts and other field services outside of the District of Columbia which are subject to the Civil Service Act are filled almost wholly by persons who are local residents of the general community in which the vacancies exist. It should be noted and understood that so long as a person occupies, by original appointment, a position in the apportioned service, the charge for his appointment continues to run against his State of original residence. Certifications of eligibles are first made from States which are in arrears:

TITLE 24—HOUSING CREDIT

UNITED STATES HOUSING AUTHORITY

PART 636—REHOUSING OCCUPANTS OF AREAS TO BE CLEARED FOR HOUSING PROJECTS*†

Sec.
636.0 Scope and content.
636.1 Purposes to be achieved in relocation.
636.2 Procedure in relocation.

§ 636.0 Scope and content. This bulletin deals with the relocation by the local housing authority of occupants of slums to be demolished prior to the construction of a low-rent housing project on the site to be cleared.*† [Introduction]

§ 636.1 Purposes to be achieved in relocation. (a) Remedying the unsafe and insanitary housing conditions of families of low income is the primary purpose of the United States Housing Act of 1937. This can be accomplished only if the local authority assists families who are moved out of buildings to find accommodations better than those being vacated. New slums must not be created nor must existing slums be spread or made more congested.

(b) Clearing of the site can be expedited and legal actions involving evictions can be avoided by evidencing an interest in the problems of the families to be relocated. While the responsibility of moving is in part that of the occupants, it is wise to avoid antagonizing them and instead to enlist their cooperation by counseling with them regarding their individual problems and needs.

(c) Factual data concerning the occupants of the area to be cleared will be of help in explaining to them the benefits they will derive from the slum clearance program.*† [Par. I]

§ 636.2 Procedure in relocation. It is suggested that the local authority proceed with relocation along the lines suggested below:

(a) Establish an office in a building on the site easily accessible to the tenants. It will be advisable to employ a limited personnel for a short period to answer inquiries and supply information. It will be helpful to have a map of the area, with each family unit represented by a push pin or some similar device. As dwelling units are vacated, the pins can be removed, thus indicating progress made in vacating the site.

(b) Make a study of the families on the site to secure the following information:

(1) Number of persons in the family.
(2) The number of rooms occupied.
(3) Facilities and general condition of the dwelling.
(4) The rent the family is paying.
(5) Income and economic condition of family.
(6) General location preferred in relocating.

Such information should be recorded on forms which are available on request from the USHA.

(c) List available vacant dwellings which are more habitable than those being vacated, with rents not substantially higher, and keep this listing available in the relocation office for the use of tenants. This information may be secured through publicity, from real estate agencies, and from other sources. Daily and community papers should be kept informed on the work being done. Real estate and social agencies should be consulted from the very outset, so that their support as well as their advice may be secured in meeting the problem of relocation.

The following information should be secured with respect to each vacancy listed:

(1) Number of rooms in dwelling.
(2) Facilities and general condition of unit.
(3) Rent of dwelling.
(4) Location.
(5) Proximity to schools, churches, and shopping center.
(6) Name and address of landlord and where keys may be obtained.

(d) Determine kind of assistance needed for each family on the site and from what sources help may be obtained.

(1) Economically self-supporting families should need no assistance other than being supplied with a list of available vacancies.

(2) Relief and near-relief cases will require the assistance of social agencies. Experience has indicated that relief and social agencies prefer to have their own case workers interview relief families who must be moved and to make all arrangements for them. The moving of such families should be the responsibility of relief and social agencies.

(e) Maintain reference files on relocated families including old and new rent, housing condition and address. This will be of material assistance later when question arises as to whether or not, through relocation, housing conditions have been improved. Such information should be recorded on forms which are available on request from the USHA.

(f) Post "No Trespass" signs in conspicuous places, both front and back, after a building is completely vacated. This will prevent reoccupation of the premises by squatters. It may be found advisable to board up entrances.

(g) Maintain some type of watchman service to prevent vandalism, if the salvage value of the buildings warrants this expense. This is recommended in those instances where there is a lapse of time between the vacation of the buildings and the start of demolition.

(h) Request assistance from the United States Housing Authority if it is desired. When necessary, USHA representatives experienced in the problems of relocation will furnish guidance in the field.*† [Par. II]

§ 635.0 Scope and content. In this Part the factors governing site planning and development are discussed. These include the uses and treatment of open spaces, provision for leisure-time activities of both children and adults, and the organization of common services. The Part is divided into four sections. Sec. 635.1 treats of the basic objectives in the design of housing sites, and the standards by which the attainment of these objectives may be measured. In Sections 635.2, 635.3 and 635.4, the technical considerations in the design of the site plan and the various steps of its development are set forth. Types of site plans which are appropriate to various climatic and topographic conditions and other local factors are illustrated. Characteristics of different site plans, the influence of building types, materials and methods in the treatment of open spaces, and the organization of communal services are discussed.*† [Introduction]

§ 635.1 Basic design principles — (a) The superblock. Modern residential planning practice has evolved certain basic principles which, through testing and demonstration in use, have come to be accepted as fundamental. Primary among these is the superblock, a relatively large area, usually containing one or more common open spaces, and bounded in whole or in part by through traffic streets, but not intersected by such streets. Cul-de-sac or dead-end streets, branching from a circumferential traffic street, may be used to give internal access; or through streets, so reduced in width or so placed and shaped as to discourage any but local interior traffic, may serve the houses within the block. Many varieties of the superblock are possible, and one or more of these may be used as the basis for the organization of the site plan. Directly related to the superblock are a number of corollary principles, including:

(1) The articulated street pattern. This is the design and construction of streets and walks to serve particular functions, i. e., through traffic, local traffic, service lanes, pedestrian walks, etc. This results not only in economy of paving and utilities costs, but gives privacy to residential areas and freedom from traffic hazards. Instead of planning all streets for an anticipated, and in most instances unrealizable, future intensity of land use based on the hope of business or industrial expansion, streets should be designed and constructed for the particular use which they can best serve in accordance with a neighborhood and city plan.

(2) The appropriate planning for use of all open spaces, and arrangement of buildings on the site to give cencentration of these spaces. Some of these spaces will be maintained by the project as common open areas for recreation and group activity; others—and insofar as possible these should be the greater part—by the tenants. In some cases tenant groups or clubs may assist in the maintenance of common spaces. A rough measure of the success of a housing project is the extent to which tenants participate in the maintenance of the public spaces. The application of these principles will reduce traffic hazards and noise, increase privacy, integrate play areas with dwellings, and protect the project from deteriorating outside influences.

(b) Organization of open space for use. A housing project must contain spaces, enclosed or open, for the service and pleasure of the people living in it. Some of these spaces will be private, others for public use, for gatherings and recreation, or for passageways from one part of the project to another. All these spaces must be organized—arranged, divided and allocated, enclosed and surfaced—so that they may provide for maximum use by the tenants. Large "Keep off the grass" lawns have no place in a low-rent housing project. Odd, left-over areas, serving no particular purpose should be avoided. On the other hand, play spaces, and yards which may be used as sitting-out areas or cultivated by the tenants, are important for recreation and relaxation.

(c) Tenant-maintained areas. To aid in maintaining low rents, as well as in cultivating self-reliance, the United States Housing Authority recommends the policy of placing upon the tenants as much responsibility for the maintenance of both house and land as is feasible and economical. This will usually be achieved by arranging much of the open space for the private use of individual families who will be expected to maintain it and care for it and use it as their own. This accords with American custom. In housing projects consisting of row houses, of flats with private entrances, or of single or twin houses, all the land except that part which is needed for common use may well be allocated to such tenant-maintained yards. The apartment superblock, on the other hand, introduces difficulties in accomplishing this objective. The non-apartment type of development is, for many reasons, usually to be preferred, especially in those localities where the care of private yards is customary, and interest in gardening is general. Visible demarcation of private yards is important to develop in the tenant a definite feeling of possession and responsibility. If the limit of this responsibility is visibly marked, the fruit of his labor and care is more definitely apparent to himself, his neighbors, and his guests; and thus his satisfaction is enhanced. Where tenants are assigned a share of an unenclosed space, their care of it often tends to be perfunctory. Walks, shrubs, or fences are satisfactory division marks. Even posts from which wires can be strung to the building may be used successfully to divide yards. As is usual in private yards, there should be provision for drying clothes. A sitting-out area, surfaced perhaps with brick, is an attractive and useful feature which requires practically no care. In the remaining area, the tenant should be able to cultivate grass, flowers, vegetables, and vines, according to his choice.

(d) Project-maintained areas. Under some conditions, the effective maintenance of private yards is not likely to be attained. In such cases, the open space must be planned and located for economical maintenance. Sometimes a skillful use of topography in the site plan will leave existing natural landscape features as open space in the plan requiring no maintenance, planting, or upkeep. The recreation needs of the project population require the development of project-maintained common areas such as play lots for the preschool-age child, sitting-out places for adults, and areas for active recreation for adults and school-age children. The technical development of recreational areas is explained in Sec. 635.3. Economy demands compactness of lay-out even when land cost is low and plenty of land is available. Most items of site-improvement cost are almost directly proportional to the area covered, such as grading, planting, streets, walks, storm sewers, and all utilities. Collaboration with a site engineer is essential if maximum economy is to be obtained. Maintenance of grounds, yard lighting, and other operations are also proportional in cost to the area which they cover. Land which is not needed for housing is generally most useful and most economical to maintain if it is kept in relatively large units of area, instead of being broken up into many small pieces.

(e) Planting and surfacing. Planting should contribute to the beauty of the project, but should serve a useful purpose as well. The planting scheme should not be thought of as an opportunity to create beautiful scenery as a setting for neat brick houses to impress visitors and passers-by. Used to demark the various use areas of the ground, and as screens and barriers, it may serve a definite need as well as enhance the appearance of the project. Since the land of a housing project is for the use of its many inhabitants, and not a formal garden for the eye delight of a few, all areas must be treated as use areas for some purpose. Surfacing materials must, therefore, be selected to be suitable and satisfactory for their intended use. Trees, shrubs, and plants must be hardy, requiring little attention. Low maintenance cost is, as always, a determining consideration. The clipped grass lawn has been so generally used as an outdoor surface in the past that there is a tendency on the part of many who design and specify the surfacing of areas in low-rent housing projects to assume that these areas will be chiefly lawn. When kept well trimmed and otherwise properly maintained, a lawn is probably the most beautiful and satisfying of all surfaces. However, to maintain a clipped grass lawn in good condition is very costly. It must be mowed regularly, watered frequentliy in summer, fed with fertilizers several times a year, weeded, and reseeded in part once or twice a year. To do all this on any appreciable public area is a burden of cost which may not rightly be imposed on the tenants of a low-rent housing project. If this standard of upkeep is not maintained, the lawn rapidly becomes a bare space with tufts of plantain, crab grass, and other weeds, dusty in dry weather, and muddy in wet weather. A clipped grass lawn is therefore not a desirable surface for the public areas of a low-rent housing project, except for those limited areas where its special maintenance requirements may reasonably be met. Most of the open area of housing projects must be surfaced with something other than clipped lawn. However, the problem of maintaining a lawn varies widely in different climates. Rough meadow grass allowed to grow without mowing can often be used to advantage in the larger areas. It looks well, is satisfactory for some forms of play, and requires relatively little upkeep. Areas subject to more intensive use will need a harder surface, such as some form of bituminous or composition material or paving—brick, concrete blocks, random paving, etc.—or gravel, depending on use and location. At suitable intervals, such areas may be broken up with small islands of green. Their location must, of course, be determined with due regard to free and unobstructed use of the open areas for recreation, and with due regard to esthetic effect. These islands, of varying size and shape, may be planted with hardy shrubs, ground covers, or beds of flowers. Areas designed for quiet recreation and surfaced with gravel, or other materials, may be planted with trees, few in number, but substantial in size. A dozen moderately large trees will give much needed shade and a restful appearance. It will often prove possible to enlist the interest of a group of tenants to care for these trees or a few small "islands," planted in flowers, when the same group of people could not possibly be interested in mowing or weeding a lawn. A group of children or even adults can readily be made to regard a particular tree or two or three trees as their own personal property, for whose well-being and beauty they are responsible.

(f) Leisure time and recreational needs. The way in which residents of a housing project may spend their leisure time is of great importance in determining the development of the land. The greatest attention should be given to the kinds of space, treatment, and facilities which will serve the social, recreational, and cultural activities of all age groups. Local housing authorities should confer with the local park and playground officials, the boards of education, and the health departments early in their planning of the project. Since it is the function of these agencies to provide adequate service to the public, they are necessarily interested in cooperating in the extension of service in their fields. It is essential also to impress upon all public agencies the fact that although public housing is concerning itself deeply with the social needs of its residents, most of such services should come from the appropriate public sources. In many cities, local park boards or other agencies have provided facilities or mainenance of facilities for USHA-aided projects. The USHA has in its files for reference, information and plans of what is being done in New York and other cities along these lines. In some instances it will be necessary to supplement available public-recreation services. For this purpose the full cooperation of recreation agencies will be invaluable. For instance, if a project is being considered in a neighborhood where there is no playground, the park or recreation department may agree to provide, adjacent to the project, playground facilities adequate to serve the anticipated population; may be found willing to equip and supervise playgrounds within the project; or may agree to supervise a playground where the project has provided the space or equipment. A housing project presents an opportunity for a new pattern of family living, and no adequate precedent to guide the new recreation needs exists. New solutions are necessary. Here are men and women of all ages, youths and girls, children and babies, and their needs, as they vary throughout the day and throughout the year, must be met. The varied recreation interests of each group are equally important, and these interests are so closely interrelated that facilities intended for the use of any one group must be coordinated with opportunities for other members of the community. The space to be allocated for recreation use in a housing project should be determined, therefore, by a balancing of the social and recreational needs of all ages, limited, however, by careful consideration of the expense of maintaining and supervising such space.

(g) Esthetic considerations. Although economy and rational organization must be the primary considerations in the design of the site plan for a project in which low first costs and low operating costs are essential, the skill of the designer and his preference for one type of plan organization over another will influence decisively the character and appearance of the resulting plan. Economy in the layout of access drives and utility services—sewers, water, gas, electricity, etc.—requires that the skeletal frame of any plan of site organization be based on parallel rows of buildings, even if these rows are curved or closed at one or both ends by buildings at right angles. This principle has been carried to diverse extremes in some examples of European planning: some housing projects have used rigidly formal parallel row planning which gives every dwelling uniform orientation and equal treatment with respect to land and services; others have grouped the buildings into an infinite variety of small courts and closures with varying treatment of open space and varying orientation to sun and wind. The esthetic satisfaction obtained may either be that deriving from formality and symmetry, or that deriving from the informal vista and the picturesque or casual grouping. In either case a pleasing result depends more on the designer's skill in handling scale and proportion than on the choice of pattern. It is important that the site plan grow logically out of the requirements of the building types, topography, orientation, and servicing, rather than from preconceived patterns. Once the most economical and useful scheme has been determined, the necessary adjustments can be made for a satisfactory three-dimensional aspect. Thus apartments, through the use of T, X, L, and Y units, may inevitably result in a series of court arrangements. Row-house plans, in which gardens are allotted to each dwelling, may perhaps most simply and economically be developed in groupings of parallel rows. Here, too, a specific site condition—the need for shelter from unpleasant winds, the cutting off of an undesirable view—may give the rows the effect of a court by the use of projecting wings or short buildings placed across the ends of two rows. Similar effects may often be obtained by skillful arrangement of walks and planting. If the designer adapts his plan to the topography, the site plan which is best fitted to the site should result."†

[Par. I]

§ 635.2 Design and organization of the site.—(a) Density. "Density", unless otherwise qualified, means the number of families per acre.[1] No two plans can be compared for the quality of their livability solely on the basis of their comparative densities. An examination of the plan is always necessary to indicate whether its potentialities as environment have actually been realized at a particular density. In general a low density is desirable because, if there are few families per acre, there is more room for outdoor life, and there tends to be more air, sunlight, and privacy for the dwellings. Further, low density is an insurance against neighborhood obsolescence. Low densities, however, mean additional land cost per unit. Density is influenced by factors other than land cost. In a slum-clearance project near the center of a city where all the equipment for the servicing of a large population exists, there is good reason for utilizing this civic investment by a project which is planned at a relatively high density. On a vacant site in the suburbs it is obvious that a low density is as normal for a public housing project as it would be for a private housing development. In studying sites, an approximate density based on the assumed type of housing unit—whether row house, apartment or other—may be set, or a scale of densities may be set up on the basis of a range of land cost. When the number of dwelling units in the proposed project is determined approximately (possibly varying according to the neighborhood under consideration) this combination of figures—total number of units and density—will give the area of land necessary for the project. With this figure various sites may be reviewed, and for a particular site the calculation may be reversed to give either the density which results from a given number of units, or the number of units which may be built at a given density. Variations in density result from or should correspond to different types of housing structure and these variations can be fixed within rough limits. A layout of single houses cannot generally exceed 12 or 15 to the acre. One-story row houses give densities of 16 or 18 as a maximum, and two-story row houses are commonly planned with a density of from 15 to 20 families per acre. When row houses are supplemented by two-story flats, and one-quarter or one-third of the units are in flats, a two-story project with space for 100 percent automobile parking can have a density of 20 families without undesirable overcrowding. If the auto parking runs under 50 percent and there is a large number of flats, a two-story row-house development can attain a density of about 25 families per acre. Beyond this point it is usually desirable to introduce some three-story buildings.

[1] In general practice an area that excludes public boundary streets and large recreation, unbuildable, or reserved areas, but includes narrow service drives, parking areas, and small recreation spaces, is used in calculating the density.

(b) Coverage. "Coverage" is the term commonly used to denote the percentage of a site covered by buildings. Coverage and the number of stories in the buildings are the two factors which determine the density of the population in a housing project. In general, low coverage and low buildings are desirable. The recent trend in this direction is unmistakable. This is especially true of low-rent housing. Occupants of low-rent housing cannot afford to use electric light freely and they must find their recreation close at home. Both of these reasons make low coverage and large open spaces especially desirable. At a particular density the coverage depends upon the size of the units and the number of stories. Coverage and density are thus related variables which directly affect the site plan. In view of this fact, it cannot be too strongly emphasized that the design of the dwellings and of the site plan must proceed at the same time.

(c) Land cost. The density of a project should reflect land cost in order to keep to a minimum all expenditures for nondwelling facilities. However, only a general relation between land cost and total development cost can be established. A ratio which may be clearly justified in a metropolitan slum-clearance project may be clearly disproportionate in a project located in the outskirts of a small city. The special conditions bearing upon each case must be considered, since high land costs may sometimes mean low site-development costs, and may often effect a reduction in the total living costs of the tenants by reducing their expenditures for transportation. Land cost is usually calculated on the basis of the money paid out and does not include an allowance for closed streets. In comparisons of site costs the cost per square foot is usually used. All the land made available for the project by purchase (including existing streets which are to be closed) may be included in the total number of square feet by which the total cost of the land is divided to give the average square-foot cost. Where two sites are compared, one of which contains much unbuildable land and the other little or none, it may be necessary to base the calculation upon the net amount of buildable land in each case and not upon the gross area. This is also true in a calculation of the land cost per dwelling unit—the land cost divided by the proposed number of units.

(d) Site-development cost. Site-development cost includes the outlay for all outdoor construction such as roads, walks, utilities, grading, planting, fences, and playgrounds. This factor has been found to vary between limits as wide as 5 to 20 percent of the total project cost. A project which is surrounded or intersected by well developed city streets in good condition and utility mains which may be used in the project plan will tend to show a lower site-development cost than a project on vacant land. Steep topographic conditions or excessive flatness may increase development costs. And a scheme in which the tenants do not have yards of their own is likely to show higher costs of site development per unit than a scheme in which the land is divided among the tenants. Costs of site development may be minimized by the use of inexpensive types of surfacing for streets, playgrounds, and open areas, and by restricting expenditures for landscape work.

(e) Buildable area. No site should be given even tentative consideration unless the amount of buildable area it contains is known. If the site includes steeply sloping land, at least a sketch topography should be available. Data on soil conditions, particularly where there are areas of poor bearing due to natural conditions or to artificial fill, should also be obtained. A site engineer should cooperate with the planner in laying out topographically difficult sites. Runs and depths of sewer cuts constitute an important element of cost. Unbuildable areas of poor bearing soil may often be used for parking or recreation areas, and thus need not cause a serious loss of useful area. Land which is unbuildable because it is so steep that construction cost becomes excessive is ordinarily of little use for other purposes, but all land may be of value to the project in giving more light and air to the houses. At the periphery of a project open area may provide useful protection against undesirable factors in the environment, acting as a miniature "green belt."

(f) Neighborhood planning. A small project, the site of which lies within an existing neighborhood, should be planned to form part of such neighborhood. Very large or isolated projects will naturally tend to form neighborhoods of their own and should therefore be planned to provide the basic setting for neighborhood life. This means, in addition to integral provision in the plan of space and facilities for recreation, the additional provision of space for stores, elementary schools, and other facilities whose radius of influence is the neighborhood, although the facilities themselves need not be provided as part of the housing program. There should be careful integration with the city plan, if one exists, or with a general scheme based on a study of population and industrial trends. Close cooperation between the local housing authority and other departments of the local government should be maintained so that any schools, parks, playgrounds, or other facilities planned under the programs of these departments may be related to the housing program.

(g) Travel routes. The project must have convenient routes of access to employment, recreation, and shopping centers. Location adjacent to, but not on, a main traffic route is most favored. Intersection of a project site by a traffic route is clearly undesirable, and even minor streets which bisect the site will interfere with the safety of the residents and with the operation of the project. Where streets are closed, the other streets of the neighborhood may be expected to carry more traffic and if these form part of the site boundary, provision should be made by means of ample setbacks for future widening.

(h) Dwelling types and schedule. A schedule showing the distribution of dwelling units by size correlated with a schedule of dwelling types must be established before the design of a definite site plan may be begun. Both of these schedules, however, must be subject to slight change while the site plan is being developed in order to permit economical assembly of the units into buildings. The schedule of unit sizes is based upon statistics showing the distribution of families by size in the population group for which the project is being built, and is influenced by the location of the site and the types of dwelling. A "downtown" apartment layout ordinarily favors small units; suburban single, twin, or row houses usually provide for larger families. The cost limitation contained in the United States Housing Act—a maximum room cost fixed at one-quarter of the maximum dwelling unit cost—tends to force the use of units of four rooms, or less, when the per-room construction cost is close to the limit.

"Dwelling types" are the various forms in which the housing units may be assembled; free-standing single and twin one-story or two-story row houses; houses, flats, apartments, duplex or triplex combinations of these. The dwelling type or types selected for a project influence the site plan indirectly through their effect upon density and coverage, and directly through their effect on the status of the tenant families with respect to land use and to types of servicing. Consequently, this is one of the variables which must be adjusted for each tentatively considered site and in each tentative site plan.

(1) Apartments. Although apartments are ordinarily to be avoided under the conditions of the USHA program, because they entail somewhat higher maintenance costs than units which may be serviced entirely by the tenants, they may be used where high land cost or other conditions enforce a high density. Apartments should rarely, if ever, be used to provide a small portion of the dwelling units in a predominantly row-house layout since janitor service is more expensive when it operates on a restricted scale. They are economical of land and have a slight advantage in lower construction cost per room. Further, they are particularly appropriate for small units occupied by families with few or no children. There are many ways of planning apartment units and of assembling them into buildings, and new ways are constantly being designed. The "ribbon" type of building, with full cross-ventilation, is probably the most livable, but it is not so economical in first cost or maintenance as T and L apartment groupings, which give a larger number of units to each stairwell. With few exceptions the apartment buildings used in projects planned under the USHA program are three stories in height; four-story walk-up buildings are contemplated in a few projects, and a few elevator apartments, six stories high, have been used. Apartment block plans may be laid out in a variety of row and court patterns. The usual objectives in a court plan are high coverage and variety of architectural effect and vistas. If the site permits some freedom in the placing of the buildings, very careful attention should be given to the orientation, particularly in other than "ribbon" plans. Completely enclosed courts, especially if the buildings are high, should not be used, since this arrangement magnifies noise to an objectionable extent, and impedes air circulation. Careful consideration should be given to the location of the entrances to the buildings; preferably they should be on the court side. The court is usually arranged for community use with sitting-out places and recreation facilities for young children. These areas are more freely used if the people can flow directly into them on a hot summer evening without going far from their apartments. In a site plan for apartment houses special care should be taken to make the land useful: the walks should be wide and the paved areas should be ample. There must be plenty of space for sitting out, with benches and shade, and play lots located to serve directly each group of apartments. The great variety in apartment plan types and frequent occurrence of justifiable breaks in alignment and height of apartment buildings give opportunity for a wide range of esthetic expression. First studies for apartment groups are apt to exhibit highly developed axes, but it is not necessary to use a symmetrical plan in order to achieve unified expression. A group can attain style through careful adaptation to topography, adherence to a preferred orientation, or through the discipline of some principle of unit planning. The most successful plan is one in which the principal objective—livability for the people who will occupy the structures—has been reached.

(2) Flats. A flat is a small dwelling unit arranged so that the access hall or stairs are incorporated in the dwelling and maintained by the tenant. In USHA-aided projects, flats are usually two-story buildings. If these are grouped continuously in one building, the ground plan usually provides for a private yard for the first-story units. Provision of yards for the upstairs family is difficult to make unless entrance to the second floor is on the side opposite the first floor entrance. When a considerable number of flats are grouped closely, common space must be provided for laundry drying and special provision made for servicing, in particular for garbage collection. In a close correlation of flats with row houses, for example, the use of two-story flats at one or both ends of a row of two-story row houses makes it possible to provide the upstairs flats with private yards by using the land at the ends of the building. This also facilitates a simple scheme for servicing the group, since wastes may be collected from either side of the building, the flats being as conveniently accessible as the row houses. Where buildings must sometimes stand close to busy public streets, entrances may be eliminated at the street side of a flat building and all access walks and doors placed on the project side of the building only. This tends to prevent children from playing in the public street, but usually requires treatment of more of the land as project-maintained area.

(3) Three-story duplexes. In order to permit the construction of three-story buildings which do not require project maintenance of halls and stairs, a dwelling type has been designed in which the ground floor is occupied by flats and the two floors above are divided vertically into row houses. If a considerable number of flats and three-story duplexes are to be used in a project, it is desirable to group them rather closely, and to base the land plan on common use of land areas by those families which do not have first-floor access to the ground. If these community areas are simply designed and consist mainly of paved surfaces, their upkeep will not be excessive, and they should create little cause for friction between families or between management and tenants. The three-story duplex units are used to increase density without producing excessive coverage; that is, to avoid placing row houses undesirably close together. In one carefully planned housing project about one-third of the buildings (measured in linear feet) are two-story row houses, and the remaining two-thirds are three-story duplex buildings. The project has a density of about 28 families to the acre and the coverage is only 20 percent. If the project had been built in two-story row houses exclusively, the same density would have resulted in a coverage slightly over 25 percent; the distances between the buildings would not have been much over 50 feet front and back—an undesirably close spacing.

(4) Row houses. The row house—the standard dwelling type in several European countries and in many American cities—is characterized by great economy in the use of land, moderate construction cost, and low maintenance and operating cost for management and tenants. It gives each family its own home and the opportunity of developing a plot of land for its own use. The economy of a row-house plan obviously derives from the length of the rows, although the per-unit saving diminishes with the length of the building. The economic advantage of a long building results in part from the elimination of end walls, but there are also savings in land, utilities, and walks. Row houses are not adaptable to steep contours except by heavy cutting; ordinarily, buildings should tend to parallel the contours, since longitudinal slopes can only be accommodated by costly breaks of floor level. In the organization of a row-house plan an effort should be made to avoid movements of traffic in any considerable volume parallel to the rows. If the movement of vehicles is restricted to channels lying at the ends of the buildings, the space between the buildings, in close contact with dwelling units, is left free for the safe and comfortable use of the tenants. Row houses may be assembled in many patterns. In general these fall into two types—court plans and parallel row plans. Each of these has advantages. A court layout may attain spaciousness of effect and esthetically satisfying enclosed areas. When the rows are predominantly parallel, the distance from row to row will be somewhat less than the average width of a court, but the longitudinal views will be longer. It is obvious that when a particular orientation to sun or prevailing wind is strongly favored, such orientation must result in predominantly parallel rows. The parallel row plan usually facilitates a simple and practical servicing scheme in which all units are handled uniformly. A court plan can seldom be arranged without traffic routes parallel to some of the buildings. Two-story row houses can accommodate economically families requiring 4½- or 5½-room units. Units of 3½ rooms or less are best handled as two-story flats or as one-story rows.

(i) Recreation. The extent of the project's responsibility for providing recreational facilities and the type of facilities required will vary with the following factors:

(1) Recreational resources within the community. Existing programs and facilities, and available leadership in the neighborhood surrounding the project should be surveyed and evaluated, in order to avoid duplication and to integrate the project with the facilities, existing or proposed, of the larger community. The planner of the project is then in a position to know the extent to which the project must assume responsibility for supplementing available services.

(2) The size of the project. This influences the amount of formal supervision possible, which, in turn, determines the location and equipment of the major play areas.

(3) Type and arrangement of buildings. The density of population of the development and the type of dwelling units will influence the kind and extent of recreational facilities required. Apartments, lacking private yards, require a very different type of development from that suitable to row houses or flats.

(4) The type of community in which the project is located. In a city it is desirable to provide larger recreation areas than may be necessary in suburbs and small towns, although high land costs usually restrict the amount of land that can be allocated for recreation purposes and thus make a more intensive layout necessary.

(5) Natural recreational resources within the project site. A skillful use of existing features on the site (water, hills, trees, etc.) may materially affect the character and influence the cost of the facilities provided. Detailed technical considerations in the design of recreational facilities are presented separately in Part III which follows.

(j) Relation of buildings to contours. Plans should always be studied over a topographic map of the site. Even though the land may be so flat that topography is not an essential factor, the grouping of buildings must be studied with respect to surface drainage. If there is any marked variety in elevation, a correlation of the site plan with the topography results in economy of first cost and maintenance, particularly in relation to sewer and drainage lines; and assures convenience in use, for example, by avoiding steep slopes in open spaces or steps in walks. An intelligent use of topographic variations also tends to give a plan individuality. A very steep or broken site may result in excessive development cost unless dwelling spaces or basements can be introduced which utilize the excess walls on the lower side of the buildings. On a moderate slope the rows of buildings should normally run parallel to the contour lines. By a careful study of cross sections it can be determined whether to draw two rows close together along their entrance sides, leaving most of the slope to be taken up in the wider garden areas, or to concentrate all the garden area on one side of each row, usually uphill, with only a walk on the other side giving access to the entrance front of the houses.

(k) Preservation of trees and buildings. Existing trees should always be shown in topographic surveys and an effort made to preserve a reasonable number of them. A few old trees add much charm to a group of buildings and the slight variations made in the plan in order to save them may add a pleasing informality to the appearance of the project. If the site is built up, some of the existing buildings may be worth saving. An imaginative handling of the design may make of an old building a very welcome note of variety.

(l) Economy of utilities layout. Since a scattered or widespread layout of sewers, water, gas, and electric lines will increase both initial and maintenance costs, close-knit planning of utility systems is mandatory. Lines should ordinarily be located in streets or drives for ready accessibility, but may run elsewhere when required by topography or economy of layout.

(m) Spacing of buildings. When buildings lie parallel, the following spacing may be regarded as minimum:

| | Feet |
|---|---|
| 1-story | 50 |
| 2-story | 55 |
| 3-story | 60 |
| 4-story | 65 |
| 6-story | 75 |

These distances may be decreased slightly at one side of a building if they are increased at the other. Thus, when generous spacing is justified (where land is cheap and large gardens are desired), two-story row houses may be arranged with a center-to-center spacing of 90 feet, giving alternate open spaces between rows of approximately 50 and 75 feet, or 55 and 70 feet. End-to-end distances may be half these dimensions if end windows are of secondary importance. In general, concentration of buildings in zones with servicing facilities (such as a public street) on one side and an open play area on the other is desirable to reduce site-development cost and maintenance. When topography and the shape of the tract are favorable, this type of building arrangement is economical, and does not increase the density of the project as a whole.

(n) Orientation. Orientation to sun and prevailing summer breezes should always be considered. Latitude largely determines the former, while local conditions largely determine the latter. Orientation to sun is most successful when it makes sunshine available in the kitchen in the morning, especially in winter, and provides for some sunshine in the living room in the afternoon. It is obviously impossible to get ideal orientation in all units if the houses face each other in parallel rows, but it is better to have the sunlight available, even if not in the preferred room at the preferred time, than to have no sunlight. The fact that people will live in badly oriented houses or apartments should not encourage the planner to ignore sunlight. Since men are usually away from home during the day they are less likely than women to appreciate the importance of orientation. Most women, even though they fail to arrive at specific opinions concerning preferable exposures, do recognize one room or apartment as being more "cheerful" than another. Although no absolute rule can be made because of the great variety in local conditions, certain guiding ideas are well established. For example, it is generally agreed that in the North row-house or apartment buildings should not be laid out on either a true north-south line or a true east-west line. The north-south line does give sunlight to all the rooms every day, but deprives them of any appreciable amount of it during the middle of the day, a loss which is important during the winter months. Further, this orientation exposes the west wall of the building to excessive heat during the summer. An east-west alignment does not permit the ground just north of the building to get sunshine in winter; it is generally agreed, in the North, that the north side of a building which runs east-west is a disagreeable place in winter and early spring. An angle of approximately thirty degrees off the east-west line is required to enable the early spring sun to melt the snow and dry the ground on the northerly side of a house in the northern part of the country; where the winters are shorter and there is less snow this approximate angle diminishes, until in the extreme South an east-west alignment is usually preferred. Under some conditions insolation, the sun's heat, becomes an important factor, both positively in autumn, winter, and spring, and negatively in summer. This factor, considered by itself, favors a southerly aspect in winter and a southwest aspect in summer—the building lying on a line running from northwest to southeast. Local atmospheric conditions may also bear on desirability of orientation, as in the vicinity of New York, where the frequency of morning mists makes a southwesterly aspect the sunniest. Orientation, then, is a matter of compromise between conflicting factors. Where sunlight on the ground around a building is important, and where the psychological value of morning sunlight is given full weight, a location with the length of the building lying northeast-southwest, at an angle between 30 to 60 degrees off north, is probably the best for the Northern States. The axis swings toward east-west as one goes south. A secondary favorable zone (giving early afternoon sun in winter and good protection from afternoon sun in summer) lies in the northwest-southeast quadrants, but the line of the buildings must not swing more than 15 or 20 degrees from the east-west line.

(o) Servicing. Access to the various units of a project must be provided for deliveries, particularly of fuel, and for garbage or ash collection. These will influence the path and interior road system and to some extent the type of pattern of the site plan. In turn, the choice of dwelling type, heating system, and other services will determine the paths and roads. Often a choice must be made, in row-house projects, between facing the living room or the kitchen on the street or yard, and between facing one or the other on a more sunny side. Such a choice will generally be determined by whether it is preferable to receive visitors through the kitchen, to remove garbage through the living room, or to provide a dual path system. In apartment-house projects, access to perambulator and incinerator rooms is important. The location of repair shop and storage rooms (both project and tenant) must be considered in relation to roads and paths. The extent and type of vehicular access required will therefore vary with the type of heating system, method of garbage collection, and with the types of dwellings. For utmost simplicity in construction and operation, access to two rows of houses should ideally be concentrated along a single channel. This means all visitors, deliverymen, the postman, and even the garbage collector, will come to one entrance to the house, usually by a drive or walk serving a pair of rows. The opposite or garden side of the house may then open upon a strictly private yard. This scheme concentrates paving where it is most needed, and gives complete privacy to the opposite side of the house and its adjoining open space. This ideal, however, can seldom be realized because the design of the dwelling plan, or the requirements of orientation, utilities, and street design, may necessitate other solutions which, when all elements are considered, are both cheaper and more livable. In all instances, whatever form the plan takes, the site planner must find a better arrangement than the old-fashioned layout for row houses with a street in front and an alley behind.

(p) Type of heating system. The choice of heating system—whether central plant, group plant, or individual—will directly affect the distances between buildings, and the plan of vehicular access. Where each house is heated separately by an individual plant using either coal or wood, the service drive must be located within 15 feet of the dwelling, the maximum distance for delivery of coal by chute, and for removal of ashes. Where oil or gas-fired individual heaters are used, no such limiting condition is placed on the location of dwelling units. Where group central plants are used, the building containing the plant should be near a paved road. This may perhaps be an apartment building with a basement, in which laundries and drying rooms may be placed adjacent to the boiler room. Central heating plants require relatively close organization of the site plan for economical distribution, but do not require vehicular access to any building other than that containing the plant. This should be located at a low point near the edge of the project, preferably at a point where the wind will blow smoke away from the dwellings.

(q) System of garbage collection and removal. Garbage and trash removal methods are a limiting element in the design, and should be defined and incorporated in the site plan. This does not mean that garbage and trash disposal arrangements must always be the most economical or most convenient for the tenant in every dwelling unit without regard to other considerations, but does mean that a careful balance must be established between this and other requirements in the site plan. Preliminary to development of the site plan, the local authority should consult with the local agency having jurisdiction over the removal of garbage and trash in order to determine what service may be made available. Existing operating conditions should be determined, i. e., frequency of garbage and trash collection during the various seasons of the year; acceptance of incinerated material; the distance from the curb that employees of the collection agency will go to pick up cans, and the street layout required to permit collections; and local requirements for the separation of types of refuse. Where collection and disposal are not established municipal services, the fees for service and the basis upon which they are set should be determined, as well as any other special conditions which must be considered in order to design for continuously satisfactory service. Garbage may be collected from the yards or apartment doors in the usual way; it may be taken by the tenants to large pails at collection stations on vehicular ways; or it may be carried to group incinerators. Where incinerators are used in apartment stair halls, it is desirable to provide access for wheeled hand trucks directly to the incinerators. Wherever possible, this access should be by ramps instead of steps. Where collection station or group incinerator systems are used, local custom and climatic conditions should determine the maximum distance which tenants are expected to walk in order to dispose of garbage. The stations should be located conveniently for collection along a service drive and should be large enough to accommodate one garbage and one trash can for every two families serviced. Where sunken containers, or individual cans kept near the service doors, are used (generally in row-house plans), service drives should be provided between rows of buildings for economical operation. In some instances the "front" or street side of the dwelling may be used for this purpose, if the collection agency will collect directly from these points, thereby eliminating project labor. In general, provisions for this essential service should be considered practically, without too much regard for conventional proprieties. Tenants may be expected to carry garbage out by way of the living room and to keep a pail in the "front" yard if economy in drives, walks, or operation will result.

(r) Streets and parking spaces. For purposes of economy and utility, the design of streets should be closely related to the particular function each street will perform. Many residential streets and their utility layouts are wastefully oversized because they are designed to meet the supposed future requirements of business or industry. In a large project where the land is in single ownership and may be expected to remain in residential use for many years, the conditions surrounding a street within the project may be predetermined and fixed. New streets within a project should be planned for dedication to the municipality in order to relieve the project of their maintenance and to provide public space for utility installation. They should be planned economically, but must be adequate in width to serve the anticipated traffic, to permit easy circulation and safe driving, and, in many instances, to afford parking space on one or both sides. Existing streets should be retained if present and future economy is served thereby. However, existing streets are often unnecessarily wide or long for the needs of the project and the value of the area gained by their closing may exceed the value to the project of the existing improvements. Direct vehicular access to the entrance of each building is unnecessary, but driveways should be a reasonable distance from all buildings. Only in exceptional cases should 200 feet be exceeded. Streets and driveways should be arranged to permit easy access to all fire hydrants by fire-fighting equipment. This should be checked with the requirements of the local fire department. Some service roads may be planned for use only at certain times, and the entrance barred by removable posts or chains. Preferred widths (in curb-to-curb dimensions) are:

One-way restricted service, 9 or 10 feet.

Two-way lane, no parking, 16 or 18 feet.

Two-way lane, parallel parking on one side, 18 or 20 feet.

Two-way lane, parallel parking on both sides, 26 feet.

Two-way road, parallel parking on both sides, 34 or 36 feet.

Two-way road, diagonal parking on one side, 36 feet.

Two-way road, diagonal parking on both sides, 45 feet.

Two-way road, perpendicular parking on one side, 36 to 40 feet.

Two-way road, perpendicular parking on both sides, 54 to 60 feet.

Provision of parking area for the cars of tenants must be made. The ratio of car ownership, as a basis for planning, must be judged independently in each case, and may vary from nearly zero in a New York City apartment project to nearly a hundred percent in Detroit. Where the ratio of car ownership is apt to increase, space should be reserved for possible future expansion of car ownership. It does not seem feasible to provide garages, or even open sheds, under the present program. Since cars owned by low-income tenants are likely to stand unused for considerable periods, especially in winter, curb-parking along perimeter streets and project drives may prove unsatisfactory. Moreover, all-night parking is widely recognized as a nuisance; most cities have ordinances limiting such parking or prohibiting it, and opposition to this use of streets is likely to increase with time. The most acceptable alternative, therefore, is off-street parking in parking lots or courts. All projects should be planned initially with satisfactory provision for parking tenant-owned cars. The preferable location for off-street parking areas is around the boundaries of the project, where the parking lots fall between the housing units, and for example, a noisy thoroughfare. In a small project the best solution may be a single parking lot placed near the administrative offices or the heating plant, with only one entrance to the lot, so that some degree of supervision may be exercised. Where parking lots or drives are close to play spaces, substantial fencing must be used which will afford the greatest measure of protection to children at play.

(s) Laundry drying. In row houses or flats with private yards, individual provision for clothes-drying can be made. Where it is not possible to give private yards to all the tenants, common provision for outdoor drying of laundry must be made. Group drying yards should contain a minimum of 60 feet, preferably 70 to 75 feet of line, and may be arranged with two lines placed 18 inches apart and 2 to 3 feet between each pair. Such yards may be used as play spaces in the evenings.*† [Par. II]

§ 635.3 The design and treatment of open areas for recreation purposes—(a) Facilities for small children. Children of preschool age are best provided for in groups separate from older children; since they are dependent on others for care, areas for their use may effectively be combined with sitting areas for adults. In determining the distribution and size of play lots for young children, various arrangements are feasible. A number of relatively small, decentralized areas located conveniently for supervision by parents may be provided, or a few larger areas, or, in some projects, one centralized area with facilities for water play. The most desirable plan includes a combination of these, i. e., a number of small play spaces, each serving a group of buildings in the immediate vicinity, and one larger area designed for supervised play for many of the children of the project. This central area may sometimes be combined with the playground for older children and generally includes a wading pool or a shower basin. The play space should always be planned so that the child will not have to cross traffic drives and parking areas to reach it, and should preferably not be adjacent to parking areas. Where play lots are located near drives or parking areas, they must be fenced, as children have little thought for safety while playing and will run into traffic to chase a ball. In spotting such play lots in the site plan, the planner may check the adequacy of the space provided against the number of children who are expected to use it. For this purpose, data relating to family composition in existing projects are more useful than United States census figures, as low-rent housing projects have a consistently higher percentage of children than the population as a whole. Existing Federal projects average 0.77 children under 6 years of age per average 4-room unit; USHA-aided projects may be expected to show an equal or greater child population. In checking the adequacy of a play space immediately related to a group of dwellings, the figure of 40 to 50 square feet of space per child may be used. This figure should not, however, be used as a basis for determining the total amount of space required for play lots in a project. To illustrate the application of these data, let us assume that the site planner must provide at a certain place in his plan space for the preschool age children of 50 families. These families live in flats and row houses, and will have direct and convenient access to the spot. There will presumably be from 35 to 40 children under 6 years of age in the group. Of these, about 10 will be in the baby-carriage stage, so that probably no more than 30 will actually play in the space at any particular time. An open area of 1,200 square feet, plus room for 8 or 10 baby carriages and 4 or 5 benches, will provide adequate space for the children of the immediate vicinity. These areas are designed for operation without supervision except that given by the mothers or older children. They commonly provide a hard-surfaced area; a sand box and a soft or natural surfaced area; and a paved area with benches shaded by trees. The hard-surfaced area is almost essential for baby buggies and for play with wheel-toys and, in addition, provides a fast-drying surface on which a baby pen may be set directly after a rain. Natural soil is ideal for digging, jumping, and running for the 3- or 4-year-old child. It requires some maintenance (raking and filling-in), and some precaution must be taken to keep it from spreading into the surrounding area, such as edging it with brick or stout hedge. Favored orientation for these spaces is that which provides sunlight in spring and fall, preferably in the afternoon, and shade in summer.

(b) Water play. Facilities for water play must be designed with initial and maintenance costs always in mind. If the construction of even a small wading pool is an excessive burden where very low rents must be reached, the use of spray showers on a bituminous area properly sloped for drainage will provide a reasonably satisfactory substitute. Wading pools may be constructed in various sizes and shapes, related to the location, the population of the project, and the plans for other use of the space during seasons too cool for wading. Oval or circular pools make a pleasing contrast with the predominantly rectangular forms of the project and are, moreover, easy to keep clean. Where rectangular-shaped pools are used, the bottom should slope up to all four edges, in order to eliminate corners, which are difficult to clean. An area surrounding the pool should be paved with a hard surface, either bituminous or random paving, never with clay, gravel, or grass. This paved area may be as great as 20 feet. Pools should preferably be shallow; a 10-inch depth at the deepest point is recommended as a maximum. The slope from the outer shallow edge to the center deep point should be very gradual for reasons of safety. A gradual slope, moreover, makes possible the use of the pool during cool seasons for volley ball, shuffleboard, dancing, badminton, handball, ring games, paddle tennis, roller skating, etc. (Occasionally pools may be used in winter for ice skating. In such cases, pools should not be filled to the outer edge to prevent damage by pressure of ice on the sides of the pool.) Relatively large pools are sometimes made 40 by 60 feet so as to be used in spring and fall as basketball courts. For proper safety and sanitation in operation, pools should be equipped with an overflow gutter, should have a constant, slight flow of water, and should use some form of chlorination. Overhead showers should be an integral part of the pool.

(c) The common central area. Centralized areas—often placed as points accessible to several courts or groups of buildings—may also be developed in a variety of ways. The objective is to supplement the small play lots with facilities which can be provided economically only on a more centralized basis and which may be useful for a wider range. The area includes a wading pool, encircled by a hard-surfaced area, and benches, shaded by surrounding trees. Although this area is primarily for young children, it may also be adapted to recreation use by older age groups. Play apparatus may be provided, if desirable, in the surfaced area. The design, equipment, and surfacing most suitable to the use of this area should be planned in cooperation with the agency which assumes responsibility for supervision. With no equipment necessary, the area may be used by little children when they cannot go to a nearby playground and by young people and adults for organized or informal play. The entire community may use it for dances, concerts, and other community gatherings. The area may be marked off for various games which require a firm, hard surface. This marking may be designed to afford multiple uses. Little additional equipment is required and this may be portable. Thus, a relatively small space may be developed at small cost to provide recreation for some group of the population at every hour of the day, and during all seasons. Drinking fountains should be provided in central areas for preschool age children; toilets should be provided near any play area from which the children cannot readily reach home.

(d) Playgrounds for older children. Where playgrounds for school-age children are included in the project, the following recommendations are intended as a guide to their design:

(1) Size and distribution. The total area of the playground must be determined by the space requirements of the various activities and these should generally encourage the most intensive use of the space. This area must be related to the number of children who are expected to use it. Experience indicates that nearly all of the children of elementary school age in a community use the playground each day. Existing public-housing projects average 0.75 children of school age per average 4-room unit. This figure may be equalled or exceeded in USHA-aided projects. In addition to the child population of the project, the possible use of the playground by children of the community surrounding the project must be taken into account when estimating the anticipated use of a project playground. Three and a half acres is generally considered to be the minimum area necessary to provide a desirable range of play opportunities for a child population of 100 to 500. In housing projects where space is very limited, some opportunity for vigorous play may be afforded in an area of 70 by 150 feet. This allows for apparatus, free play, and organized games for 100 children actually playing. A larger area should be allowed if more land is available, but this minimum amount of space should always be provided. In general, central location for the playground is convenient for the children, but is not necessary. The playground is best planned away from the dwellings because of the noise factor, but should be so placed that children will not have to cross traffic streets to reach it. Where a community building is included in the project it is logical to connect it directly with the playground so that the use and supervision of indoor and outdoor facilities may be related. If indoor basement playrooms are provided, it is desirable to locate the playground adjacent to one of these.

(2) General design considerations. In all playgrounds, it is wise to plan for games engaging a large number of participants as well as to plan for multiple use of areas, e. g., wading pools used as basketball courts, shuffleboard surfaces used for roller skating and dancing, and surfaces designed for organized games the year round and ice skating in winter. The areas should be arranged for convenience of supervision; to provide for as many different types of play as possible; and to facilitate age grouping of the children. For example, when a playground includes areas for various age groupings, the area for preschool age children should always be situated close to the point of supervision and should be separated from the other areas by benches, planting, or a fence. The space for the next older age group may have an open area, an area with simple equipment such as tables for crafts (if some form of supervision can be arranged), and a sprinkling or wading pool. The space for the next older age group may have an area for paddle tennis, volley ball, shuffleboard, and horshoe pitching; space for such games as handball or basketball for the oldest group may be arranged at the end of the playground farthest removed from supervision. Some form of shelter is desirable and should preferably be provided close to the game areas which require supervision. The shelter may contain space for quiet play in hot or wet weather, toilets, drinking fountain, and storage space for supplies. In the playground, as in other spaces, both sun and shade are necessary. Shade trees may be limited to the periphery of the play areas and to the space reserved for quiet games and apparatus. Trees may be used to advantage to divide one part of the playground from another but they should be arranged carefully in order not to interfere with the placing of the apparatus or with the play activities.

(e) Playground surfaces. The ideal playground may be considered as having three distinctive areas from the standpoint of surface requirements: one is the area for field sports, which requires a surface firm enough to give a secure footing, yet resilient enough to minimize injuries when the players fall; second is the area for court games—such as handball, basketball, paddle tennis, volleyball, and badminton—which needs a hard surface on which the bounce of the ball will be true; third is the play area upon which apparatus is installed, and on which various types of surfacing may be used. Although it is impossible to obtain all the desirable qualities in the same playground surface, any surface must, in general, have the following qualities in order to meet the requirements of function, durability, and economy:

(1) Low cost. Cost of construction and of maintenance must be reasonable.

(2) Utility. The surface should be suitable for a variety of uses under varying weather conditions. Surfaces which cannot be used during several months of the year because of moisture or frost should be avoided.

(3) Resilience. Resilience is usually desirable to reduce shock to the players. However, this quality must be attained without sacrifice of durability, since intensively used surfaces must withstand considerable wear.

(4) Smoothness. Play areas should be free from irregularities and rough spots. This is especially true for games involving the bounce of a ball and also applies to most court games. Since falls while playing are frequent, the surface should have a texture which will reduce cuts and bruises to a minimum.

(5) Quick drainage. Water must drain off quickly without causing erosion of the surface. Subdrainage may be necessary.

(6) Freedom from dust. If the area is unsurfaced the soil should not be so porous that it is neither firm nor free from dust. Where it is impossible to prevent an excess of dust it may be advisable to use dust layers. Surfaces should not injure players' clothing.

(7) Appearance. Surfaces should present a neat aspect. A glaring surface should be avoided in order to minimize eye strain. The experience and advice of local boards of education and recreation agencies will be of great help in selecting the suitable surface for a particular situation. The following general conclusions are based on experience with different types of surfacing in a number of existing low-cost housing projects.

(i) Turf. Turf is wholly impractical for use in play areas in most parts of the country, and is, moreover, unsuitable for year round play. Its use is not recommended.

(ii) Concrete. Concrete, because of its lack of resiliency, is hard on the feet and is abrasive. Large concrete areas are not pleasing in appearance. Although it is easy and inexpensive to maintain, it is relatively expensive initially, and its use is not generally recommended except in limited areas.

(iii) Gravel. Gravel is a desirable surface in areas intended for quiet recreation containing benches and shade trees. It is inexpensive to maintain and very attractive in appearance. Trees planted in graveled areas can grow freely because their roots are allowed to breathe. Gravel has been used successfully in many housing projects and parks in other countries. Children in this country are not accustomed to its use, and therefore have a tendency to throw it around. However, it may be used satisfactorily in small areas in which large trees are to be planted. In order to prevent overflow into surrounding surfaces, hardy shrubs or other material should be used to bound such areas.

(iv) Sand clay. Mixtures of clay with sand or gravel have not proven altogether satisfactory, owing to the difficulty of obtaining the proper proportioning of materials and uniformity of mix. In general, satisfactory performance at low cost is obtained with this material only when a suitable natural mixture is available locally. Otherwise, costs of laboratory control and mechanical mixing will be prohibitively high. Surfaces of this type cannot generally be used when frozen ground is thawing.

(v) Bituminous surfacing. The use of bituminous materials for surfacing playground areas has extended rapidly during the last few years, especially on small intensively used areas, for the following reasons: they can be played upon throughout the year; they can be used immediately after rain; maintenance expense is low; cracks or depressions may be easily patched or repaired; they can be played on with any kind of shoes; they afford an even surface; they permit faster and more accurate play than other surfaces; permanent lines marking boundaries of game areas may be painted on them. Bituminous surfaces have proven most satisfactory for play areas in housing projects, and have been increasingly used by local parks and playground departments. Formulae and methods of laying vary widely from city to city with type of labor and supervision available, type of materials available locally, and type and proximity of mixing plants. Many cities use patented mixes and products which are available locally. Several have experimented to develop a bituminous surface which is both resilient and durable, but no material has yet been found which has these characteristics and which can be produced at a reasonable cost without highly skilled labor or supervision. The basic requirement of bituminous surfacing for play areas is a dense, fine-grained, and smooth topping which is impervious and will not tend to scuff or ravel, and which will minimize injury from falls. A firm base is needed for all bituminous surfaces. Thorough compaction of base and topping is essential. The material should not be used on very small or irregularly shaped areas on which effective power rolling is impracticable. To increase resiliency, sawdust topping and cork-asphalt mixtures have been used experimentally. It is believed that cork-asphalt mixtures offer the more practical possibilities for application in housing projects. City authorities should be consulted in formulating a specification for bituminous surfacing. It is important to specify work which is adapted to local materials, and is similar to surfaces which contractors in the locality are accustomed to laying. Rigid inspection is essential.

(vi) Abandoned street pavements. The use for playground purposes of the existing pavements on vacated streets sometimes appears to offer a means of effecting a saving in project cost. However, if the pavements require resurfacing to eliminate gutters and crown, or if drainage arrangements must be altered materially, the saving becomes almost negligible. Only in exceptional cases is this an advantageous method of providing surfaced recreation area.

(vii) Surfacing under apparatus. Special provision for surfacing is required under and around certain types of apparatus in order to avoid and reduce injury. It is advisable to provide a soft landing pit at the foot of slides. The materials best suited for such use are tanbark, sawdust, shavings, and sand, alone or in combination, or light loam spaded and raked frequently.

(f) Surfacing play lots. A combination of surfaces is desirable for small play areas where several distinct types of play are carried on and the entire area is subjected to intensive use. The natural earth surface warrants consideration for some uses. While objectionable in obvious respects, this surface possesses the important advantages of low cost and of comfort to the users. It may consist of the same material which is placed in the subgrade, compacted and well graded for drainage. Wherever feasible, a bituminous or other hard-surfaced area should be provided, in conjunction with the "soft" areas, for play with wheel-toys and use after rain. A concrete walk surrounding the play area may be useful for wheel-toy activity and should be wide enough to permit two wheel-toys to pass.

(g) Surfacing sitting-out areas. For minor walks (used only by one or two families) and for sitting-out areas, the variety of materials which may be used is governed only by the ingenuity of the designer and local cost factors. Often, as a result of specific local conditions, a particular material, such as brick, some form of random paving, or granite block, may be economically feasible. Brick paving may be used for the sitting areas where costs will permit. Often brick salvaged from demolition on the site may be used for this purpose. The brick should be laid on a light concrete base. Various kinds of stone, flags, or concrete block, either precast or cast on the site, may be used. As an illustration of economical use of materials at hand, in a large eastern city, the parks department and some of the housing projects have used granite block paving salvaged from old streets which were torn up. When this supply was exhausted, the parks department experimented with various types of precast concrete tile and developed an inexpensive tile which permits grass to grow up at random through the joints. Where precast tiles are used, they should be 2 inches thick and bedded on a cushion of sand approximately 4 inches thick. Tile may be of any desired shape, and may be conveniently cast at the site. It will often be found that flagstones are more economical than precast concrete tile, depending on proximity of the site to the sources of supply. For stepping stones cast in place an economical practice is to excavate to a depth of 6 to 7 inches and to the width and length of the desired stepping stone. In this excavation approximately 4 inches of sand may be spread for cushion, and sufficient concrete poured upon this to bring the wearing surface to within one-half inch of the finished grade of the surrounding plot. This will allow the surrounding soil to be compacted around the edges of the stone, and increase the solidity of the bed.*† [Par. III]

§ 635.4 Planting and plant materials.—(a) Trees. In most parts of the country trees should be few in number, since light and air are more valuable than shade in closely built housing groups. A few thriving trees make a better appearance than many which are badly conditioned. In some cases, however, a close row or clump of trees will be more effective and easier to protect and maintain than free-standing specimens. Most of the trees can be placed, either formally or informally, as part of the architectural composition, framing favored views, breaking unfavorable ones, dividing a long space into smaller ones, or producing an effect of closure at one side of a court.

(b) Vines. Most of the current housing construction is in brick and the buildings are simple in mass and detail. In no more pleasant way can the charm of green foliage be brought into a group of such buildings than by the free use of vines. Vines soften the line between ground and building, give variety to long walls, reduce glare, make buildings seem farther away, and help to separate the various planes that are thrown together in vistas through the project. An attractive effect is often produced by planting close-covering vines against the end walls of the buildings, with some vines also on the rear wall; this tends to concentrate attention on the facade of the building. Flowering vines, particularly the herbaceous kinds, give quick results in foliage and color and use little space. If fences are used, a liberal planting of vines near them is desirable.

(c) Shrubs. Planting plans for low-rent housing projects will usually include a smaller proportion of shrubs than is customary in private work. Shrubs are expensive to plant and to maintain during the first years. Later on they may need thinning or replacement. Shrubs should be planted, where possible, in places that are well protected from traffic: close to buildings, or fences, or on steep slopes. To mark lines or points, as to show the outline of a yard, single or widely placed shrubs can be used, but free-standing specimens ought rarely to be planted. When conditions are favorable, the use of local indigenous varieties is recommended. Shrubs should be planted as hedges very sparingly when this use will require careful trimming and maintenance by project labor. Species that make a satisfactory untrimmed hedge, or which can be kept in shape by an annual pruning, ought usually to be preferred. Many people enjoy caring for hedges, which are very often seen even in the poorest parts of many cities. Where local custom is favorable, hedges can be used, in part at least, to mark the boundaries of tenant yards.

(d) Grass and ground covers. In all low-rent housing projects, and particularly in high-density slum-clearance projects in northern cities, the land use must be so complete and intensive that lawns are both impractical and uneconomical. The larger open areas intended for community use must therefore be covered with some kind of pavement; small areas used to divide or delimit these larger areas, and land not suitably located for other use, should be planted with shrubs or with one of the spreading shrubby or herbaceous ground covers, preferably an evergreen species. Areas particularly well suited for ground-cover planting are steep slopes and those spaces, adjacent to buildings, which must be reserved from use in order to give living quarters privacy and quiet. A curb or fence or a row of shrubs will protect these beds from trespassers; the stronger covers and the thorny vines that are commonly used on slopes will need no protection.

(e) Flowers. The plant lists for the initial planting of a housing project may include few "flowers" in the common sense of the word, but after the project is well established it should be rich in annual and herbaceous plants, and the landscape plans must provide places for these. Flowers must therefore be considered for use in both project-maintained and tenant maintained space. It is feasible in most large projects to have one, two, or more flower beds. These should be favorably located, if possible, with regard to sun and atmospheric conditions, and should be visible to the maximum number of people. The size of beds and their number should be small. One small bed, constantly in bloom, is better than acres of so-called gardens full of rank weeds, bare spots, and cast-off cigarette packages. The bed itself is often best surrounded by a coping of concrete or of up-ended bricks, which serves to mark it off from the rest of the open area. The development of flower beds in tenant yards will depend, in large measure, on the policy and plan of the management for advising and assisting tenants in the care and beautification of the yards. This is a consideration for management, not for the planner. However, the core of good tenant-management relations may be just such joint effort toward a common objective. Similarly, flower beds in the project-maintained space may be cared for by groups of tenants. The beauty of a flower bed, or of a group of old trees, which may result from the work and interest of a group of tenants, may symbolize achievement of the basic purpose of the housing program. Community responsibility, pride in the housing project, and an appreciation of good municipal housekeeping can be developed in no better way.*† [Par. IV]

In such cases only the articles covered by the descriptive phraseology of the list will come under consideration for the granting of concessions.

In the event that articles which are at present regarded as classifiable under the descriptions included in the list are excluded therefrom by judicial decision or otherwise prior to the conclusion of the agreement, the list will nevertheless be considered as including such articles.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Food and Drug Administration.

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PURPOSE OF RECEIVING EVIDENCE UPON BASIS OF WHICH REGULATIONS MAY BE PROMULGATED (A) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY, (2) REQUIRING LABEL DECLARATION OF CERTAIN OPTIONAL INGREDIENTS; (B) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF QUALITY, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD QUALITY; (C) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF FILL OF CONTAINER, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD FILL OF CONTAINER; FOR EACH OF THE FOODS COMMONLY KNOWN AS CANNED PEACHES, CANNED APRICOTS, CANNED PEARS, AND CANNED CHERRIES

General Statement

1. In conformity with subsection (e) of Section 701 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act [Section 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U.S.C. 371 (e)], the Secretary of Agriculture on his own initiative published on March 7, 1939, which appeared on page 1143 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, a notice of a public hearing to be held on April 10, 1939, in the South Ballroom, Tenth Floor, Raleigh Hotel, Twelfth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which, in pursuance of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the provisions of Sections 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2) [Secs. 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2), 52 Stat. 1046 and 1047; 21 U.S.C. 341, 343 (g), (2), and 343 (h), (1) and (2)], regulations may be promulgated (a) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity, and (2) requiring the label declaration of certain optional ingredients; (b) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard quality; and (c) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard fill of container; for each of the foods commonly known as canned peaches, canned apricots, canned pears, and canned cherries. The notice contained a proposal, in general terms, for defining and so standardizing each of such foods. John McDill Fox was designated as presiding officer to conduct such hearing. Thereafter, a public hearing was held at the time and place specified, and John McDill Fox acted as presiding officer. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

2. At said hearing the presiding officer announced that he would first hold a hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches.

3. In pursuance of such announcement, a hearing was held for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches, and the hearing was continued with reference to the other proposals, to dates subsequently to be announced.

4. On April 15, 1939, at 9:00 a. m., the hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality and specifying the form and manner of label statement of substandard quality for the food commonly known as canned apricots was convened, and was concluded at 12:15 p. m., on the same date. All interested persons were notified, pursuant to the rules of procedure, of their opportunity to file proposed findings of fact and argument.

5. Within the time announced at the hearing within which interested persons might file written argument, proposed findings of fact, or both, various interested persons filed proposed findings of fact, together with written argument in support thereof, based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing, which, if granted, would modify the proposal contained in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

6. There was controversy with reference to (a) trimming, (b) breakage tolerance, (c) substandard label statements.

7. Testimony was introduced tracing the development of standards with reference to the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906, passed in 1930, and the formulation of a standard of quality under that amendment.

Under the regulation promulgated in 1931, under the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906, the standard of quality for canned apricots read as follows:

"Canned apricots are the normally flavored and normally colored canned food consisting of (1) the normal and uniform sized, tender, unpeeled, mature, unblemished, pitted, unbroken halves of the fruit of the apricot tree, and (2) sugar solution. The weight of the fruit in the container is not less than three-fifths the weight of water which the sealed container will hold at 68 degrees F., except that when necessary to prevent crushing of the fruit, a tolerance not exceeding the weight of three average pieces is allowed. The liquid portion of the finished product reads not less than 16 degrees Brix (read at the proper temperature for the instrument used.)"

In 1932, the standard of quality and condition for canned apricots was promulgated and the requirement for tender units was raised from 80 percent to 90 percent, and that is the requirement of the present McNary-Mapes standard for canned apricots. This was raised to 90 percent because the examination of thousands of cans of apricots showed that 20 percent of hard pieces did not occur in standard apricots; that such liberal tolerance was not needed under commercial conditions. The method for tenderness does not differ from that proposed in Government's Exhibit No. 1, section 27.011, subsection (b), except that in the proposal there is a more detailed description of the method. The present proposal suggests that there be no tolerance for units not tender. From the evidence adduced, it would seem that from observation of samples of the product now on the market and of the product which has been on the market for many years that no tolerance for units not tender is needed by the canner. Therefore, it was the opinion of various witnesses that in the interest of the consumer quality standards should require that all units be tender.

The minimum size requirement under the McNary-Mapes Amendment originally was that units of ⅞ ounce or larger are considered of normal size. With this exception,

"Canned apricots which fail to meet the above standard only in that they consist of unpeeled whole apricots need not bear the low quality legend, if labeled 'whole apricots,' even though the units may fail to meet the requirements for normal size.

"Canned apricots which fail to meet the above standard only in that they consist of uniformly sliced peeled apricots, need not bear the low quality legend if labeled 'sliced peeled apricots.' In such cases, the requirement of 'not less than ⅞ of an ounce in weight' shall be changed to 'not less than 1/20 of an ounce for each unit.'" this requirement was not changed.

The present proposal suggested that there be no requirement for size of whole apricots or slices; that the minimum size for halves be ⅖ ounce, and for quarters, ⅕ ounce. This proposal was based on the data gathered by Government witnesses as to what the existent facts were.

The requirement for uniformity of size under the McNary-Mapes standard, promulgated in 1931, reads as follows:

"The unit shall be considered uniform in size if the transverse diameter of any unit does not vary more than 12½ percent from the corresponding average diameter of the pieces of fruit in the container."

The provision was changed on two occasions. In 1932, the standard was amended so that the requirement was based on weight rather than on diameter, the definition being:

"The unit shall be considered uniform in size if the weight of the piece of largest size in the can shall be not more than 80 percent in excess of the weight of the smallest piece in the can."

The second change occurred in 1937, the definition reading as follows:

"The units are uniform in size, if the weight of the piece of largest size in the can be not more than twice the weight of the smallest piece in the can."

This is the requirement now in effect. The proposal submitted at the hearing was that this factor of uniformity of size be limited to whole apricots, halves, and quarters.

The original requirement for freedom from blemishes under the McNary-Mapes standard, promulgated in 1931, was as follows:

"The fruit shall be considered unblemished if 80 per cent or more of the pieces in the container are free from scabs, bruises, frostbites, sunburn, hail injury, green or brown colorations or other unsightly blemishes, and no piece shows blemishes in excess of 10 per cent of its convex area."

In the amended standard in 1932, the clause, "no piece shows blemishes in excess of 10 per cent of its convex area", was eliminated. Examination of many samples of apricots on the market, as well as study of conditions in canning apricots, showed, according to the testimony, that large blemishes could be easily removed, and, therefore, in the opinion of witnesses, this last clause was found unnecessary. There is no substantial difference in that requirement with reference to blemishes, as amended, from the proposal submitted at this hearing, although certain blemishes are grouped under broader classifications.

The requirement for normal contour or shape in the McNary-Mapes standard is essentially the same as the proposal submitted as a basis for receiving evidence in this hearing. The definition under the McNary-Mapes standard was as follows:

"The fruit shall be considered as unbroken halves when 80 per cent or more of the units are unbroken and not excessively trimmed. Excessive trimming is defined as that amount which destroys the normal shape of the half."

That requirement was not changed insofar as it refers to the normal contour or shape of the fruit, but it does differ from the suggestion with reference to untrimmed units contained in the proposal for this hearing. In the proposal, the requirement for untrimmed units refers to whole apricots, halves, and quarters. It is suggested that there be no tolerance for trimmed units since such units are easily removed and packed separately by the canner, and consultations with consumers have shown the presence of even one unit so trimmed as to destroy its normal contour or shape to be very objectionable.

The requirement for broken units, as defined in the original standard, reads as follows:

"The fruit shall be considered as unbroken halves when 80 per cent or more of the units are unbroken and not excessively trimmed."

The requirement was changed in 1932 by raising the requirement to 90 percent and adding the clause:

"The fruit shall be considered as unbroken halves when 90 per cent or more of the units are unbroken and not excessively trimmed, except that the presence of one broken unit against the cover which may have been broken by the operation of closing the can shall be disregarded."

This requirement is substantially the same as in the present proposal, although worded in a slightly different form. The tolerance for broken units is 5 percent in a container of 20 or more units, with not more than 1 unit in a container of less than 20 units, to be crushed or broken. It would seem necessary to have a slightly larger tolerance in the case of large units because in larger containers more than one unit may easily be crushed when the lid is applied.

In the McNary-Mapes Amendment, certain other factors of quality were included which are not included in the present proposal, namely, that the fruit be normally colored and normally flavored. The McNary-Mapes standard also required a minimum weight of fruit in the container. These considerations are not factors of quality. The weight of the fruit in the container is a factor of fill of container rather than a factor of quality, and, in 1932, it was dropped from the McNary-Mapes standard of quality.

An objective test for determining tenderness was described.

Evidence on the part of the industries recommended (1) that the words "normal contour" be changed to read "normal shape", (2) that the breakage tolerance be changed to read as follows:

"except in the case of mixed pieces, of irregular sizes and shapes, not more than 10 percent of the units in a container of ten or more units, and not more than one unit in a container of less than ten units is crushed or broken (a unit which has lost its normal shape because of ripeness and which bears no mark of crushing shall not be considered to be crushed or broken); but if more than 20 per cent of such units are crushed or broken, such canned apricots shall be considered to be mixed pieces of irregular sizes and shapes, subject to the labeling requirement specified therefor in Section 27.010 (b)",

(3) that a new subparagraph (7) be added, reading as follows:

"If syrup is added, the syrup solution shall be of sufficient strength so that the liquid portion of the finished product reads not less than 16 degrees Brix",

(4) that the words "irregular pieces" should be substituted for "mixed sizes", (5) that a provision should be added following subsection (d) in the form of a new subsection (e), to read as follows:

"If canned apricots meet the standard prescribed in subsection (a), in all respects except that they do not conform to subparagraph (3), the label need not bear the statement 'Below Standard in Quality' nor the alternative statement prescribed in subsection (d) but shall bear in addition to the statements required in 27.010 (b) the statement 'Ungraded for Size'. If canned apricots meet the standard prescribed in subsection (a) in all respects except that they are canned in water, the label need not bear the statement 'Below Standard in Quality' nor the alternative statement prescribed in subsection (d), but shall bear in addition to the statements required in 27.010 (b) the statement 'In Water.' If canned apricots meet the standard prescribed in subsection (a) in all respects except that they are canned in juice, the label need not bear the statement 'Below Standard in Quality' nor the alternative statement prescribed in subsection (d), but shall bear in addition to the statements required in 27.010 (b) the statement 'In Juice.'"

8. Pursuant to the rules of procedure, the presiding officer, therefore, makes this his report and suggests that the Secretary issue the regulation hereinafter set forth and make, on the basis of the substantial evidence of record at the hearing, the findings of fact herein contained as part of the order promulgating and making public such regulation.

Suggested Findings

1. Factors which go to make up quality in canned apricots are tenderness of the apricot ingredient; size of units in the cases of apricot halves and quarters; uniformity of size of units in the cases of whole apricots, halves, and quarters; freedom from blemishes; the shape of the units in the cases of whole apricots, halves, and quarters; and freedom from crushed or broken units. (R. pp. 21–22, 62–63)

2. In canned apricots, the biting or chewing characteristic of the apricot is an index of the quality factor, tenderness. This factor involves the maturity of the apricot and the extent to which it has been cooked. (R. p. 25)

3. Tenderness can be measured objectively by the following method:

So trim a test piece from the unit as to fit, with peel surface up, into a supporting receptacle. If the unit is of different firmness in different parts of its peel surface, trim the piece from the firmest part. If the piece is unpeeled, remove the peel. The top of the receptacle is circular in shape, of 1⅛ inches inside diameter, with vertical sides; or rectangular in shape, ¾ inch by 1 inch inside measurements, with ends vertical and sides sloping downward and joining at the center at a vertical depth of ¾ inch. Use the circular receptacle for testing units of such size that a test piece can be trimmed therefrom to fit it. Use the rectangular receptacle for testing other units. Test no unit from which a test piece with rectangular peel surface at least ½ inch by 1 inch cannot be trimmed. Test the piece by means of a round metal rod 5/16 inch in diameter. To the upper end of the rod is affixed a device to which weight can be added. The rod is held vertically by a support through which it can freely move upward or downward. The lower end of the rod is a plane surface to which the vertical axis of the rod is perpendicular. Adjust the combined weight of the rod and device to 100 grams. Set the receptacle so that the surface of the test piece is held horizontally. Lower the end of the rod to the approximate center of such surface and add weight to the device at a uniform, continuous rate of 12 grams per second until the rod pierces the test piece. Weigh the rod and weighted device. Test all units in containers of 50 units or less, except those units too small for testing or too soft for trimming. Test at least 50 units, taken at random, in containers of more than 50 units; but if less than 50 units are of sufficient size and firmness for testing, test those which are of sufficient size and firmness. (R. pp. 34–36, 63)

4. Canned apricots which are of standard quality, as now on the market, do not contain units not tender. (R. p. 25)

5. The foregoing method outlined in Finding No. 3 is directly correlated with the consensus of consumer opinion of what constitutes tenderness in canned apricots. (R. pp. 37–38)

6. Size of units, as measured by the weight of the unit, is not a factor of quality in canned apricots except in the cases of halves and quarters. (R. pp. 39, 63–64)

7. Canned apricots which are of standard quality have a minimum size for halves and quarters at the present time. (R. pp. 39–40, 63–64) Halves and quarters smaller than such minimum size are commonly packed as substandard apricots at the present time. (R. pp. 39–40)

8. Halves and quarters have a minimum size of ⅖ ounce and ⅕ ounce, respectively. (R. pp. 40, 63–64) These minima are less than the minima adopted by the packers of 99 percent of the canned apricots produced in the United States. (R. pp. 40–41, 63–64)

9. Such weights are determinable as follows: The unit is placed on a screen and the liquid is allowed to drain therefrom for two minutes. The unit is then weighed. (R. pp. 41, 63–64)

10. The smallest and largest apricots are canned whole and each makes a product of high quality. (R. pp. 39, 63–64)

11. Uniformity of size of units is not a factor of quality in canned apricots unless the apricots are whole, halves, or quarters. (R. pp. 41, 64) Uniformity of size of units cannot be controlled under good commercial practice in the case of slices. (R. pp. 41, 64) Discrepancies in size are not objectionable to consumers when the units are small, such as slices. (R. pp. 41, 64) Uniformity of size is obviously not a factor in the quality of the product when the units are mixed pieces of irregular size. (R. pp. 41, 64)

12. Uniformity of size of units in the cases of whole, halves, or quarters is necessary in order to prevent variant numbers of units in servings of desserts and salads on the same table. (R. pp. 41–42, 64)

13. Freedom from blemishes such as scab, hail injury, discoloration, or other abnormalities is a factor of quality in canned apricots. (R. pp. 43, 64, 105–106, 114–116)

14. Such units are of reasonable uniformity of size if the weight of the largest unit is not more than twice the weight of the smallest unit in the container. (R. pp. 42, 64)

15. A tolerance for blemishes is necessary because of small blemishes not apparent in hand sorting as carried out under good commercial practice. (R pp. 43–44, 64) 20 percent of blemished units is a reasonable tolerance. (R. pp. 43–44, 64)

16. Normal contour or shape of the apricot ingredient is a factor of quality in canned apricots if the units are whole, halves, or quarters. (R. pp. 44, 64, 93) Mixed pieces of irregular shapes obviously have no normal shape or contour. (R. pp. 44, 64)

17. When the units are trimmed, normal shape can be preserved. (R. pp. 44, 64) It is possible for the canner to meet this quality factor by discarding all units so trimmed that their normal shape is not preserved. (R. pp. 44–45, 64) Consumers uniformity object to unevenly trimmed units. (R. pp. 45, 64)

18. Freedom from crushed or broken units is a factor of quality in canned apricots. (R. pp. 45, 64) A crushed unit is a unit pressed so as to destroy its normal shape. A broken unit is a unit separated into two or more parts. (R. pp. 45–46, 64) Crushed and broken units are not deliberately packed as canned apricots which are of standard quality at the present time. (R. pp. 46, 64, 111) The concussion resulting from the application of the lid to the can at high speeds under great pressure sometimes breaks or crushes the topmost unit of well-filled containers in good commercial practice. (R. pp. 46–47, 64, 112) For this reason, a tolerance for crushed and broken units is necessary, and a tolerance of 5 percent for containers of more than 20 units or of 1 unit for containers of less than 20 units is reasonable. (R. pp. 46–47, 64, 109–112)

19. A canner employing good commercial practice can meet each of the foregoing factors of quality in canned apricots without difficulty. (R. pp. 47–48, 64–65)

20. Each factor of quality takes into consideration and makes due allowance for the differing characteristics of the several varieties of apricots. Some varieties can meet the various factors more easily than others, but all varieties can meet the foregoing factors of quality without difficulty under good commercial practice. (R. pp. 48–49, 65)

21. Each of the factors hereinbefore referred to has been in effect since 1931 in the standards of quality for canned apricots promulgated pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906. (R. pp. 20, 21, 22–23)

22. There has been no substantial change in the provision with respect to tenderness since the promulgation of such original standard in 1931, except that the tolerance for units not tender was reduced from 20 percent to 10 percent in 1932. (R. pp. 23–24)

23. There is no substantial difference between the measure of tenderness as referred to herein and the present McNary-Mapes standard except that the tolerance of 10 percent of units not tender is eliminated. (R. pp. 24–25) Elimination of such tolerance is justified because samples of canned apricots which are of standard quality as now on the market have shown no units to be present that are not tender. (R. p. 25)

24. The objective method of determining tenderness has been the same throughout the history of such standards promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment and is an accurate and reliable method for determining tenderness. (R. p. 24)

25. There has been no change in the provisions of the standards promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment for minimum size of units. (R. p. 26)

26. Small slices occur inadvertently, and it is impossible to eliminate them under good commercial practice. (R. pp. 39, 63–64) The smallest and largest apricots are canned whole and each makes a desirable product of high quality. (R. pp. 39, 63–64) ⅔ ounce and ⅛ ounce more truly represent the respective minimum sizes of normal sized halves and quarters than ⅜ ounce and 3/16 ounce. (R. pp. 26–27)

27. There have been no changes in the standards promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment with respect to uniformity of size of units except that in 1932 such uniformity was placed upon a weight rather than upon a size basis, and except that in 1937 the degree of uniformity was reduced from a variation of 80 percent to 100 percent. (R. pp. 27–28)

28. No variation from the present McNary-Mapes Amendment with respect to uniformity is desirable, except that the factor of uniformity of size be limited to whole apricots, halves, and quarters. (R. p. 29)

29. The original standard of quality for canned apricots promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment has not been changed with respect to the factor of freedom from blemishes except that in 1932 the clause, "no piece shows blemishes in excess of 10 per cent of its convex area", was eliminated. (R. pp. 29–30)

30. It is not desirable to change the present McNary-Mapes standard with respect to freedom from blemishes. (R. p. 30)

31. There have been no changes in the original requirement of the McNary-Mapes standards with respect to the normal shape of the apricot units. (R. p. 30)

32. No changes in the present McNary-Mapes standard are desirable except the elimination of the tolerance for excessively trimmed units. The elimination of the tolerance is reasonable because canners under good commercial practice can and do remove all excessively trimmed units prior to canning. Consumers object to the presence of even one unit so trimmed as to destroy its normal shape. (R. p. 31)

33. There have been no changes in the original McNary-Mapes standard with respect to broken units except that the tolerance was reduced in 1932 from 20 percent to 10 percent of broken units and a proviso added to permit of one crushed unit resulting from the application of the lid. (R. pp. 31–32)

34. All of the foregoing findings of fact are reasonable and will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer. (R. pp. 49, 50)

35. It is reasonable and it will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer to have a simple and understandable statement of substandard quality placed on the label. "Below Standard in Quality", qualified by an explanation wherein the product falls below standard in quality, is such a statement. (R. pp. 51–52, 73–74) If the apricots are not tender, the qualifying statement "Not Tender" furnishes an accurate explanation of the reason the product is below standard. Likewise, the qualifying statement "Small Halves", or "Small Quarters", if under minimum size; "Mixed Sizes", if not of uniform size; "Blemishes", if over the tolerance for blemishes; "Unevenly Trimmed", if trimmed to destroy normal shape; "Partly Crushed or Broken", if over the tolerance for crushed or broken units; respectively furnish accurate explanations of the reason the product is below standard. (R. pp. 51–52, 95)

36. It is reasonable and it will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer to have such statement immediately and conspicuously precede or follow, without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, the name "Apricots", together with words and statements required or authorized to appear with such name by the definition and standard of identity for canned apricots. (R. p. 52)

37. Such label requirements for apricots of substandard quality would not be practicable under good commercial practices in instances such as where the product fell below the standard in several respects. (R. p. 53)

38. In such event, the statement "Below Standard in Quality Good Food—Not High Grade" would be reasonable, would be informative to the consumer, and would promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer. (R. p. 53)

39. It is reasonable and it would promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer to have such statement printed in two lines of Cheltenham bold condensed caps, the words "Below Standard in Quality" to constitute the first line, and the second to immediately follow. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, such type of the first line should be 12-point, and the second, 8-point. If such quantity is 1 pound or more, such type of the first line should be 14-point, and of the second, 10-point. Such statement should be enclosed within lines, not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle. Such statement, with enclosing lines, should be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and should be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Apricots" or any pictorial representation of an apricot is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase. (R. pp. 74–76)

40. The wording of this statement differs from the statement required under the present McNary-Mapes standard only in the elimination of the explanation "U. S.", and a substitution of "Below Standard in Quality" for "Below Standard." (R. p. 76) The explanation "U. S." on labels has been found to be misleading to consumers. (R. pp. 77–78) The foregoing findings for manner and form of the label statement differ from the present McNary-Mapes requirements with respect to the elimination of certain technical requirements. (R. pp. 75–76)

Suggested Conclusion in the Form of a Regulation

Upon the basis of the foregoing findings of fact, the following reasonable standard of quality and form and manner of label statement of substandard quality for the food commonly known as canned apricots is hereby suggested to be promulgated as a regulation:

§ 27.011 Canned apricots—Quality; label statement of substandard quality. (a) The standard of quality for canned apricots is as follows:

(1) All units tested in accordance with the method prescribed in subsection (b) are pierced by a weight of not more than 300 grams;

(2) In the cases of halves and quarters, the weight of each unit is not less than ⅔ ounce and ⅛ ounce respectively;

(3) In the cases of whole apricots, halves, and quarters, the weight of the largest unit in the container is not more than twice the weight of the smallest unit therein;

(4) Not more than 20 percent of the units in the container are blemished with scab, hail injury, discloration, or other abnormality;

(5) In the cases of whole apricots, halves, and quarters, all units are untrimmed, or are so trimmed as to preserve normal contour; and

(6) Except in the case of mixed pieces of irregular sizes and shapes, not more than 5 percent of the units in a container of 20 or more units, and not more than one unit in a container of less than 20 units, is crushed or broken (a unit which has lost its normal contour because of ripeness, and which bears no mark of crushing, shall not be considered to be crushed or broken);

(b) Canned apricots shall be tested by the following method to determine whether or not they meet the requirements of clause (1) of subsection (a):

So trim a test piece from the unit as to fit, with peel surface up, into a supporting receptacle. If the unit is of different firmness in different parts of its peel surface, trim the piece from the firmest part. If the piece is unpeeled, remove the peel. The top of the receptacle is circular in shape, of 1⅛ inches inside diameter, with vertical sides; or rectangular in shape, ¾ inch by 1 inch inside measurements, with ends vertical and sides sloping downward and joining at the center at a vertical depth of ¾ inch. Use the circular receptacle for testing units of such size that a test piece can be trimmed therefrom to fit it. Use the rectangular receptacle for testing other units. Test no unit from which a test piece with rectangular peel surface at least ½ inch by 1 inch cannot be trimmed. Test the piece by means of a round metal rod 1/16 inch in diameter. To the upper end of the rod is affixed a device to which weight can be added. The rod is held vertically by a support through which it can freely move upward or downward. The lower end of the rod is a plane surface to which the vertical axis of the rod is perpendicular. Adjust the combined weight of the rod and device to 100 grams. Set the receptacle so that the surface of the test piece is held horizontally. Lower the end of the rod to the approximate center of such surface, and add weight to the device at a uniform, continuous rate of 12 grams per second until the rod pierces the test piece. Weigh the rod and weighted device. Test all units in containers of 50 units or less, except those units too small for testing or too soft for trimming. Test at least 50 units, taken at random, in containers of more than 50 units; but if less than 50 units are of sufficient size and firmness for testing, test those which are of sufficient size and firmness.

(c) If the quality of canned apricots falls below the standard prescribed by subsection (a), the label [unless it bears the statement specified in subsection (d)] shall bear the statement "Below Standard in Quality ------", the blank to be filled in with the word or words specified after the corresponding number of each clause of subsection (a) which such canned apricots fail to meet, as follows: (1) "Not Tender"; (2) "Small Halves", or "Small Quarters", as the case may be; (3) "Mixed Sizes"; (4) "Blemished"; (5) "Unevenly Trimmed"; (6) "Partly Crushed or Broken". Such statement shall immediately and conspicuously precede or follow, without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, the name "Apricots" and the words and statements required or authorized to appear with such name by section 27.010 (b).

(d) In lieu of the statement or statements specified in subsection (c), the label may bear the statement, "Below Standard in Quality Good Food—Not High Grade," printed in two lines of Cheltenham bold condensed caps. The words "Below Standard in Quality" shall constitute the first line, and the second line shall immediately follow. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than one pound, the type of the first line shall be 12-point, and of the second, 8-point. If such quantity is one pound or more, the type of the first line shall be 14-point, and of the second 10-point. Such statement shall be enclosed within lines, not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle. Such statement, with enclosing lines, shall be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and shall be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Apricots" or any pictorial representation of an apricot is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase.

REPORT OF PRESIDING OFFICER, SUGGESTED FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS AND ORDER RELATIVE TO FILL OF CONTAINER OF CANNED APRICOTS

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PURPOSE OF RECEIVING EVIDENCE UPON BASIS OF WHICH REGULATIONS MAY BE PROMULGATED (A) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY, (2) REQUIRING LABEL DECLARATION OF CERTAIN OPTIONAL INGREDIENTS; (B) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF QUALITY, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD QUALITY; (C) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF FILL OF CONTAINER, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD FILL OF CONTAINER; FOR EACH OF THE FOODS COMMONLY KNOWN AS CANNED PEACHES, CANNED APRICOTS, CANNED PEARS AND CANNED CHERRIES

General Statement

1. In conformity with subsection (e) of Section 701 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act [Section 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U.S.C. 371 (e)], the Secretary of Agriculture on his own initiative published on March 7, 1939, which appeared on page 1143 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, a notice of a public hearing to be held on April 10, 1939, in the South Ballroom, Tenth Floor, Raleigh Hotel, Twelfth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which, in pursuance of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the provisions of Sections 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2) [Secs. 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2), 52 Stat. 1046 and 1047; 21 U.S.C. 341, 343 (g), (2), and 343 (h), (1) and (2)], regulations may be promulgated (a) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity, and (2) requiring the label declaration of certain optional ingredients; (b) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard quality; and (c) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard fill of container; for each of the foods commonly known as canned peaches, canned apricots, canned pears, and canned cherries. The notice contained a proposal, in general terms, for defining and so standardizing each of such foods. John McDill Fox was designated as presiding officer to conduct such hearing. Thereafter, a public hearing was held at the time and place specified, and John McDill Fox acted as presiding officer. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

2. At said hearing the presiding officer announced that he would first hold a hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches.

3. In pursuance of such announcement, a hearing was held for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches, and the hearing was continued with reference to the other proposals, to dates subsequently to be announced.

4. On April 15, 1939, at 12:15 p. m., the hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container and specifying the form and manner of label statement of substandard fill of container for the food commonly known as canned apricots was convened, and was concluded at 3 p. m., on the same day. All interested persons were notified, pursuant to the rules of procedure, of their opportunity to file proposed findings of fact and written argument.

5. Within the time announced at the hearing within which interested persons might file proposed findings of fact, written argument, or both, various interested persons filed proposed findings of fact, together with written argument in support thereof, based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing.

6. Pursuant to the rules of procedure, the presiding officer, therefore, makes this his report and suggests that the Secretary issue the regulation hereinafter set forth and make, on the basis of the substantial evidence of record at the hearing; the findings of fact herein contained as part of the order promulgating and making public such regulation.

Suggested Findings

1. The quantity of the optional apricot ingredient which can be placed in a container varies, depending upon the method of packing and upon the shape, size, degree of maturity, and specific gravity of the units of the optional apricot ingredient. (R. pp. 24, 25, 36–38)

2. With the exception of comparatively few slack filled cans, canned apricots as they appear on the market at the present time contain the maximum quantity of the optional apricot ingredient which, using reasonably good factory practice, can be placed and sealed in each can and processed by heat to prevent spoilage, without crushing or breaking the apricot units. (R. pp. 24, 26, 27, 36–38)

3. The maximum quantity of the optional apricot ingredient varies, depending on the size of the container, the method of packing, the form, size, firmness of units, the necessity for having sufficient liquid to insure proper processing, and other factors. (R. pp. 24, 25, 36–38)

4. The can should contain the greatest number of apricot units the canner can place therein and properly seal and process. (R. pp. 25, 26, 27, 36–38)

5. Knowing the form, shape, size, degree of maturity, and comparative specific gravity of the apricot units in any lot being canned, canners know the greatest amount of apricot units which can be placed in a can of any given size without damage, and canners employ inspectors to insure proper filling by packers. (R. pp. 25, 30, 31)

6. None of the various methods which have been studied for objective measurements of fill have shown any uniform correlation between the quantity of apricot units put in and the quantity of apricot units cut out. Assurance to the consumer of a can full of apricots can be obtained only by a requirement as to the quantity put in the container. (R. pp. 24, 38, 44, 51, 54–55)

7. It is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that canned apricots falling below a standard of fill of container bear on the label a simple and understandable statement of that fact. "Below Standard in Fill" is such a statement. (R. p. 27)

8. If canned apricots fall below a standard of fill of container, it is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that the label bear the statement "Below Standard in Fill", printed in Cheltenham bold condensed caps. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the statement should be in 12-point type; if such quantity is 1 pound or more, the statement should be in 14-point type. Such statement should be enclosed within lines not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle; but if the apricots also fall below the standard of quality for canned apricots and bear the label statement of substandard quality specified in the standard of quality for canned apricots, both statements (one following the other) may be enclosed within the same rectangle. Such statement or statements, with enclosing lines, should be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and should be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Apricots" or any pictorial representation of an apricot is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase. (R. pp. 27, 28)

9. The substandard statement now required by the regulations issued pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment is "Below U. S. Standard" followed by "Slack Fill", in the case of excess head space; and by the statement "Contains Excessive Added Liquid", in the case of excessive packing medium. (R. p. 28) These statements are required to appear in substantially the same form as herein proposed. (R. p. 29)

10. The phrase "Below Standard", as proposed, differs from the present requirement "Below U. S. Standard". The term "U. S." on a food product has been found to imply to consumers that the product has been packed under the supervision of the U. S. Government. The phrase "In Fill", as proposed, differs from the present requirement of "Slack Fill" or "Contains Excessive Added Liquid". The standard herein proposed is based on a can filled to its maximum capacity with fruit. If adopted and met, the headspace will not be excessive, nor will there be excessive liquid present. If not met, the expression "Below Standard in Fill" is simpler and more understandable in describing a product which fails to meet a standard based on the amount of apricots present rather than on the amount of liquid and apricots or the quantity of liquid present. (R. pp. 29, 30)

Upon the basis of the forgoing findings of fact, the following reasonable standard of fill of container and the form and manner of label statement of substandard fill of container for the food commonly known as canned apricots is hereby suggested to be promulgated as a regulation:

§ 27.012 Canned apricots—Fill of container; label statement of substandard fill. (a) The standard of fill of container for canned apricots is the maximum quantity of the optional apricot ingredient which can be sealed in the container and processed by heat to prevent spoilage, without crushing or breaking such ingredient.

(b) If canned apricots fall below the standard of fill of container prescribed in subsection (a), the label shall bear the statement "Below Standard in Fill", printed in Cheltenham bold condensed caps. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the statement shall be in 12-point type; if such quantity is 1 pound or more, the statement shall be in 14-point type. Such statement shall be enclosed within lines, not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle; but if the statement specified in Section 27.011 (d) is also used, both statement (one following the other) may be enclosed within the same rectangle. Such statement or statements, with enclosing lines, shall be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and shall be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Apricots" or any pictorial representation of an apricot is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase.

Time Within Which to File Objections

Within ten days after the receipt of the copy of the FEDERAL REGISTER containing this report, any interested person who wishes to object to any matter set out in the suggested findings of fact and suggested conclusion in the form of a regulation shall transmit such objection in writing to the Hearing Clerk. At the same time, each such interested person shall transmit in writing to the Hearing Clerk a brief statement concerning each of the objections taken to the action of the presiding officer upon which he wishes to rely, referring where relevant to the pages of the transcript of evidence.

Respectfully submitted.

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PURPOSE OF RECEIVING EVIDENCE UPON BASIS OF WHICH REGULATIONS MAY BE PROMULGATED (A) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY, (2) REQUIRING LABEL DECLARATION OF CERTAIN OPTIONAL INGREDIENTS; (B) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF QUALITY, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD QUALITY; (C) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF FILL OF CONTAINER, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD FILL OF CONTAINER; FOR EACH OF THE FOODS COMMONLY KNOWN AS CANNED PEACHES, CANNED APRICOTS, CANNED PEARS AND CANNED CHERRIES

1. In conformity with subsection (e) of Section 701 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act [Section 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U.S.C. 371 (e)], the Secretary of Agriculture on his own initiative published on March 7, 1939, which appeared on page 1143 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, a notice of a public hearing to be held on April 10, 1939, in the South Ballroom, Tenth Floor, Raleigh Hotel, Twelfth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which, in pursuance of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the provisions of Sections 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2) [Secs. 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2), 52 Stat. 1046 and 1047; 21 U.S.C. 341, 343 (g), (2), and 343 (h), (1) and (2)], regulations may be promulgated (a) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity, and (2) requiring the label declaration of certain optional ingredients; (b) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard quality; and (c) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard fill of container; for each of the foods commonly known as canned peaches, canned apricots, canned pears, and canned cherries. The notice contained a proposal, in general terms, for defining and so standardizing each of such foods. John McDill Fox was designated as presiding officer to conduct such hearing. Thereafter, a public hearing was held at the time and place specified, and John McDill Fox acted as presiding officer. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

2. At said hearing the presiding officer announced that he would first hold a hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches.

3. In pursuance of such announcement, a hearing was held for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches, and the hearing was continued with reference to the other proposals, to dates subsequently to be announced.

4. On April 17, 1939, at 11:45 a. m., the hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container and specifying the form and manner of label statement of substandard fill of container for the food commonly known as canned pears was convened, and was concluded at 1:15 p. m., on the same day. All interested persons were notified, pursuant to the rules of procedure, of their opporunity to file proposed findings of fact and written argument.

5. Within the time announced at the hearing within which interested persons might file proposed findings of fact, written argument, or both, various interested persons filed proposed findings of fact, together with written argument in support thereof, based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing.

6. Pursuant to the rules of procedure, the presiding officer, therefore, makes this his report and suggests that the Secretary issue the regulation hereinafter set forth and make, on the basis of the substantial evidence of record at the hearing, the findings of fact herein contained as part of the order promulgating and making public such regulation.

Suggested Findings

1. The quantity of the optional pear ingredient which can be placed in a container varies, depending upon the method of packing and upon the shape, size, degree of maturity, and specific gravity of the units of the optional pear ingredient. (R. pp. 25, 39, 41)

2. With the exception of comparatively few slack filled cans, canned pears as they appear on the market at the present time contain the maximum quantity of the optional pear ingredient which, using reasonably good factory practice, can be placed and sealed in each can and processed by heat to prevent spoilage, without crushing or breaking the pear units. (R. pp. 25, 27, 39, 41)

3. The maximum quantity of the optional pear ingredient varies, depending on the size of the container, the method of packing, the form, size, firmness of units, the necessity for having sufficient liquid to insure proper processing, and other factors. (R. pp. 25, 39, 41)

4. The can should contain the greatest number of pear units the canner can place therein and properly seal and process. (R. pp. 25, 26, 39, 41)

5. Knowing the form, shape, size, degree of maturity and comparative specific gravity of the pear units in any lot being canned, canners know the greatest amount of pear units which can be placed in a can of any given size without damage, and canners employ inspectors to insure proper filling by packers. (R. p. 26)

6. None of the various methods which have been studied for objective measurements of fill have shown any uniform correlation between the quantity of pear units put in and the quantity of pear units cut out. Assurance to the consumer of a can full of pears can be obtained only by a requirement as to the quantity put in the container. (R. pp. 24, 25, 27, 30, 31, 32, 39, 40, 48–54, 56, 57, 64, 65)

7. It is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that canned pears falling below a standard of fill of container bear on the label a simple and understandable statement of that fact. (R. pp. 27, 28) "Below Standard in Fill" is such a statement. (R. pp. 27, 28)

8. If canned pears fall below a standard of fill of container, it is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that the label bear the statement "Below Standard in Fill", printed in Cheltenham bold condensed caps. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the statement should be in 12-point type; if such quantity is 1 pound or more, the statement should be in 14-point type. Such statement should be enclosed within lines not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle; but if the pears also fall below the standard of quality for canned pears and bear the label statement of substandard quality specified in the standard of quality for canned pears, both statements (one following the other) may be enclosed within the same rectangle. Such statement or statements, with enclosing lines, should be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and should be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Pears" or any pictorial representation of a pear is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase. (R. pp. 28, 29)

9. The substandard statement now required by the regulations issued pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment is "Below U. S. Standard" followed by "Slack Fill", in the case of excess head space; and by the statement "Contains Excessive Added Liquid", in the case of excessive packing medium. (R. p. 29) These statements are required to appear in substantially the same form as herein proposed. (R. p. 29)

10. The phrase "Below Standard", as proposed, differs from the present requirement "Below U. S. Standard". The ter "U. S." on a food product has been found to imply to consumers that the product has been packed under the supervision of the U. S. Government. The phrase "In Fill", as proposed, differs from the present requirement of "Slack Fill" or "Contains Excessive Added Liquid". The standard herein proposed is based on a can filled to its maximum capacity with fruit. If adopted and met, the headspace will not be excessive, nor will there be excessive liquid present. If not met, the expression "Below Standard in Fill" is simpler and more understandable in describing a product which fails to meet a standard based on the amount of pears present rather than on the amount of liquid and pears or the quantity of the liquid present. (R. pp. 29, 30)

Upon the basis of the foregoing findings of fact, the following reasonable standard of fill of container and the form and manner of label statement of substandard fill of container for the food commonly known as canned pears is hereby suggested to be promulgated as a regulation:

§ 27.022. Canned pears—Fill of container; label statement of substandard fill. (a) The standard of fill of container for canned pears is the maximum quantity of the optional pear ingredient which can be sealed in a container and processed by heat to prevent spoilage, without crushing or breaking such ingredient.

(b) If canned pears fall below the standard of fill of container prescribed in subsection (a), the label shall bear the statement "Below Standard in Fill", printed in Cheltenham bold condensed caps. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the statement shall be in 12-point type; if such quantity is 1 pound or more, the statement shall be in 14-point type. Such statement shall be enclosed within lines, not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle; but if the statement specified by section 27.021 (d) is also used, both statements (one following the other) may be enclosed within the same rectangle. Such statement or statements, with enclosing lines, shall be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and shall be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Pears" or any pictorial representation of a pear is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase.

Time Within Which To File Objections

Within ten days after the receipt of the copy of the FEDERAL REGISTER containing this report, any interested person who wishes to object to any matter set out in the suggested findings of fact and suggested conclusion in the form of a regulation shall transmit such objection in writing to the Hearing Clerk. At the same time, each such interested person shall transmit in writing to the Hearing Clerk a brief statement concerning each of the objections taken to the action of the presiding officer upon which he wishes to rely, referring where relevant to the pages of the transcript of evidence.

Respectfully submitted.

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PURPOSE OF RECEIVING EVIDENCE UPON BASIS OF WHICH REGULATIONS MAY BE PROMULGATED (A) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY, (2) REQUIRING LABEL DECLARATION OF CERTAIN OPTIONAL INGREDIENTS; (B) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF QUALITY, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD QUALITY; (C) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF FILL OF CONTAINER, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD FILL OF CONTAINER; FOR EACH OF THE FOODS COMMONLY KNOWN AS CANNED PEACHES, CANNED APRICOTS, CANNED PEARS AND CANNED CHERRIES

1. In conformity with subsection (e) of Section 701 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act [Section 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U.S.C. 371 (e)], the Secretary of Agriculture on his own initiative published on March 7, 1939, which appeared on page 1143 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, a notice of a public hearing to be held on April 10, 1939, in the South Ballroom, Tenth Floor, Raleigh Hotel, Twelfth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue N. W., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which, in pursuance of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the provisions of Sections 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2) [Secs. 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2), 52 Stat. 1046 and 1047; 21 U.S.C. 341, 343 (g), (2), and 343 (h), (1) and (2)], regulations may be promulgated (a) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity, and (2) requiring the label declaration of certain optional ingredients; (b) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard quality; and (c) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard fill of container; for each of the foods commonly known as canned peaches, canned apricots, canned pears, and canned cherries. The notice contained a proposal, in general terms, for defining and so standardizing each of such foods. John McDill Fox was designated as presiding officer to conduct such hearing. Thereafter, a public hearing was held at the time and place specified, and John McDill Fox acted as presiding officer. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

2. At said hearing the presiding officer announced that he would first hold a hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches.

3. In pursuance of such announcement, a hearing was held for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches, and the hearing was continued with reference to the other proposals, to dates subsequently to be announced.

4. On April 15, 1939, at 5:45 p. m., the hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality and specifying the form and manner of label statement for the food commonly known as canned pears was convened, and was concluded at 11:45 a. m., on April 17, 1939. All interested persons were notified, pursuant to the rules of procedure, of their opportunity to file proposed findings of fact and argument.

5. Within the time announced at the hearing within which interested persons might file written argument, proposed findings of fact, or both, various interested persons filed proposed findings of fact, together with written argument in support thereof, based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing, which, if granted, would modify the proposal contained in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

6. There was controversy with respect to (a) the weight of the pear units in the cases of halves and quarters, (b) the amount of adhering peel in peeled canned pears, (c) label statements.

7. Testimony was introduced tracing the development of standards with reference to the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906, passed in 1930, and the formulation of a standard of quality under that amendment.

Various factors which go to make up a quality standard were considered, together with objective measurements for determining such factors. These factors and objective measurements were made up after conferences with canners, with the trade, with consumers and with expert graders in all sections of the country. The factors which enter into the quality of canned pears differ somewhat, depending upon the form of the unit of the pear ingredient. Tenderness is a factor. The size of the unit is a factor if the units are halves or quarters. Uniformity of size of unit is a factor in the cases of whole pears, halves, and quarters. Absence of peel is a factor in peeled pears. Freedom from blemishes is a factor. The contour or shape of the units is a factor in the cases of whole pears, halves, and quarters, and relative freedom from crushed or broken units is a factor.

An objective test for determining the factor of tenderness, as set forth in the Government's proposal (Government's Exhibit No. 1, Sec. 27.021, subsection (b)), was described. No other objective test for this factor was offered.

It was testified that absence of peel is a factor of quality. Pieces of peel have an unsightly appearance on the white surface of peeled pears. All canners recognize this fact and will not intentionally pack pears bearing pieces of peel unless packing an unpeeled product. In the peeling of pears either by machinery or by hand, small areas of peel are sometimes left unremoved. Most of these can be and are readily sorted out and the peel removed by hand, but small areas of peel will occasionally escape notice in good commercial practice.

It was testified that pears may be blemished with scab, hail injury, discoloration, or other minor abnormalities such as bird pecks. Scab leaves a section of scar tissue on the pear which is hard and unsightly. Discoloration is usually the result of bruises, frost bite, or other undesirable conditions. In the opinion of many qualified witnesses, canned pears are, for practical canning purposes, relatively free from blemishes if not more than ⅓ of the units in the container are blemished. Pears are relatively large units and blemishes are not common so they can be readily sorted and trimmed to remove such blemishes. Even when a considerable proportion of the raw pears are blemished, many of the blemishes are very small. A tolerance of 20 percent would be sufficient, from the thousands of finished cans of pears examined, to make due allowance for such small and not too apparent blemishes.

It was testified that a tolerance of 10 percent of crushed or broken units would be reasonable. Many containers carry less than 10 units. In a container of less than 10 units, 1 crushed or broken unit is as close to absolute freedom as reasonably can be required. If, however, the number of crushed or broken units is 20 percent, or more, experience would indicate that either they must have been added as such or that the pears were canned by some method which crushed or broke more units than is usual in good commercial practice.

The changes in the standards of quality were traced since the first promulgation of quality standards under the McNary-Mapes Amendment. In 1931, a standard of quality for canned pears was promulgated, and the minimum standard requirement for tender units was raised in 1932 from 80 percent to 90 percent, which is the present standard for quality. The present proposal (Government's Exhibit No. 1) suggests the abolishment of tolerance for units not tender and requires all units to meet the test for tenderness.

The present proposal (Government's Exhibit No. 1) changes the requirements for sizes of whole pears or slices from the requirement set forth in the regulations promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the minimum size of ⅛ ounce for halves and ⅜ ounce for quarters. The requirements for uniformity of size under the McNary-Mapes standard, promulgated in 1931, was changed on two occasions, once in 1932 so that the requirement was based on weight rather than on diameter, and the second change in 1937 providing that the units are uniform sized and limiting the weight of the piece the largest size in the can to not more than twice the weight of the smallest piece in the can. This requirement is now in effect and is the requirement set forth in the present proposal. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

Under the McNary-Mapes standard, pears are considered unblemished if 80 percent of the pieces in the container are free from scab, bruises, gritty portions, raggedness, pink or brown colorations, or other unsightly blemishes. The term "raggedness" means a frayed condition of the edges. Canned pears of a type in which gritty portions are normally characteristic need not bear the low quality legend because of grittyness alone if labeled to show the particular type to which they belong. The present proposal (Government's Exhibit No. 1) suggests no essential changes except the elimination of raggedness and gritty portions as blemishes, since raggedness is natural to some varieties of canned pears and since no reliable objective test for measuring gritty portions is known.

The requirement with respect to untrimmed units which has been suggested in the proposal of the Government and by various witnesses differs from the previous requirements in that the present suggestion separates the two factors of quality, namely, excessively trimmed and broken units, and proposes that the tolerance for pieces trimmed so as to destroy their normal contour or shape be eliminated. This suggestion was made because trimmed units are easily removed and packed separately by the cannery. Consultations with consumers show the presence of even one unit so trimmed as to destroy its normal contour or shape to be very objectionable.

For the purposes of labeling, testimony was adduced that the expression "Below Standard in Quality" would best describe the condition of canned pears which fell below a standard of quality; that this phrase should be qualified, showing what respect pears fell below the standard, and that when the product fell below the standard in several respects, the statement "Below Standard in Quality Good Food—Not High Grade" was recommended.

It was testified that in the cases of slices, dice, and mixed pieces of irregular size, uniformity of size of units is not a factor of quality and that no minima should be set for these units as the variances in size are not objectionable to consumers.

The weight of the evidence adduced at the hearing was to the effect that the proposal that no peel be present in the standard canned pears was unreasonably stringent, but that the tolerance of one square inch of peel per pound of net contents, which is the present requirement under the McNary-Mapes Amendment, is reasonable and capable of being complied with in good commercial practice.

Representatives of the industry introduced substantial evidence that the proposed minimum size of halved and quartered pears, contained in Government's Exhibit No. 1, of four-fifths and two-fifths ounce, respectively, was too stringent and would throw many normal sized pears into the substandard classification.

The suggestion was made that pears not of uniform size be labeled as below standard in quality because they consisted of "irregular pieces" rather than because they consisted of "mixed sizes" as proposed. This suggestion was made in connection with the suggestion that pears ungraded for size may not be regarded as substandard in quality, but no substantial evidence in support of the contention was introduced. Government witnesses testified that uniformity of size is a factor of quality in canned pears, and this testimony was not controverted. Such being the case, the product ungraded for size, if beyond the range of uniformity agreed upon as standard uniformity, would be inherently substandard and should bear the appropriate legend.

8. Pursuant to the rules of procedure, the presiding officer, therefore, makes this his report and suggests that the Secretary issue the regulation hereinafter set forth and make, on the basis of the substantial evidence of record at the hearing, the findings of fact herein contained as part of the order promulgating and making public such regulation.

Suggested Findings

1. Factors which go to make up quality in canned pears are tenderness of the pear ingredient; size of units in the cases of pear halves and quarters; uniformity of size of units in the cases of whole pears, halves, and quarters; absence of peel in all forms of the pear unit except in the case of unpeeled pears; freedom from blemishes; the shape of the units, in the cases of whole pears, halves, and quarters; freedom from crushed or broken units. (R. pp. 21–22, 62)

2. In canned pears, the biting or chewing characteristic of the pear is an index of the quality factor, tenderness. This factor involves the maturity of the pear and the extent to which it has been cooked. (R. pp. 22, 63)

3. Such tenderness is measurable objectively by the following method:

So trim a test piece from the unit as to fit, with peel surface up, into a supporting receptacle. If the unit is of different firmness in different parts of its peel surface, trim the piece from the firmest part. If the piece is unpeeled, remove the peel. The top of the receptacle is circular in shape, of 1⅛ inches inside diameter, with vertical sides; or rectangular in shape, ¾ inch by 1 inch inside measurements, with ends vertical and sides sloping downward and joining at the center at a vertical depth of ¾ inch. Use the circular receptacle for testing units of such size that a test piece can be trimmed therefrom to fit it. Use the rectangular receptacle for testing other units. Test no unit from which a test piece with rectangular peel surface at least ½ inch by 1 inch cannot be trimmed. Test the piece by means of a round metal rod 5/32 inch in diameter. To the upper end of the rod is affixed a device to which weight can be added. The rod is held vertically by a support through which it can freely move upward or downward. The lower end of the rod is a plane surface to which the vertical axis of the rod is perpendicular. Adjust the combined weight of the rod and device to 100 grams. Set the receptacle so that the surface of the test piece is held horizontally. Lower the end of the rod to the approximate center of such surface, and add weight to the device at a uniform, continuous rate of 12 grams per second until the rod pierces the test piece. Weigh the rod and weighted device. Test all units in containers of 50 units or less, except those units too small for testing or too soft for trimming. Test at least 50 units, taken at random, in containers of more than 50 units; but if less than 50 units are of sufficient size and firmness for testing, test those which are of sufficient size and firmness. (R. pp. 22–23, 63, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray)

4. It is not necessary to subject small units, such as dice, to an objective test. (R. pp. 23, 63)

5. The foregoing method outlined in Finding No. 3 is directly correlated with the consensus of consumer opinion of what constitutes tenderness in canned pears. (R. pp 26, 27, 63)

6. Minimum size of units is not a factor of quality in canned pears except in the cases of halves and quarters. (R. pp. 27, 28) The smallest and the largest pears are canned whole and each makes a product of high quality. (R. p. 28) It is impossible under good commercial practice to control minimum size in the cases of slices and dice, and consumers do not object to small units in these forms. (R. p. 28) Mixed pieces of irregular size obviously have no minimum size. (R. 28, 63)

7. Canned pears which are of standard quality have a minimum size for halves and quarters at the present time. (R. pp. 28, 29, 127–128, 135) Halves and quarters smaller than such minimum size are commonly packed as substandard pears at the present time. (R. pp. 28, 29, 63, 110, 135)

8. Halves and quarters have a minimum size of ⅜ ounce and 3/10 ounce, respectively. (R. pp. 29, 30, 31, 63, 68–69, 92–97, 110, 127–128, 129, 130, 135, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray) These minima are less than the minima adopted by the packers of most of the canned pears produced in the United States. (R. pp. 31, 63, 110, 135)

9. Such weights are determinable as follows: The unit is placed on a screen and the liquid is allowed to drain therefrom for two minutes. The unit is then weighed. (R. pp. 31, 63)

10. Uniformity of size of units is not a factor of quality in canned pears unless the units are whole, halves, or quarters. (R. pp. 31, 32, 63) Discrepancies in size are not objectionable to the consumers when the units are small, such as slices or dice. (R. pp. 31, 32, 63) Uniformity of size cannot be controlled under the best commercial practice in the cases of slices and dice. (R. pp. 31, 32, 63) Uniformity of size is obviously not a factor in the quality of the product when the units are mixed pieces of irregular size. (R. pp. 32, 63)

11. Uniformity of size of units in the cases of whole, halves, or quarters is necessary in order to prevent variant numbers of units in servings of desserts and salads on the same table. (R. pp. 32, 63)

12. Such units are of reasonable uniformity of size if the weight of the largest unit is not more than twice the weight of the smallest unit in the container. (R. pp. 32, 63, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray) Weights of such units are determined in the same manner as weights for minimum size of units. (R. pp. 33, 63)

13. Absence of peel is a factor of quality in canned pears except in the case of pears canned as unpeeled pears. (R. pp. 33, 63, 116–121, 123–127, 135)

14. Adhering peel ordinarily can be removed completely from the pear, but some peel is occasionally left in good commercial practice. (R. pp. 34, 63, 110–111, 116–121, 123–127, 135) 1 square inch of peel per pound of net contents is a reasonable maximum tolerance for peel present in the finished product. (R. pp. 34, 63, 110–111, 116–121, 123–127, 130–132, 135, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray)

15. Freedom from blemishes such as scab, hail injury, discoloration, or other abnormalities is a factor of quality in canned pears. (R. pp. 35, 63)

16. A tolerance for blemishes is necessary because of small blemishes not apparent in hand sorting as carried out under good commercial practice. (R. pp. 35, 63) 20 percent blemished units is a reasonable tolerance. (R. pp. 35, 63, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray)

17. Normal contour or shape of the pear unit is a factor of quality in canned pears if the units are whole, halves, or quarters. (R. pp. 35, 36, 64, 111, 121–123, 135)

18. When the units are trimmed, normal shape can be preserved. (R. pp. 36, 64) It is possible for the canner to meet this quality factor by discarding all units so trimmed that their normal shape is not preserved. (R. pp. 36, 37, 64, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray) Consumers uniformly object to unevenly trimmed units. (R. pp. 36, 37, 64)

19. Freedom from crushed or broken units is a factor of quality in canned pears. (R. pp. 21–22, 37–38, 64) A crushed unit is a unit pressed so as to destroy its normal shape. (R. pp. 37, 64, 97–98) A broken unit is a unit separated into two or more parts. (R. pp. 37, 64, 97–98) Crushed and broken units are not deliberately packed as canned pears which are of standard quality at the present time. (R. pp. 37, 38, 64) The concussion resulting from the application of the lid to the can at high speeds under great pressure sometimes breaks or crushes the topmost unit of well-filled containers in good commercial practice. (R. pp. 37, 38, 64) For this reason, a tolerance for crushed and broken units is necessary and a tolerance of 10 percent for containers of more than 10 units or of 1 unit for containers of less than 10 units is reasonable. (R. pp. 38, 64, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray)

20. A canner employing good commercial practice can meet each of the foregoing factors of quality in canned pears without difficulty. (R. pp. 39, 40, 64–65, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray)

21. Each factor of quality takes into consideration and makes due allowance for the differing characteristics of the several varieties of pears. Some varieties can meet the various factors more easily than others, but all varieties can meet the foregoing factors of quality without difficulty under good commercial practice. (R. pp. 40, 65–66)

22. Each of the factors hereinbefore referred to has been in effect since 1931 in the standards of quality for canned pears promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906. (R. pp. 40, 41)

23. There has been no substantial change in the provision with respect to tenderness since the promulgation of such original standard in 1931, except that the tolerance for units not tender was reduced from 20 percent to 10 percent. (R. pp. 43, 44)

24. There is no substantial difference between the measure of tenderness as referred to herein and the present McNary-Mapes standard except that the tolerance of 10 percent of units not tender is eliminated. (R. p. 44) Elimination of such tolerance is justified by present commercial practice. (R. pp. 44, 45)

25. The objective method of determining tenderness has been the same throughout the history of such standards promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment and is an accurate and reliable method for determining tenderness. (R. pp. 26, 44)

26. There has been no change in the provisions of the standards promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment for minimum size of units. (R. p. 45)

27. The measure of that factor as recommended differs from the present legal standard only in the elimination of a requirement for a minimum size for whole pears and slices, and in the reduction of the minimum size requirement of halves and quarters from ¾ and ⅜ ounce, respectively, to ⅜ and 3/10 ounce, respectively. (R. pp. 45, 46) Small slices occur inadvertently, and it is impossible to eliminate them under good commercial practice. (R. p. 28) Very small whole pears are a highly desirable quality product. (R. p. 28) ⅜ ounce and 3/10 ounce more truly represent the respective minimum sizes of normal sized halves and quarters than ¾ ounce and ⅜ ounce. (R. p. 46)

28. There have been no changes in the standards promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment with respect to uniformity of size of units except that in 1932 such uniformity was placed upon a weight rather than upon a size basis, and except that in 1937 the degree of uniformity was reduced from a variation of 80 percent to 100 percent. (R. pp. 46, 47)

29. No variation from the present McNary-Mapes requirement with respect to uniformity is desirable. (R. p. 48)

30. There have been no changes from the original standard promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment with respect to freedom from blemishes. (R. p. 48)

31. It is not desirable to change the present McNary-Mapes standard with respect to freedom from blemishes, except to eliminate raggedness and gritty portions as blemishes. (R. p. 49) Raggedness is a natural characteristic of some varieties of pears. (R. p. 49) Gritty portions cannot be measured objectively. (R. p. 49, Affidavit of Chester A. Ray)

32. There have been no changes in the original requirement of the McNary-Mapes standards with respect to the normal shape of the pear units. (R. p. 49)

33. It is desirable that the tolerance for units not of normal contour or shape provided for in the present regulations promulgated pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment be eliminated. The elimination of such tolerance is reasonable because canners under good commercial practice can and do remove all excessively trimmed units prior to canning. (R. pp. 49, 50)

34. There have been no changes in the original McNary-Mapes standard with respect to broken units except that the tolerance was reduced from 20 percent to 10 percent of broken units and a proviso added to permit of one crushed unit resulting from the application of the lid. (R. pp. 50, 51)

35. No essential change in the present McNary-Mapes standard with respect to crushed or broken units is desirable. (R. p. 51)

36. There has been no essential change in the original McNary-Mapes standard with respect to absence of peel. (R. p. 52)

37. No change in the present McNary-Mapes requirement for absence of peel is desirable. (R. p. 52)

38. It is reasonable and it will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer to have a simple and understandable statement of substandard quality placed on the label. "Below Standard in Quality" qualified by an explanation wherein the product falls below standard in quality is such a statement. (R. pp. 56, 57, 99–101) If the pears are not tender, the qualifying statement "Not Tender" furnishes an accurate explanation of the reason the product is below standard. Likewise, the qualifying statement "Small Halves", or "Small Quarters", if under minimum size; "Mixed Sizes", if not of uniform size; "Not Well Peeled", if over the tolerance for peel; "Blemished", if over the tolerance for blemishes; "Unevenly Trimmed", if trimmed to destroy normal shape; "Partly Crushed or Broken", if over the tolerance for crushed or broken units; respectively furnish accurate explanations of the reason the product is below standard. (R. pp. 56, 57, 85, 87, 99–101)

39. It is reasonable and it will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer to have such statement immediately and conspicuously precede or follow, without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, the name "Pears", together with words and statements required or authorized to appear with such name by the definition and standard of identity for canned pears. (R. pp. 57, 87)

40. Such label requirements for pears of substandard quality would not be practicable under good commercial practices in instances where the product fell below the standard in several respects. (R. pp. 57, 58, 87, 99–101)

41. In such event, the statement "Below Standard in Quality Good Food—Not High Grade" would be reasonable, would be informative to the consumer, and would promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer. (R. pp. 58, 87, 88, 99–101)

42. It is reasonable and it would promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer to have such statement printed in two lines of Cheltenham bold condensed caps, the words "Below Standard in Quality" to constitute the first line, and the second to immediately follow. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, such type of the first line should be 12-point, and of the second, 8-point. If such quantity is 1 pound or more, such type of the first line should be 14-point, and of the second, 10-point. Such statement should be enclosed within lines, not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle. Such statement, with enclosing lines, should be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and should be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Pears" or any pictorial representation of a pear is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase. (R. pp. 88–90)

Suggested Conclusion in the Form of a Regulation

Upon the basis of the foregoing findings of fact, the following reasonable standard of quality and form and manner of label statement of substandard quality for the food commonly known as canned pears is hereby suggested to be promulgated as a regulation:

§ 27.021 Canned pears—Quality; label statement of substandard quality. (a) The standard of quality for canned pears is as follows:

(1) All units tested in accordance with the method prescribed in subsection (b) are pierced by a weight of not more than 300 grams;

(2) In the cases of halves and quarters, the weight of each unit is not less than ⅜ ounce and 5/10 ounce, respectively;

(3) In the cases of whole pears, halves, and quarters, the weight of the largest unit in the container is not more than twice the weight of the smallest unit therein;

(4) Except in the case of unpeeled pears, not more than one square inch of peel per pound of net contents is present;

(5) Not more than 20 percent of the units in the container are blemished with scab, hail injury, discoloration, or other abnormality;

(6) In the cases of whole pears, halves, and quarters, all units are untrimmed, or are so trimmed as to preserve normal shape; and

(7) Except in the case of mixed pieces of irregular sizes and shapes, not more than 10 percent of the units in a container of 10 or more units, and not more than 1 unit in a container of less than 10 units, is crushed or broken (a unit which has lost its normal contour or shape because of ripeness, and which bears no mark of crushing, shall not be considered to be crushed or broken);

(b) Canned pears shall be tested by the following method to determine whether or not they meet the requirements of clause (1) of subsection (a):

So trim a test piece from the unit as to fit, with peel surface up, into a supporting receptacle. If the unit is of different firmness in different parts of its peel surface, trim the piece from the firmest part. If the piece is unpeeled, remove the peel. The top of the receptacle is circular in shape, of 1⅛ inches inside diameter, with vertical sides; or rectangular in shape, ¾ inch by 1 inch inside measurements, with ends vertical and sides sloping downward and joining at the center at a vertical depth of ¾ inch. Use the circular receptacle for testing units of such size that a test piece can be trimmed therefrom to fit it. Use the rectangular receptacle for testing other units. Test no unit from which a test piece with rectangular peel surface at least ½ inch by 1 inch cannot be trimmed. Test the piece by means of a round metal rod 5/32 inch in diameter. To the upper end of the rod is affixed a device to which weight can be added. The rod is held vertically by a support through which it can freely move upward or downward. The lower end of the rod is a plane surface to which the vertical axis of the rod is perpendicular. Adjust the combined weight of the rod and device to 100 grams. Set the receptacle so that the surface of the test piece is held horizontally. Lower the end of the rod to the approximate center of such surface, and add weight to the device at a uniform, continuous rate of 12 grams per second until the rod pierces the test piece. Weigh the rod and weighted device. Test all units in containers of 50 units or less, except those units too small for testing or too soft for trimming. Test at least 50 units, taken at random, in containers of more than 50 units; but if less than 50 units are of sufficient size and firmness for testing, test those which are of sufficient size and firmness.

(c) If the quality of canned pears falls below the standard prescribed by subsection (a), the label [unless it bears the statement specified by subsection (d)] shall bear the statement "Below Standard in Quality ------", the blank to be filled in with the word or words specified after the corresponding number of each clause of subsection (a) which such canned pears fail to meet, as follows: (1) "Not Tender"; (2) "Small Halves", or "Small Quarters", as the case may be; (3) "Mixed Sizes"; (4) "Not Well Peeled"; (5) "Blemished"; (6) "Unevenly Trimmed"; (7) "Partly Crushed or Broken". Such statement shall immediately and conspicuously precede or follow, without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, the name "Pears" and the words and statements required or authorized to appear with such name by Section 27.020 (b).

(d) In lieu of the statement or statements specified in subsection (c), the label may bear the statement "Below Standard in Quality Good Food—Not High Grade", printed in two lines of Cheltenham bold condensed caps. The words "Below Standard in Quality" shall constitute the first line, and the second line shall immediately follow. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the type of the first line shall be 12-point, and of the second, 8-point. If such quantity is 1 pound or more, the type of the first line shall be 14-point, and of the second, 10-point. Such statement shall be enclosed within lines, not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle. Such statement, with enclosing lines, shall be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and shall be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Pears" or any pictorial representation of a pear is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase.

REPORT OF PRESIDING OFFICER, SUGGESTED FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS AND ORDER RELATIVE TO FILL OF CONTAINER OF CANNED CHERRIES

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PURPOSE OF RECEIVING EVIDENCE UPON BASIS OF WHICH REGULATIONS MAY BE PROMULGATED (A) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY, (2) REQUIRING LABEL DECLARATION OF CERTAIN OPTIONAL INGREDIENTS; (B) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF QUALITY, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD QUALITY; (C) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF FILL OF CONTAINER, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD FILL OF CONTAINER; FOR EACH OF THE FOODS COMMONLY KNOWN AS CANNED PEACHES, CANNED APRICOTS, CANNED PEARS AND CANNED CHERRIES

1. In conformity with subsection (e) of Section 701 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act [Section 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U.S.C. 371 (e)], the Secretary of Agriculture on his own initiative published on March 7, 1939, which appeared on page 1143 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, a notice of a public hearing to be held on April 10, 1939, in the South Ballroom, Tenth Floor, Raleigh Hotel, Twelfth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which, in pursuance of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the provisions of Sections 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2) [Secs. 401, 403 (g), (2) and 403 (h), (1) and (2), 52 Stat. 1046 and 1047; 21 U.S.C. 341, 343 (g), (2), and 343 (h), (1) and (2)], regulation may be promulgated (a) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity, and (2) requiring the label declaration of certain optional ingredients; (b) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard quality; and (c) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard fill of container; for each of the foods commonly known as canned peaches, canned apricots, canned pears, and canned cherries. The notice contained a proposal, in general terms, for defining and so standardizing each of such foods. John McDill Fox was designated as presiding officer to conduct such hearing. Thereafter, a public hearing was held at the time and place specified, and John McDill Fox acted as presiding officer. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

2. At said hearing the presiding officer announced that he would first hold a hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches.

3. In pursuance of such announcement, a hearing was held for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches, and the hearing was continued with reference to the other proposals, to dates subsequently to be announced.

4. On April 18, 1939, at 10 p. m., the hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container and specifying the form and manner of label statement of substandard fill of container for the food commonly known as canned cherries was convened, and was concluded at 11 a. m., on April 19, 1939. All interested persons were notified, pursuant to the rules of procedure, of their opportunity to file proposed findings of fact and written argument.

5. Within the time announced at the hearing within which interested persons might file proposed findings of fact, written argument, or both, various interested persons file proposed findings of fact, together with written argument in support thereof, based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing.

6. Pursuant to the rules of procedure, the presiding officer, therefore, makes this his report and suggests that the Secretary issue the regulation hereinafter set forth and make, on the basis of the substantial evidence of record at the hearing, the findings of fact herein contained as part of the order promulgating and making public such regulation.

Suggested Findings

1. The quantity of cherries which can be placed in a container varies, depending upon the method of packing and upon the shape, size, degree of maturity, and specific gravity of the cherries. (R. pp. 25, 39, 46–47)

2. With the exception of comparatively few slack filled cans, canned cherries as they appear on the market at the present time contain the maximum quantity of cherries which, using reasonably good factory practice, can be placed and sealed in each can and processed by heat to prevent spoilage, without crushing the cherries. (R. pp. 27–29, 41–42, 46)

3. The maximum quantity of cherries varies, depending on the size of the container, the method of packing, the form, size, firmness of the cherries, the necessity for having sufficient liquid to insure proper processing, and other factors. (R. pp. 28–29)

4. The can should contain the greatest number of cherries the canner can place therein and properly seal and process. (R. pp. 28, 41–42, 56)

5. Knowing the form, shape, size, degree of maturity, and comparative specific gravity of the cherries in any lot being canned, canners know the greatest amount of cherries which can be placed in a can of any given size without damage, and canners employ inspectors to insure proper filling. (R. pp. 28, 29)

6. None of the various methods which have been studied for objective measurements of fill have shown any uniform correlation between the quantity of cherries put in and the quantity of cherries cut out. (R. pp. 46–47, 61, 88–90, 92–94). Assurance to the consumer of a can full of cherries can be obtained only by a requirement as to the quantity put in the container. (R. pp. 27–29, 41)

7. It is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that canned cherries falling below a standard of fill of container bear on the label a simple and understandable statement of that fact. (R. pp. 30, 46) "Below Standard in Fill" is such a statement. (R. pp. 30, 46)

8. If canned cherries fall below a standard of fill of container, it is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that the label bear the statement "Below Standard in Fill", printed in Cheltenham bold condensed caps. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the statement should be in 12-point type; if such quantity is 1 pound or more, the statement should be in 14-point type. Such statement should be enclosed within lines not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle; but if the cherries also fall below the standard of quality for canned cherries and bear the label statement of substandard quality for canned cherries, both statements (one following the other) may be enclosed within the same rectangle. Such statement or statements, with enclosing lines, should be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and should be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Cherries" or any pictorial representation of a cherry is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase. (R. pp. 30–31, 46)

9. The substandard statement now required by the regulations issued pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment is "Below U. S. Standard" followed by "Slack Fill", in the case of excess head space; and by the statement "Contains Excessive Added Liquid", in the case of excessive packing medium. These statements are required to appear in substantially the same form as herein proposed. (R. p. 31)

10. The phrase "Below Standard", as proposed, differs from the present requirement "Below U. S. Standard". The term "U. S." on a food product has been found to imply to consumers that the product has been packed under the supervision of the U. S. Government. The phrase "In Fill", as proposed, differs from the present requirement of "Slack Fill" or "Contains Excessive Added Liquid". The standard herein proposed is based on a can filled to its maximum capacity with fruit. If adopted and met, the headspace will not be excessive, nor will there be excessive liquid present. If not met, the expression "Below Standard in Fill" is simpler and more understandable in describing a product which fails to meet a standard based on the amount of cherries present rather than on the amount of liquid and cherries or the quantity of liquid present. (R. pp. 32, 56, 57–58)

Upon the basis of the foregoing findings of fact, the following reasonable standard of fill of container and the form and manner of label statement of substandard fill of container for the food commonly known as canned cherries are hereby suggested to be promulgated as a regulation:

§ 27.032 Canned cherries—Fill of container; label statement of substandard fill. (a) The standard of fill of container for canned cherries is the maximum quantity of cherries which can be sealed in the container and processed by heat to prevent spoilage, without crushing such cherries.

(b) If canned cherries fall below the standard of fill of container prescribed in subsection (a) the label shall bear the statement "Below Standard in Fill", printed in Cheltenham bold condensed caps. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the statement shall be in 12-point type; if such quantity is 1 pound or more, the statement shall be in 14-point type. Such statement shall be enclosed within lines not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle; but if the statement specified in section 27.031 (d) is also used, both statements (one following the other) may be enclosed within the same rectangle. Such statement or statements, with enclosing lines, shall be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and shall be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Cherries" or any pictorial representation of a cherry is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase.

Time Within Which to File Objections

Within ten days after the receipt of the copy of the FEDERAL REGISTER containing this report, any interested person who wishes to object to any matter set out in the suggested findings of fact and suggested conclusion in the form of a regulation shall transmit such objection in writing to the Hearing Clerk. At the same time, each such interested person shall transmit in writing to the Hearing Clerk a brief statement concerning each of the objections taken to the action of the presiding officer upon which he wishes to rely, referring where relevant to the pages of the transcript of evidence.

Respectfully submitted.

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PURPOSE OF RECEIVING EVIDENCE UPON BASIS OF WHICH REGULATIONS MAY BE PROMULGATED (A) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY, (2) REQUIRING LABEL DECLARATION OF CERTAIN OPTIONAL INGREDIENTS; (B) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF QUALITY, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD QUALITY; (C) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF FILL OF CONTAINER, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD FILL OF CONTAINER; FOR EACH OF THE FOODS COMMONLY KNOWN AS CANNED PEACHES, CANNED APRICOTS, CANNED PEARS AND CANNED CHERRIES

1. In conformity with subsection (e) of Section 701 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act [Section 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U.S.C. 371 (e)], the Secretary of Agriculture on his own initiative published on March 7, 1939, which appeared on page 1143 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, a notice of a public hearing to be held on April 10, 1939, in the South Ballroom, Tenth Floor, Raleigh Hotel, Twelfth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which, in pursuance of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the provisions of Sections 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2) [Secs. 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2), 52 Stat. 1046 and 1047; 21 U.S.C. 341, 343 (g), (2), and 343 (h), (1) and (2)], regulations may be promulgated (a) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity, and (2) requiring the label declaration of certain optional ingredients; (b) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard quality; and (c) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard fill of container; for each of the foods commonly known as canned peaches, canned apricots, canned pears, and canned cherries. The notice contained a proposal, in general terms, for defining and so standardizing each of such foods. John McDill Fox was designated as presiding officer to conduct such hearing. Thereafter, a public hearing was held at the time and place specified, and John McDill Fox acted as presiding officer. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

2. At said hearing the presiding officer announced that he would first hold a hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches.

3. In pursuance of such announcement, a hearing was held for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peaches, and the hearing was continued with reference to the other proposals, to dates subsequently to be announced.

4. On April 18, 1939, at 2:15 p. m., the hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality and specifying the form and manner of label statement of substandard quality for the food commonly known as canned cherries was convened, and at 10 p. m., was adjourned and was resumed at 11 a. m., on April 19, 1939, and was concluded at 11:15 a. m., on the same date. All interested persons were notified, pursuant to the rules of procedure, of their opportunity to file proposed findings of fact and argument.

5. Within the time announced at the hearing within which interested persons might file written argument, proposed findings of fact, or both, various interested persons filed proposed findings of fact, together with written argument in support thereof, based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing, which, if granted, would modify the proposal contained in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

6. There was controversy with respect to (a) tolerance for pits in pitted cherries, (b) tolerance for blemishes.

7. Testimony was introduced tracing the development of standards with reference to the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906, passed in 1931, and the formulation of a standard of quality under that amendment.

Various factors which go to make up a quality standard were considered, together with objective measurements for determining such factors. These factors and objective measurements were made up after conferences with canners, with the trade, with consumers and with expert graders in all sections of the country. Factors which enter into the quality of canned cherries differ somewhat, depending on the form of the units of the cherry ingredient. Cherries are in two forms of units, pitted and unpitted. Relative freedom from pits in pitted cherries is a factor of quality. The size of the units is a factor in the case of unpitted cherries. Uniformity of size of units is a factor in the case of unpitted cherries. Percentage of total weight which is cherry flesh is a factor in the case of unpitted cherries. Relative freedom from blemishes is a factor.

Changes have been made in the standards of quality since the first promulgation of quality standards under the McNary-Mapes Amendment. In 1931, the standard of quality for canned cherries, including both sweet and red sour cherries was promulgated. The standard was amended in 1932 and 1935. In April, 1937, separate standards of quality for canned red sour pitted cherries and canned sweet cherries were promulgated. In July, 1937, the standard for canned sweet cherries was again amended. Separate standards for the two types of cherries have been in effect since that time.

It appears from the evidence that in the separate standard of quality for canned red sour pitted cherries promulgated in 1937, the question of blemishes was defined as follows:

"The fruit is unblemished if 85 per cent or more of the units in the container are free from such defects as limb rubs, scars, scabs, windwhips, brown spots, or other unsightly blemishes. Units showing a skin discoloration having a total area of a circle three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter or less with no perceptible discoloration of the fruit tissue under the skin will not be considered as blemished."

The change from a tolerance of 20% to one of 15% was made because a majority of the canners at the informal hearing held preliminary to promulgating the standard complained that a 20% tolerance was too liberal and that 15%, with the allowance for small blemishes, could be met commercially. Various witnesses suggested a tolerance of 20% for blemishes of all types for all cherries without any definition of blemishes. Such recommendation would leave to conjecture what constituted a blemish.

8. Pursuant to the rules of procedure, the presiding officer, therefore, makes this his report and suggests that the Secretary issue the regulation hereinafter set forth and make, on the basis of the substantial evidence of record at the hearing, the findings of fact herein contained as part of the order promulgating and making public such regulation.

1. Factors which go to make up quality in canned cherries are freedom from pits in the case of pitted cherries; minimum size of units in the case of unpitted cherries; uniformity of size of units in the case of unpitted cherries; percentage of total weight which is cherry flesh in the case of unpitted cherries; freedom from blemishes (R. pp. 23–24, 92–93).

2. Pits or pieces of pits are hard and even in limited amounts are very objectionable in pitted cherries. (R. pp. 24, 93, 112) For this reason, a tolerance on pits in pitted cherries is necessary, and a maximum tolerance of not more than one pit for each 20 ounces of finished canned cherries is reasonable. A piece of pit equal to or larger than one-half pit is counted as one pit, and a piece of pit smaller than one-half pit is counted as one-half pit. (R. pp. 24, 25, 26, 56–57, 73, 83, 93)

3. In counting pits, a sample of at least 24 pounds should be taken at random from a lot of canned cherries. (R. pp. 39, 40)

4. Minimum size of units is a factor of quality if the cherries are unpitted. It is not a factor of quality in the case of pitted cherries, because pitted cherries tend to collapse when cooked, causing wide discrepancies in size in the same container. (R. pp. 26, 93)

5. Canned cherries of standard quality as they appear on the market today are prepared from normal size cherries which have certain size ranges. (R. pp. 27, 93) Cherries smaller than normal size are commonly packed as substandard cherries at the present time. (R. pp. 27, 93)

6. Normal size cherries of any variety do not weigh less than 1/10 ounce. (R. pp. 27, 93) This minimum is less than the minimum heretofore adopted by the packers of most of the cherries canned in the United States. (R. pp. 27–28, 93)

7. Such weights are determinable as follows: The unit is placed on a screen and the liquid is allowed to drain therefrom for two minutes. The unit is then weighed. (R. pp. 28, 93)

8. Uniformity of size of units is a factor of quality in the case of unpitted cherries, but it is not a factor in the case of pitted cherries. Variations in size in the case of pitted cherries, which collapse when cooked, are not apparent in the same can or portion and are not objectionable to consumers. (R. pp. 28, 93)

9. Uniformity of size of units is necessary in the case of unpitted cherries in order to prevent variant numbers of units in servings of desserts on the same table. (R. pp. 28, 93)

10. Unpitted cherries are reasonably uniform in size if the weight of the largest unit does not exceed twice the weight of the smallest unit in the container. (R. pp. 29, 93)

11. Weights for uniformity of size of unpitted cherries are determined in the same manner as weights for minimum size of such cherries. (R. pp. 29, 93)

12. The percentage of the total weight of cherries which is cherry flesh is a factor of quality in the case of unpitted cherries. Cherry pits are inedible, and if the pits are relatively large so that the percentage of flesh is low, the consumer obtains a relatively small amount of edible cherry flesh. (R. pp. 29–30, 93)

13. In canned cherries of standard quality, the maximum percentage of pits present is not more than 12 percent by weight of the drained cherries. Cherries which contain pits in excess of 12 percent of the weight of the drained cherries are commonly known as substandard cherries at the present time. (R. pp. 30, 93)

14. The proportion of pits to the drained weight of the cherries is determinable as follows:

Tilt the opened container so as to distribute the contents over the meshes of a circular sieve which has previously been weighed. The diameter of the sieve is 8 inches if the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 3 pounds, or 12 inches if such quantity is 3 pounds or more. The bottom of the sieve is No. 8 woven wire cloth which complies with the specifications for such cloth set forth on page 3 of "Standard Specifications for Sieves", published October 25, 1938, by U. S. Department of Commerce, National Bureau of Standards. Without shifting the cherries, so incline the sieve as to facilitate drainage. Two minutes from the time drainage begins, weigh the sieve and drained cherries. The weight so found, less the weight of the sieve, shall be considered to be the weight of drained cherries. Pit the cherries and wash the pits free from adhering flesh. Drain and weigh the pits by the method prescribed above. Divide the weight of pits so found by the weight of drained cherries, and multiply by 100. (R. pp. 30–31, 93)

15. Freedom from blemishes such as scab, hail injury, discoloration, or other abnormalities is a factor of quality in canned cherries. (R. pp. 31, 54–56, 59–65, 81, 93–94, 101–102, 159)

16. Canned cherries are relatively free from blemishes if not more than 15 percent of the units are blemished. When reasonable efforts are made to remove blemished cherries, the number can be kept well below 15 percent, but certain types of blemishes not readily apparent in the raw fruit appear in the cooked cherries. A unit showing skin discoloration having an aggregate area not exceeding that of a circle 1/8 inch in diameter and not extending into the fruit tissue is not considered as blemished. (R. pp. 31–32, 54–55, 72, 81, 93–96, 101, 106–109, 119–123, 125–127, 159)

17. A maximum tolerance of 15 percent of blemished cherries is reasonable and makes due allowance for blemishes not readily apparent. (R. pp. 32, 93–94)

18. A canner employing good commercial practice can meet each of the foregoing factors of quality in canned cherries without difficulty. (R. pp. 32, 94)

19. Each factor of quality takes into consideration and makes due allowance for the differing characteristics of the several varieties of cherries. All varieties can meet the foregoing factors of quality without undue difficulty under good commercial practice. (R. pp. 35, 96)

20. Except for the period from April, 1937, to the present time, a single standard of quality for all varieties of canned cherries has been in effect since 1931 under the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906. (R. pp. 35–36)

21. The original standard promulgated pursuant to the provisions of the McNary-Mapes Amendment was amended in 1932 and again in 1935, and in 1937 separate standards of quality for canned red sour pitted cherries and canned sweet cherries were promulgated. (R. p. 35) The separate standard for canned sweet cherries was again amended in July, 1937. (R. pp. 35–36)

22. Each of the factors hereinbefore referred to has been in effect since 1931 in the standards of quality for canned cherries promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906, except that the factor of freedom from pits was not embraced in the standard in effect from 1931 to 1932. (R. p. 36)

23. The requirement with respect to freedom from pits promulgated in 1932 pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment provided that not more than one cherry pit or its equivalent in broken pieces of shell per each 10 ounces of net contents shall be present. (R. pp. 36–37) In April, 1937, a separate standard for canned red sour pitted cherries was promulgated which provided that such canned cherries contain not more than one cherry pit or its equivalent in broken pieces of shell per 20 ounces of net contents. (R. p. 37) The standard promulgated for canned sweet cherries in July, 1937, provided for the reduction of the tolerance on pits from one pit or its equivalent in broken pieces of shell per each 10 ounces of net contents to one cherry pit or its equivalent in broken pieces of shell for each 20 ounces of net contents. (R. p. 38)

24. Canners regarded the tolerance of one pit to each 10 ounces of canned cherries as too liberal and requested its reduction to a tolerance of one pit to each 20 ounces of canned cherries. (R. pp. 38–39, 123–125)

25. The tolerance of one pit to each 20 ounces net weight is the present standard under the McNary-Mapes Amendment and differs from the proposal contained in Government's Exhibit No. 1 in two respects, namely, that a piece of pit shell equal to or larger than one-half pit be counted as one pit and a piece of pit shell smaller than one-half pit be counted as one-half pit instead of calculating pieces of pit as the equivalent of a whole pit, and that the tolerance for pits be based on the examination of a sample of not less than 24 pounds rather than on a single can. Small pieces of pit shell are as objectionable as the whole pit. (R. pp. 40, 127–130)

26. There has been no change in the provisions of the standards promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment for minimum size of units. (R. p. 41)

27. It is not desirable to change the present McNary-Mapes standard with respect to minimum size of units. (R. p. 41)

28. The original standard promulgated pursuant to the McNary-Mapes Amendment contained a provision with respect to uniformity of size that the cherries should be considered uniform when 80 percent of the units passed through a circular opening 25 percent larger in diameter than that through which the smallest unit would pass. In 1932, the standard was amended so as to place the requirement on a weight basis and it was provided that the units should be considered uniform in size if the weight of the piece of largest size in the can was not more than 80 percent in excess of the weight of the smallest piece in the can. In 1937, the standard was again amended, reducing the requirement for uniformity with a provision that the units were uniform in size if the weight of the piece of the largest size in the can was not more than twice the weight of the smallest piece in the can. (R. pp. 42–43)

29. No variation from the present McNary-Mapes requirement with respect to uniformity of size is desirable. (R. p. 43)

30. The standard of quality for canned cherries promulgated under the McNary-Mapes Amendment in 1931 contained a provision that the weight of cherry flesh should be not less than 88 percent of the total weight of the same cherries. (R. p. 43)

31. No variation from the present McNary-Mapes requirement with respect to percentage of cherry flesh is desirable. (R. p. 43)

32. No changes in the present McNary-Mapes standard with respect to blemishes are desirable, except the reduction of the tolerance for blemished units from 20 percent to 15 percent in the case of sweet cherries. (R. p. 44)

33. It is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that a simple and understandable statement of substandard quality be placed on the label of canned cherries falling below a standard of quality. "Below Standard in Quality" qualified by an explanation of wherein the product falls below standard in quality is such a statement. (R. pp. 48, 49) If the cherries fail to comply with the tolerance for pits, the qualifying statement "Partially Pitted" furnishes an accurate explanation of the reason the product is below standard. (R. pp. 38, 49) Likewise, the qualifying statements "Small", if under minimum size for unpitted cherries; "Mixed Sizes", if not uniform in size; "Thin Fleshed", if the percentage of pits is excessive; "Blemished", if over the tolerance for blemishes; respectively furnish accurate explanations of the reason the product is below standard. (R. pp. 49, 173–175)

34. It is necessary and desirable in the interest of the consumer that such statement immediately and conspicuously precede or follow, without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, the name "Cherries", together with words and statements required or authorized to appear with such name by the definition and standard of identity for canned cherries. (R. p. 49)

35. Such label requirements for cherries of substandard quality would not be practicable under good commercial practices in instances where the product fell below the standard in several respects. (R. p. 49)

36. In such event, the statement "Below Standard in Quality Good Food—Not High Grade" would be reasonable, would be informative to the consumer, and would promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer. (R. p. 36)

37. It is reasonable and it would promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer to have such statement printed in two lines of Cheltenham bold condensed caps, the words "Below Standard in Quality" to constitute the first line, and the second to immediately follow. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, such type of the first line should be 12-point, and of the second, 8-point. If such quantity is 1 pound or more, such type of the first line should be 14-point, and of the second, 10-point. Such statement should be enclosed within lines, not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle. Such statement, with enclosing lines, should be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and should be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Cherries" or any pictorial representation of a cherry is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase. (R. p. 50)

Suggested Conclusion in the Form of a Regulation

Upon the basis of the foregoing findings of fact, the following reasonable standard of quality and form and manner of label statement of substandard quality for the food commonly known as canned cherries is hereby suggested to be promulgated as a regulation:

§ 27.031 Canned cherries—Quality; label statement of substandard quality. (a) The standard of quality for canned cherries is as follows:

(1) In the case of pitted cherries, not more than 1 pit is present in each 20 ounces of canned cherries, as determined by the method prescribed in subsection (b) (1);

(2) In the case of unpitted cherries, the weight of each cherry in the container is not less than 1/10 ounce;

(3) In the case of unpitted cherries, the weight of the largest cherry in the container is not more than twice the weight of the smallest cherry therein;

(4) In the case of unpitted cherries, the total weight of pits is not more than 12 percent of the weight of drained cherries, as determined by the method prescribed in subsection (b) (2); and

(5) Not more than 15 percent by count of the cherries in the container are blemished with scab, hail injury, discoloration, scar tissue, or other abnormality. A unit showing skin discoloration having an aggregate area not exceeding that of a circle 3/16 inch in diameter and not extending into the fruit tissue shall not be considered as blemished.

(b) (1) Pitted canned cherries shall be tested by the following method to determine whether or not they comply with the requirements of clause (1) of subsection (a):

Take at random such number of containers as to have a total quantity of contents of at least 24 pounds. Open the containers and weigh the contents. Count the pits and pieces of pits in such total quantity. Count a piece of pit equal to or larger than one-half as one pit; count a smaller piece as one-half pit. From the combined weight of the contents of all the containers, calculate the average number of pits in each 20 ounces of canned cherries.

(2) Unpitted canned cherries shall be tested by the following method to determine whether or not they comply with the requirements of clause (4) of subsection (a):

Tilt the opened container so as to distribute the contents over the meshes of a circular sieve which has previously been weighed. The diameter of the sieve is 8 inches if the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 3 pounds, or 12 inches if such quantity is 3 pounds or more. The bottom of the sieve is No. 8 woven wire cloth which complies with the specifications for such cloth set forth on page 3 of "Standard Specifications for Sieves", published October 25, 1938, by U. S. Department of Commerce, National Bureau of Standards. Without shifting the cherries, so incline the sieve as to facilitate drainage. Two minutes from the time drainage begins, weigh the sieve and drained cherries. The weight so found, less the weight of the sieve, shall be considered to be the weight of drained cherries. Pit the cherries and wash the pits free from adhering flesh. Drain and weigh the pits by the method prescribed above. Divide the weight of pits so found by the weight of drained cherries, and multiply by 100.

(c) If the quality of canned cherries falls below the standard prescribed by subsection (a), the label [unless it bears the statement specified in subsection (d)] shall bear the statement "Below Standard in Quality ------", the blank to be filled in with the word or words specified after the corresponding number of each clause of subsection (a) which such canned cherries fail to meet, as follows: (1) "Partially Pitted"; (2) "Small"; (3) "Mixed Sizes"; (4) "Thin Fleshed"; (5) "Blemished". Such statement shall immediately and conspicuously precede or follow, without intervening, written, printed, or graphic matter, the name "Cherries" and the words and statements required or authorized to appear with such name by section 27.030 (b).

(d) In lieu of the statement or statements specified in subsection (c), the label may bear the statement "Below Standard in Quality Good Food—Not High Grade", printed in two lines of Cheltenham bold condensed caps. The words "Below Standard Quality" shall constitute the first line, and the second shall immediately follow. If the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 1 pound, the type of the first line shall be 12-point, and of the second, 8-point. If such quantity is 1 pound or more, the type of the first line shall be 14-point, and of the second, 10-point. Such statement shall be enclosed within lines not less than 6 points in width, forming a rectangle. Such statement, with enclosing lines, shall be on a strongly contrasting, uniform background, and shall be so placed as to be easily seen when the name "Cherries" or any pictorial representation of a cherry is viewed, wherever such name or representation appears so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase.

Time Within Which to File Objections

Within ten days after the receipt of the copy of the FEDERAL REGISTER containing this report, any interested person who wishes to object to any matter set out in the suggested findings of fact and suggested conclusion in the form of a regulation shall transmit such objection in writing to the Hearing Clerk. At the same time, each such interested person shall transmit in writing to the Hearing Clerk a brief statement concerning each of the objections taken to the action of the presiding officer upon which he wishes to rely, referring where relevant to the pages of the transcript of evidence.

Respectfully submitted.

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY TO PETITION FOR REVIEW OF DETERMINATION AND ORDER REEMPLOYMENT OF LEARNERS IN THE KNITTED WEAR INDUSTRY AT WAGES LOWER THAN THE MINIMUM WAGE APPLICABLE UNDER SECTION 6 OF THE FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT OF 1938

Whereas, the National Knitted Outerwear Association, The Underwear Institute, and sundry other parties having made application under Section 14 of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and regulations (Part 522—Regulations Applicable to Employment of Learners Pursuant to Section 14 of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938—Title 29, Labor, Chapter V—Wage and Hour Division) issued by the Administrator thereunder for permission to employ learners in the Knitted Wear Industry at wages lower than the minimum wage applicable under Section 6 of the Act, and

Whereas, after due notice a hearing was held on these applications before Merle D. Vincent, authorized representative of the Administrator, who was duly designated to preside at the hearing and to determine:

(a) What if any occupation or occupations in the Knitted Wear and Hosiery Industry require a learning period, and

(b) Whether it is necessary in order to prevent curtailment of opportunities for employment to provide for the employment of persons in occupations requiring a learning period at wage rates lower than the minimum wage applicable under Section 6 of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, and

(c) If such necessity is found to exist, to determine at what wages lower than the minimum wage applicable under Section 6, such employment of learners shall be permitted, and with what limitations as to time, number, proportion and length of service; and

Whereas, the said Merle D. Vincent duly made findings of fact, copies of which were filed in the office of the Acting Administrator on October 20, 1939, and are there available for inspection by interested parties, and made the following determination and order:

"1. Effective on or after October 24, 1939, Special Certificates permitting employment of learners at subminimum rates as sewing machine and knitting machine operators in the knitted wear industry shall be issued upon the following terms to all plants in the industry making application therefor representing that experienced workers are not available to the plant, unless experienced workers are found to be available:

(a) Learners employed under the certificate shall not exceed 5 per cent of the total number of workers in the plant engaged in sewing machine and knitting machine operations in the knitted wear industry provided, however, that employment of as many as five learners may be authorized in any certificate.

(b) No learner shall be employed under the certificate longer than 8 weeks.

(c) Learners employed under the certificate shall be paid at a rate not less than 22½ cents an hour and, in plants where experienced operators are paid on a piecework rate, shall be paid at least the same piece-work rate and shall receive earnings paid on this rate if in excess of the 22½ cent minimum.

(d) Only learners shall be employed at a subminimum wage under the certificate and no learner shall be employed under the certificate unless hired when an experienced worker was not available.

(e) No learners shall be employed at a subminimum wage under the certificate until and unless the certificate is posted and kept posted in a conspicuous place in the plant in which learners are employed.

2. Any special certificate issued pursuant to this order shall be cancelled as of the date of issue if it is found that such certificate was issued when experienced workers were available and shall be cancelled prospectively or as of the date of violation if it is found that any of its terms have been violated or that skilled workers have become available. No certificate issued pursuant to this order shall be valid after October 24, 1940.

3. In this order the term "learner" means a person who has not been previously employed for more than 8 weeks in the aggregate during the preceding three years upon sewing machine or knitting machine operations, respectively; and the term "knitted wear industry" includes men's, women's, infants' and children's knitted apparel and accessories, excepting gloves and hosiery."

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to Section 522.13 of the said regulations as amended, petitions for review of the action of the said authorized representative may be filed by interested parties within fifteen days after the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 23rd day of October 1939.

Acting Administrator.

§ 640.0 Scope and content. This Part is designed to supply a guide to local housing authorities (a) in determining the procedures to be followed in initial tenant selection and (b) in determining the families who are eligible for admission to USHA-Aided projects. To assist local authorities in determining eligibility for admission, this Part also contains, in Section 640.11, definitions of "net income", "net income at the time of admission", and "minor dependent". Local authorities should follow this Part in setting up the procedures necessary for tenant selection and in determining the eligibility of applicants for admission. The attention of local authorities is invited particularly to the discussion of the policies and standards which should govern the selection of tenants for the project.*† [Introduction]

§ 640.1 Families to be rehoused. The USHA-Aided program is specifically designed to provide decent housing for families in the lowest income brackets now forced to live under slum conditions. Such families may include a proportion of those on relief as well as those whose wage earners are engaged in either private or public employment. Thus, to comply with the provisions of the United States Housing Act (hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), the policies, standards, and procedures for tenant selection must insure the acceptance of only families in the lowest income group who are living under definitely substandard housing conditions. The policies, standards, and procedures for tenant selection must also insure that the families admitted have the means to pay the project rents.*† [Par. I]

§ 640.2 Necessity of an early start in tenant selection. An early start in tenant selection activities is essential to insure satisfactory occupancy of a low-rent housing project. If the project is located on a slum site, it is highly desirable to formulate certain tentative policies for admission to new projects even before removal of site occupants. In any event adequate attention should be given to the preliminary phases of tenant selection soon after the construction of a project gets under way. This enables the actual selection of families to begin as much as four to six months before the first portion of the project is ready for occupancy. The time necessary will, of course, vary with the size of the project, the previous experience of the local housing authority and other local conditions. A well planned start in tenant selection is essential to accomplish these prime objectives:

(a) Careful and thorough tenant selection at a minimum of expense.

(b) Completion of tenant selection by the time each part of the project is ready for occupancy, thus preventing loss of income through delay in occupancy.

(c) Development of a clear understanding of the objectives of the public housing program in the community.

To achieve the objectives specified in subparagraphs (a), (b), and (c) above, the following fundamental steps must be taken by the local housing authority prior to actual tenant selection:

(1) Responsibility for tenant selection activities must be definitely placed.

(2) The rental market must be determined in order to confine selection to families in the lowest income group.

(3) Rents must be definitely fixed.

(4) Local standards of admission and conditions of occupancy which comply with the provisions of the Act must be established.

(5) Suitable methods must be devised for reaching eligible applicants.

(6) Adequate preparation must be made for the early filing of formal application for admission.

(7) Adequate ground work must be done towards (i) setting up the tenant selection office, including the selection and training of personnel; (ii) preparing the requisite procedures, instructions, forms, reference material, and the like, required in this connection; and (iii) establishing contacts with various local agencies. Tenant selection cannot get under way until these preliminary steps have been carefully planned and successfully completed. An early start makes possible the establishment of a pool of eligible applicants from which those families in the lowest income group can be chosen. By this means, first consideration for acceptance in a low-rent housing project is on the basis of need rather than according to the order of filing application.*† [Par. II]

*Sec. 640.0 to 640.11 issued under the authority contained in Sec. 8, 50 Stat. 891; 42 U.S.C., Sup. IV, 1408.

†The source of Sections 640.0 to 640.11 is Bulletin 22, May 1, 1939.

Definite responsibility for initiating the preliminary activities in tenant selection should be placed with one professionally qualified person several months before commencing the actual selection of families. If tenant selection activities for a number of projects are to be centralized, the proper person for this responsibility would be a staff member of the local housing authority, who, in turn, would be responsible to the person in charge of all phases of project management. Otherwise these duties should be delegated to the project housing manager at a very early stage and later assigned to the member of his immediate staff charged with the supervision of tenant selection. If the project is located on a slum site, it is highly desirable that the person directly responsible for tenant selection should be identified with or in close touch with relocation activities.*† [Par. III]

§ 640.4 Functions of an advisory committee in tenant selection. It is also desirable for the local housing authority to appoint a special advisory committee to assist in the formulation of sound policies and procedures for tenant selection. In fact, if the project is located on a slum site, there are many advantages in appointing this Committee before undertaking the relocation of site occupants. Such a committee may be comprised of one or two members of the local housing authority and the best professional workers available in the community representing local agencies primarily concerned with the various aspects of the problems of low-income families. If wisely chosen this committee can exert a far-reaching influence in interpreting the housing program to the community as a whole and later on, the same committee or a small subcommittee, may constitute a board which will review and approve admissions to the project in accordance with the policies established.*† [Par. IV]

§ 540.5 Determining the rental market (i. e., the sources of eligible tenants, rent and income levels, and the family composition). An analysis of reliable local data, on family composition, and the incomes, rents paid, occupations, and the like, of families living in areas of substandard housing is indispensable to sound plans for tenant selection. Such an analysis will (a) serve as a guide in fixing the project rents "within the financial reach of families of low income" and (b) provide a factual basis for establishing the potential pool of prospective tenants for the project at the lowest feasible income level. In many cities, the information required for such an analysis will be available from surveys now under way or being planned in connection with real property inventories to supplement data submitted earlier to the USHA.*† [Par. V]

§ 640.6 Fixing of rents. This Part 640 is not designed as a guide for establishing rents. It should be emphasized, however, that it is imperative to set management policies and maintenance standards which will result in the lowest feasible operating budgets and rents. No greater challenge to the judgment and ingenuity of the local authority and its staff arises. Every possible economy must be found and assured by adoption of a carefully considered management program. Early determination of the complete management program and early approval of final operating budgets and rents well within the reach of families in the lowest income group—these are absolute prerequisites to plans for tenant selection. The rents to be paid for dwellings in any project must be fixed definitely before other activities preliminary to tenant selection can proceed. Most important among these preliminary steps are the establishment and approval by resolution of the local authority of the standards of eligibility for admission. The approval of this resolution should be followed by the preparation and release of suitable publicity. In order to rehouse large families in the lowest income group, differences in rent charges between dwelling units of different size should be as small as practicable. This marked departure from usual commercial practice (which will entail, among other things, only a small differential for each additional bedroom) is (a) essential in rehousing families in the lowest income group, (b) consistent with the basic objectives of a low-rent housing program, and (c) adjusted to the fact that large families ordinarily have no higher incomes than small families. The question of differentials in rentals for dwelling units of the same size, whether they are in the same project or in different projects in the same locality, and whether such differentials, if any, should be invariably based on concrete differences in quality or facilities provided, is perhaps the main question of rent policy on which the USHA is not yet prepared to make recommendations.*† [Par. VI]

§ 640.7 Establishing standards of eligibility and conditions of occupancy. Criteria governing eligibility for admission must first of all insure compliance with the legal provisions of the Act and the local law. To carry out the spirit as well as the letter of the Act and the local law certain basic criteria with respect to occupancy standards and other factors are also essential. In addition, specific policies pertaining to a number of local considerations must be set up. Local policies should obviate possibilities of favoritism or partiality in tenant selection. Until all criteria are formulated and approved, formal applications cannot be taken, nor inquiries concerning standards of admission satisfactorily answered. If the project is located on a slum site, it is distinctly advantageous to formulate tentative, if not final, policies for admission even before site occupants are relocated. Formulation of these policies at this time is important not only because they must be known to determine how many of the site occupants may be eligible for admission to the new project, but also because they may have a direct bearing on the immediate relocation plans for some families.

(a) Maximum income limits for admission. Statutory maximum income limits for admission are established by the Act as follows:[1] "The dwellings in low-rent housing as defined in this Act shall be available solely for families whose net income at the time of admission does not exceed five times the rental (including the value or cost to them of heat, light, water, and cooking fuel) of the dwellings to be furnished such families, except that in the case of families with three or more minor dependents, such ratio shall not exceed six to one."[2] The USHA, for the sake of convenience, uses the term "statutory rental value" to mean "the rental (including the value or cost to them of heat, light, water, and cooking fuel) of the dwellings to be furnished such families." Thus the upper income limits established by the Act will vary according to the statutory rental value and consequently according to the rents fixed for dwelling units of different size. The rent differentials, if any, established for units of the same size will also affect these limits. Every effort should be made to confine selection to an income group below the statutory maximum income limits. To facilitate reaching such an income group "local maximum limits for admission" lower than the statutory limits should generally be adopted. As has been previously pointed out an analysis of reliable local survey data on family composition, incomes, rents paid, occupations, and the like, of families living in areas of substandard housing is indispensable in establishing such limits. Lacking such surveys, these maximum limits may be based upon factual information available locally on family incomes or wage levels in representative occupations in which wage earners of low income are engaged. If there are insufficient data upon which to base such local maximum limits, the local authority may tentatively reach a decision not to admit any family whose income exceeds an arbitrary figure below the statutory limit until such time as sufficient applications have been received and analyzed to arrive at a satisfactory basis for establishing "local maximum limits for admission." Regardless of the local maximum limits established, in selecting tenants from a pool of eligible applicant families, preference should always be given to those having the lowest annual net incomes.

(b) Lower income limits for admission. No satisfactory scale of minimum income limits can be established as an arbitrary basis for determining the adequacy of family income for admission to a low-rent housing project. Therefore each application must be carefully considered on an individual basis. It should be recognized that in rehousing families of very low income, the proportion of income paid for rent may frequently exceed accepted family budget standards at a so-called "health and decency" level of living. However, there appears to be no justification for denying the benefits of good housing to such families merely because their limited incomes preclude an adequate level of living for other necessities. Inasmuch as low income families generally lack sufficient funds to maintain an adequate scale of living for food, clothing and other essentials as well as insufficient means to obtain decent housing, the amount paid for "rental plus related costs" should not be increased but preferably decreased as a result of rehousing. Nevertheless local authorities may find it necessary in some instances to admit families whose "rental plus related costs" is somewhat increased by moving into the project. Such increases should be permitted only when the incomes of such families are equal to or greater than the average income of other eligible applicant families of the same size. "Rental plus related costs" means the value or cost to the family of rental, heat, light, water, cooking fuel, refrigeration, and transportation. Careful consideration must be given to avoid increases in the total of such expenses, including transportation. For instance, if transportation costs will be materially decreased, other costs may be somewhat increased without reducing the family scale of living. Accordingly, in addition to fulfilling other standards of eligibility, a careful study of the economic circumstances of each family is necessary to establish the fact that decent housing is not provided at the sacrifice of other essentials. Such a study must take into account also the steadiness of family income, the past rent-paying record of the family, the extent and type of indebtedness, if any, as well as the family's record in discharging financial obligations. The cost of furnishing a home, even with bare necessities, must also be taken into account in the case of families living in furnished rooms or in other doubled-up arrangements. The economic factors must be studied with particular thoroughness when families are found to be paying unduly excessive proportions of their limited incomes for rent. As a safeguard in this connection local authorities may find it advisable to establish an arbitrary bottom income limit below which an application for a dwelling unit will not even be accepted.

(c) Need for housing in the locality. Criteria by means of which physical need for housing can be determined must be based on local conditions. This need is best measured by the use of a carefully developed scoring system. Such a system sets up the factors to be considered in determining the degree of substandard housing and assigns a numerical value to each of these factors. The system should be devised to measure accurately and objectively the extent of housing need. Thus, if one major factor or a sufficient combination of minor factors exists to reveal that housing conditions are unsafe, insanitary, overcrowded or detrimental to the morals of the occupants, the applicant family is eligible for admission. Moreover, in tenant selection, preference should be given to families living under substandard housing conditions most injurious to health and safety as shown by the scoring system. By this means tenant selection for newly constructed projects facilitates the effective closing, or the compulsory repair, of unsafe or insanitary dwellings in the locality. In defining substandard housing and in developing a local housing score, consideration should be given to the following factors:

(1) If the present dwelling of the family is in need of major repairs or extensive minor repairs to overcome hazards to person, health or well-being.

(2) If the dwelling unit lacks one or more of the following: running water; inside private toilet; inside private bath or shower; adequate and safe heating facilities; adequate private cooking facilities, including sink; natural light and adequate ventilation; adequate and safe artificial lighting facilities.

(3) If space and room arrangements are detrimental to family privacy, health and morals.

(4) If fire hazards exist.

(5) If the family is living under overcrowded conditions. (A dwelling shall be considered overcrowded when it does not conform to the maximum occupancy standards established for the project. See recommendations for normal occupancy limits in subsection (d) (2) of this Section 640.7.)

(6) If the family is living under "doubled-up" housing conditions. (Two or more families sharing a dwelling primarily designed for single family occupancy.)

(7) If the family dwelling unit is located in a neighborhood where—

(i) Many buildings are abandoned or in need of major repairs, or demolition.

(ii) Industrial nuisances obtain; i. e., excessive noise, smoke, noxious odors, and the like, from factories, restaurants, and so forth.

(iii) Congested streets (pushcarts, street markets, other traffic dangers, and the like) and dumps are found.

(iv) Demoralizing social influences exist; i. e., gambling establishments, hangouts, or other centers of vice and crime, or a high incidence of juvenile delinquency.

(v) Suitable play space for children is lacking.

(8) If violations of any local health and sanitary regulations, tenement and housing laws, and the like, not specified above in subparagraphs (c) (1) through (c) (7), exist. Paying too much for rent for decent accommodations has sometimes been considered a factor equivalent to living under substandard housing conditions. While the problem this presents to many families of low income is fully recognized, the present program does not contemplate rehousing such families.

(d) Occupancy standards for admission—(1) Family makeup. Admission shall be confined exclusively to a natural family or to a cohesive family group which may include: (i) dependent relatives or other dependents clearly established as an inherent part of the family group; and (ii) working adults known to have regularly lived as an inherent part of the family group, whose earnings are an integral part of the family income and whose resources are available for use in meeting family expense. A natural or a cohesive family group may not be comprised of or include: two distinct family groups, lodgers or transient paying guests, a synthetic household composed of unrelated working adults, a person living alone.

(2) Family size. To avoid overcrowding and at the same time to extend the benefits of low-rent housing to the greatest number of persons, it will be necessary to establish occupancy limits for admission to each size dwelling unit. The number of persons to occupy any unit should normally be based upon the assumption that each full bedroom will be occupied by two persons, that each small bedroom will be occupied by one person, and that the living room will not be used for sleeping. A small bedroom is one which is designed to accommodate only one person. To facilitate the taking of applications and the selection of tenants, it is suggested that a table similar to the following be set up as a guide, modified according to the types of units in the particular project:

| Type of unit | Normal occupancy (persons) | Minimum occupancy (persons) |
|---|---|---|
| 1 Bedroom: | | |
| 1 Principal Bedroom | 2 | 2 |
| 2 Bedrooms: | | |
| 1 Principal Bedroom1 One-Person Bedroom | 3 | 2 |
| 1 Principal Bedroom1 Intermediate Bedroom | 4 | 3 |
| 3 Bedrooms: | | |
| 1 Principal Bedroom2 One-Person Bedrooms | 4 | 4 |
| 1 Principal Bedroom1 Intermediate Bedroom1 One-Person Bedroom | 5 | 4 |
| 1 Principal Bedroom2 Intermediate Bedrooms | 6 | 5 |
| 4 Bedrooms: | | |
| 1 Principal Bedroom1 Intermediate Bedroom2 One-Person Bedrooms | 6 | 6 |
| 1 Principal Bedroom2 Intermediate Bedrooms1 One-Person Bedroom | 7 | 6 |
| 1 Principal Bedroom3 Intermediate Bedrooms | 8 | 7 |

[1] Some local laws set the maximum income limits at five times the rent, regardless of family size. If the maximum income limits set by local law are below the statutory maximum limits set by the Act, in the case of families with 3 or more minor dependents, the local law is controlling on the local housing authority.

[2] For definitions of the terms "net income," "net income at the time of admission," and "minor dependent," see Section 640.11, infra

Significance need not always be attached to the family's statement at the time of filing application concerning the size of the dwelling unit desired. Frequently guidance is necessary to point out to the family its real needs. In assigning dwelling units, normal occupancy (without the use of the living room for sleeping) should be the objective except where this is precluded by age, sex or special needs. For example, a family comprised of parents, a son 13 and a daughter 11 will require three bedrooms. On the other hand, for a family comprising the parents and two children of the same sex, two full bedrooms would be adequate. As indicated above, regular use of the living room for sleeping purposes is not recommended. It presents distinctly undesirable features and interferes with the use of this room for normal family group life. This factor is an especially important consideration in families with adolescent or older children or in large families due to the greater and more varied demands made upon living room space. Nevertheless it may be necessary in certain cases to admit families who plan to use the living room for sleeping for not more than one person. However, in no event should this practice be permitted where the living room is designed as a combination living room and kitchen, or where it is necessary to pass through it to reach the bathroom or an exterior entrance. Under no circumstances can the living room be considered satisfactory for sleeping purposes for a child, an elderly person or someone in poor health. Accordingly, it would seem advisable to restrict the use of the living room for sleeping to an occasional overnight guest or to a member of the family who is temporarily ill. Experience with PWA Housing Division projects has shown that it is inadvisable to omit consideration of children less than two years of age in establishing occupancy limits, or to count two children under two years of age as one person. Failure to count these children in estimating family size soon leads to problems of overcrowding, making it necessary for the family to move within a short time to assure the maintenance of occupancy standards. Observation has also shown that even though the baby's crib may be kept in the parents' bedroom for a temporary period, space requirements for special equipment for a very young child are greater than such requirements for older children.

(c) Local criteria for admission. Each local housing authority will find it necessary to establish certain local policies prior to tenant selection. Experience has shown that failure to establish such policies before tenant selection is initiated may result in considerable confusion and inconsistency both in public relations and in dealing with individual applications. For example, clearly defined local policies regarding preferential consideration for individual families of the following types should be established in advance: former site occupants, families with children, proximity of family to source of employment and/or school. The program definitely favors acceptance of families in each of these groups if found to qualify to all other standards of admission. If the project has been designed with dwelling units suited to accommodate exceptionally large families this factor should also be taken into account. Decisions for or against factors such as the following must also be determined at the time of establishing local policies: requirements for citizenship or first papers, if any; requirements, if any, as to length of residence in the locality or under substandard housing conditions; limitations, if any, to be placed on the acceptance of families with savings and other assets and the nature of such limitations. It is highly desirable to keep the number of such restrictive policies to a minimum and the ultimate effect of these policies should be carefully weighed before final decisions are reached. For example, the resources available in a small savings account may provide the sole means of furnishing the new home to the applicant now occupying furnished quarters. Further, inquiry into the cause for a short period of residence at the address given at the time of filing application may reveal a sound reason for moving. The setting of an arbitrary policy with respect to length of residence at a given address would automatically exclude such families as ineligible. In addition to the foregoing, certain factors pertaining to the nature of the tenant group as a whole must be fully considered and tentative policies established concerning the following points:

(1) In localities where rent allowances for families on pensions and those on direct or work relief make it possible to accept applications from such families, a policy as to the approximate number to be admitted should be established in advance. It must be borne in mind that local authorities will not want to rehouse too high a proportion of relief tenants because the USHA-Aided program is not intended for emergency relief, but is primarily a permanent housing program to meet the needs of low-income families whose wage earners are engaged in private industry and public employment.

(2) In certain communities it may be necessary to establish a policy as to the proportion of different occupational groups to be rehoused in a project. This question needs to be considered only if the sources of employment of the applicants are seasonal or extremely fluctuating in character. In such circumstances a policy of this kind may be necessary to insure stability of the tenant group and the project income by minimizing problems of turnover and arrears. It may also be found inadvisable to accept a large number of families engaged by a single employer.

(3) In projects designed to rehouse different racial or nationality groups, the ratio of each race or nationality to be admitted should be predicated upon existing local conditions and needs. Where special or mixed population groups are to be tenants of a project, the full cooperation of representatives of agencies familiar with the problems of such groups should be enlisted in establishing tenant selection policies. Obviously, policies with respect to factors such as the above are subject to review and revision contingent upon facts which may emerge in the actual process of tenant selection.*† [Par. VII]

§ 640.8 Methods of reaching prospective tenants. The degree of success achieved in reaching eligible applicants will depend largely upon the efforts made and the means employed to obtain applications from families in the lowest income brackets. It should be borne in mind that the first families to file applications are not necessarily those most likely to qualify for admission. Accordingly, every effort should be made to reach eligible families who may be slow to recognize their opportunities by reason of timidity, lack of information or illiteracy. This task will be considerably easier if a solid groundwork of education and information has been built up in the course of developing the project, with organizations and individuals as widely representative as possible of the prospective tenants. Such cooperation is virtually indispensable if the project is located on a slum site or in a locality where a special racial or nationality group is to be rehoused. As soon as applications can be accepted contacts must be established with representatives of agencies who are in constant touch with families living in slum areas. Among these are social agencies such as clinic and health centers, family service and child care agencies, community centers and others. Churches and schools are also valuable aids in this connection. In addition, it may be desirable to contact labor unions, employers and fraternal organizations. Informal talks to various groups of potential applicants provide an excellent means of arousing interest in the new project. The creation of a close working relationship with the local press, including foreign language newspapers, serves the two-fold purpose of (a) developing an informed and sympathetic viewpoint toward public housing and (b) providing a means for the dissemination of specific information concerning the local project. Radio talks are another medium for reaching prospective tenants. In addition to newspaper releases, simple and attractive printed folders or mimeographed sheets clearly stating the project rents and eligibility requirements in terms that will be readily understood, are invaluable in stimulating applications. As soon as rents are fixed and policies of admission established, material of this kind should be prepared in large enough quantities to permit widespread distribution through the proper channels. Past experience has shown that unfavorable attitudes to a local project, or to the USHA-Aided program in general, have frequently been the result of misunderstandings on the part of the public concerning rent charges and eligibility requirements. Premature announcements of dwelling rents before they have been definitely fixed should be avoided as the actual rent schedule may be either higher or lower than the anticipated charges. Failure to receive applications from many eligible families has also resulted from misleading publicity. For example, through error, the maximum income limits for admission have sometimes been quoted as the minimum income requirements. To avoid creating false impressions in the minds of the general public regarding the income group to be served, it is recommended that the first publicity issued relative to the income limitations for admission be expressed in terms of the anticipated average income of all the families to live in the project. In short, on a project in which the local maximum income limits for admission may vary from $800 for a two-person family to $1,000 for a six-person family and the anticipated average income of all families in the project is estimated to be approximately $750, it is suggested that the initial publicity state that the project will serve families with incomes in the neighborhood of $750. In case publicity is necessary to discourage application by families with incomes exceeding the local maximum limits, some reference may be later made to these maximum limits, but at such time it will also be advisable to restate the anticipated average income of all families. In most instances shelter rent should be quoted only in general publicity and for the purpose of comparing project rents with rents for substandard dwellings. To obviate tenant misunderstanding and resultant problems, rent schedules and prices quoted to applicants on specific units should be the actual charge for the dwelling, that is shelter rent plus utility charge. It is equally important when so quoting rents to state concurrently what utilities are furnished. This method of quotation will permit accurate comparisons between the project rents for dwelling units of varying size and the present housing costs of applicant families. If such precautions are taken in preparing statements for release, the number of applications from ineligible families will be cut down considerably and applications from eligible families stimulated. This result will not only greatly facilitate the entire process of tenant selection, but will have the effect of greatly reducing the costs involved.*† [Par. VIII]

§ 640.9 Filing formal applications for admission. Simultaneously with the release of publicity, provision should be made for the filing of formal applications for admission. A carefully planned application form will be required based on local tenant selection policies. This form should be designed to record all facts essential to determine the eligibility of the applicant, as well as additional information required to verify these facts. A sample application form with instructions for its use will be furnished by the USHA as a separate release. Early taking of applications may call for a small temporary application office. There are many advantages in having this office centrally located and easily accessible to all parts of the city. It may also serve as an application office for more than one project. One or more members of the tenant selection staff, or of the management staff, should be on hand at this office at all times, to give reliable and satisfactory answers to inquiries concerning policies of admission, and to take applications from families wishing to file them. In this connection it should be stressed that application taking is not merely a clerical job. To secure full and accurate information during an initial interview requires the judgment and skill of a trained interviewer. Assuming interviewers to be so qualified, they should have full authority to inform applicants found to be definitely ineligible for admission to this effect at the time of the interview. In such cases the application should be completed to the point of showing the causes for ineligibility and kept as a permanent record. The applicant should always be given the specific reason or reasons for ineligibility and should go away feeling that he has been accorded fair and courteous treatment. Not only will this method be more satisfactory to the applicant, but by such means much clerical work as well as other procedures incidental to a complete verification—both costly and time consuming—will be obviated. The importance of first contacts with prospective tenants and others should not be minimized, since these initial contacts can have a far-reaching effect on the attitudes developed in the community toward the management of the project.*† [Par. IX]

§ 640.10 Preparation for active tenant selection. In addition to the steps discussed in the preceding Sections of this Part 640, there are other activities of a highly diversified character that must be given attention before the set-up for tenant selection can be considered complete. (The services of a representative of the USHA may be found especially valuable in connection with these phases of the work.) Among such activities are the following:

(a) Selection and training of personnel. Careful staff selection is requisite, and thorough job training indispensable, to obtain satisfactory results in tenant selection. The necessary experience and educational qualifications of staff members will vary according to the duties to be performed and the degree of responsibility to be assumed by each. The number will be dependent upon the size of the project and the length of time allowed for tenant selection activities. It may sometimes be possible to secure the services of qualified personnel for tenant selection on a temporary basis through special arrangements with local social agencies. On the other hand, there are many advantages in utilizing the services of personnel who have had the benefit of prior experience in relocation work. This practice makes for continuity of objectives and methods in all phases of the local program relating to the families to be rehoused. Successful results in office interviews, home visits, and a final review of applications will call for professional training and demonstrated ability on the part of staff members. However, irrespective of background, special job training will be required.

(b) Procedures, forms, reference material. A manual of initial tenant selection procedure will be required by each local housing authority giving detailed instructions for the handling of an application from the time it is received through all the steps until its ultimate disposition. This manual will serve as a basis for training the staff and for constant reference in carrying on the work. A specimen manual of standard procedure for initial tenant selection and renting containing sample copies of requisite forms and form letters to serve as a guide to local housing authorities is scheduled for release in the near future. Maps which show areas of substandard housing in a given community will prove useful in tenant selection to indicate whether applications are being drawn from families living under slum conditions. An address card file system listing actual substandard dwellings may also provide a valuable reference if sufficient data are available locally to warrant setting up such a file. Information from up-to-date housing surveys and current housing records of various city departments may form the basis for this file. If based on reliable sources of information, such a file, or some other means of referring to such facts, to be determined locally, may prove a great time saver. Through the central social service exchange or bureau serving as a clearing agency to the majority of social agencies in many communities, arrangements should be made for obtaining data on agencies' contacts with each applicant family. It should be borne in mind that many families of low income have contacts with social agencies. Consequently, knowledge of such active or past contacts provides an essential means of verifying pertinent facts concerning the eligibility of these applicants. Inasmuch as the records of social agencies are confidential, the original contact with the exchange requesting such cooperation, as well as later follow-up contacts necessary with specific agencies, must be made by a qualified professional member of the staff. A decision must be arrived at locally concerning the advisability of using established commercial credit bureaus as a medium for verifying the rent-paying record of the family and its discharge of financial obligations. Undue emphasis should not be attached to the use of such reports, however, and where other sources for verifying these facts exist, the additional expense incurred by use of a commercial service may be obviated. It is questionable if the credit report should ever be used for the purpose of checking family income, and in no case should such a service be relied upon as the sole means of verifying income. Satisfactory use of a commercial credit bureau involves the preparation of an outline of the specific information desired. This is best accomplished by providing the agency with a special report form and other definite instructions. A clear understanding must be reached which will insure that the source of inquiry is held in strict confidence. Experience has shown, for example, that in some cases representatives of credit agencies have made direct contacts with applicant families to secure information for compiling their reports, and also that landlord-tenant relationships have been jeopardized. A family budget guide is another tool which may be used to advantage in family selection. Such budget material applicable to the requirements of low-income families must be developed by trained home economists and others, based on a knowledge of local living conditions and costs. Assistance in setting up such budget schedules in a manner that will be practical for use in tenant selection may be secured from a qualified representative of the USHA.

(c) Display units. When the project is sufficiently completed to permit inspection, it is highly desirable to have one or more typical dwelling units open to the public. The value of such visits will be greatly enhanced if the units on display are furnished, so that prospective tenants and other visitors will be able to visualize the dwellings as they will look when actually occupied. However, the type of display undertaken should be very carefully planned to discourage rather than to encourage new purchases. If developed during the period of initial tenant selection, such displays will tend to deter families from incurring heavy indebtedness for goods purchased on the installment plan. To accomplish this end second hand furniture should be utilized for the most part, combined with such new items as may be made or purchased at a very low cost. A model apartment of this type to take the place of the usual commercial display, supplemented by the services of a trained consultant to assist individual families in their problems of home furnishings, serves a worth while educational purpose not only to tenants, but to the community as a whole. It also tends to promote the natural integration of community and project interests at the very outset. Home economists and other specialists working in various professional capacities in allied fields will be found more than willing to cooperate and, in some cases, will assume complete responsibility for the direction of such an undertaking. Concrete suggestions with respect to the principles to be observed in setting up such demonstrations, and the types of local agencies equipped to offer such services are obtainable from the USHA.

(d) Setting up the tenant selection office. The space requirements for the initial tenant selection office, exclusive of regular management office space, are of course dependent upon the size of the tenant selection staff and will vary from one project to another, according to the number of units to be rented and the time allotted to this work. Sufficient office space should be provided to accommodate a number of applicants at the same time without crowding. Space requirements should also consider, insofar as practicable, the factor of privacy in taking applications. Since office equipment for initial tenant selection activities will be required for only a temporary period, every effort should be made to keep the cost of equipment to a minimum. It is frequently possible to borrow the necessary number of desks, chairs, file cabinets, and the like, from another municipal department. If this is not possible, such furniture may be rented or purchased second-hand for the period of time required. Arrangements for telephone and lights must be made and other services, such as drinking water, towel service, office cleaning, and the like, planned for in advance. Requisite forms must be on hand, office supplies assembled and information signs conspicuously posted to show the location of the offices. If properly set up and conducted, the tenant selection office can perform a vital role in community relationships.*†

§ 640.11 Definitions. To aid local authorities in determining eligibility for admission under the Act, particularly under Section 2 (1) thereof, the following definitions have been adopted by the USHA:

(a) Net income. The "net income" of a family applying for admission to, or residing in, a dwelling unit in a project means the aggregate income, in whatever form received, of all members of such family, less allowable deductions as defined below. Aggregate income shall include:

(1) All wages, salaries, commissions, fees, tips, earnings from work relief, and other compensation for personal services, including the cash value of any compensation in kind such as meals or food provided to domestics and hotel workers.

(2) Net profits from the operation of a business.

(3) Pensions.

(4) Unemployment compensation or Social Security benefits.

(5) Relief payments in cash, and the cash value of relief allowances in kind.

(6) Alimony or other contributions or gifts toward the support of the family.

(7) Interest and dividends from bank deposits and from investments, if any, and income from insurance policies. (These items are not as a rule applicable to low-income families.)

(8) All other income from any and all sources whatsoever.

Deductions from aggregate income to determine net family income may be made for:

(1) Deductions required by law to be made from wages, salaries, or other compensation for personal services, either in private or public employment; e. g., Social Security taxes, payments to government retirement funds, and the like.

(2) Special expenses in connection with employment for which no reimbursement is made by employer. (Such deductions do not include usual transportation costs to and from work or any ordinary expenses which the majority of wage earners must make.)

(3) Any reasonable amount actually paid for the support of a person or persons who are not to reside with the family, but for whose support one or more of the members of the family are legally responsible; e. g., alimony, payments toward the support of a minor dependent in an institution, and the like.

No deductions may be made for voluntary payments to pension funds or for insurance, payments on bills and garnishments, payments on installment purchases, the repayment of loans, or interest and finance charges on such items.

(b) Net income at the time of admission. "Net income at the time of admission" means the amount of the family's net income for the twelve calendar months next preceding the date of application adjusted to reflect the anticipated net income of the family for the twelve calendar months next succeeding the anticipated date of admission. The application to be signed by the applicant shall contain a statement as to the family's actual net income for the twelve calendar months next preceding the date of the application and any changes in amount which the applicant anticipates for the twelve calendar months next succeeding the anticipated date of admission. The determination of the amount of net income at the time of admission shall be made by the local authority. Such determination shall be made as close to the actual date of admission as is possible. During the period of initial occupancy of the project, such determination shall be made not more than four months prior to the actual date of admission. After the period of initial occupancy, such determination shall be made not more than two months prior to the actual date of admission.

(c) Minor dependent. "Minor dependent" means a member of a family under 18 years of age who is dependent upon the family net income in whole or in part for support.*†

RAILROAD RETIREMENT BOARD

REGULATIONS GOVERNING CONTRIBUTIONS BY EMPLOYERS UNDER THE RAILROAD UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE ACT

Authority for Regulations

Parts 300 to 399 of these regulations are issued by the Railroad Retirement Board under the general authority contained in Section 12 of the Act of June 25, 1938. (52 Stat. 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 362) These regulations shall be effective as of October 1, 1939.

PART 300—DEFINITIONS

§ 300.01 Words and phrases. Except where the language or context indicates otherwise, the terms defined in Section 1 of the Act wherever used in these regulations shall have the meanings assigned to them in that section. (Secs. 1, 12, 52 Stat. 1094, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 351, 362; as amended by 53 Stat. 845, Public No. 141, 76th Congress, First Session)

PART 345—EMPLOYERS' CONTRIBUTIONS AND CONTRIBUTION REPORTS

§ 345.01 Statutory provisions. "(a) Every employer shall pay a contribution with respect to having employees in his service, equal to 3 per centum of so much of the compensation as is not in excess of $300 for any calendar month payable by him to any employee with respect to employment after June 30, 1939; Provided, however, That if compensation is payable to an employee by more than one employer with respect to any such calendar month, the contributions required by this subsection shall apply to not more than $300 of the aggregate compensation payable to said employee by all said employers with respect to such calendar month, and each such employer shall be liable for that proportion of the contribution with respect to such compensation which the amount payable by him to the employee with respect to such calendar month bears to the aggregate compensation payable to such employee by all employers with respect to such calendar month."

"(g) The contributions required by this Act shall be collected and paid quarterly or at such other times and in such manner and under such conditions not inconsistent with this Act as may be prescribed by regulations of the Board, and shall not be deducted, in whole or in part, from the compensation of employees in the employer's employ. If a contribution required by this Act is not paid when due, there shall be added to the amount payable (except in the case of adjustments made in accordance with the provisions of this Act) interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month or fraction of a month from the date the contribution became due until paid * * *"

"(h) All provisions of law, including penalties, applicable with respect to any tax imposed by section 600 or section 800 of the Revenue Act of 1926, and the provisions of section 607 of the Revenue Act of 1934, insofar as applicable and not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, shall be applicable with respect to the contributions required by this Act: Provided, however, That all authority and functions conferred by or pursuant to such provisions upon any officers or employees of the United States, except the authority to institute and prosecute, and the function of instituting and prosecuting, criminal proceedings, shall, with respect to the contributions required by this Act, be vested in and exercised by the Board or such officers and employees of the Board as it may designate therefor." (Sec. 8, 52 Stat. 1102; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358)

§ 345.02 Employers' contributions. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, every employer shall pay a contribution equal to 3 per centum of the amount of compensation payable by such employer to employees with respect to employment on and after July 1, 1939, excluding, however, that part of the compensation which is in excess of $300 and is payable by the employer to any employee with respect to employment during any one calendar month.

(b) Subject to the regulations with respect to employee representatives, if compensation is payable by more than one employer to an employee with respect to employment during the same calendar month, and if the aggregate compensation payable to such employee by all employers is more than $300 for the calendar month, then there shall be included in the measure of each such employer's contribution only that proportion of $300 which the amount payable by him to the employee for the month bears to the aggregate compensation payable to such employee by all employers for that month. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.04 Employers' reports of monthly compensation of employees. Each employer shall continue to file with the Board, in accordance with the requirements of Sec. 250.03 of the Regulations under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937, as amended, reports of the compensation of each employee, consisting, as heretofore, of

(1) A report of compensation for three months, on Form BA-3 (or punched tabulating cards in lieu thereof),

(2) A monthly report of compensation adjustments for three months, on Form BA-4,

(3) A quarterly summary of compensation adjustments (carbon copies of the monthly reports of compensation adjustments, filed during the calendar quarter, are acceptable as the quarterly summary of compensation adjustments), and

(4) Summary reports of compensation for the quarter, on Form BA-5. (Sec. 12, 52 Stat. 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 362)

§ 345.05 Employers' contribution reports.—(a) General. For the period of three calendar months ending September 30, 1939, and for each subsequent period of three calendar months ending December 31, March 31, June 30 and September 30, respectively, of each year, each employer shall prepare a contribution report, in duplicate, on Form DC-1. Except as otherwise provided by agreement with the Board, each employer is required to file a separate contribution report, and consolidated contribution reports of parent and subsidiary corporations are not permitted.

Contribution reports of employers who are required by State laws to pay compensation on a weekly basis shall with respect to such compensation cover all pay roll weeks, all or the major part of which falls within the period for which the reports are required, except that contributions with respect to compensation earned in one calendar year shall not be reported in another calendar year.

(b) Compensation to be reported on. The amount reported on Form BA-5 as the total creditable compensation for the quarter, prior to any additions or subtractions for adjustments, shall be entered on the employer's quarterly contribution report for the corresponding quarter as the amount of creditable compensation from which the contribution payable for that quarter is to be computed. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.06 Final employers' contribution reports. Upon termination of employer status, as determined under Sections 202.11 and 202.12 of the regulations under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937, the last contribution report of the employer on Form DC-1 shall be marked "Final contribution report". Such contribution report shall be filed with the Board on or before the sixtieth day after the final date for which there is payable compensation with respect to which contribution is required. The period covered by each such contribution report shall be plainly written thereon, indicating the final date for which compensation is payable.

There shall be executed as part of each such final contribution report a statement giving the address at which compensation records will be kept and the name of the person keeping the records. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.07 Execution of employers' contribution reports. Each contribution report on Form DC-1 shall be signed and (except as provided in this section) verified under oath or affirmation by (1) the individual, if the employer is an individual; (2) the president, vice president or other duly authorized officer, if the employer is a corporation; or (3) a responsible and duly authorized member or officer having knowledge of its affairs if the employer is a partnership or other unincorporated organization.

The oath or affirmation may be administered by any officer duly authorized to administer oaths for general purposes by the laws of the United States or of the state or territory wherein such oath is administered or by a consular officer of the United States.

If the contribution shown to be payable by any contribution report is $10 or less, the report may be signed or acknowledged before two witnesses instead of under oath. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.08 Prescribed forms for employers' contribution reports. Each employer's contribution report, together with any prescribed copies and supporting data, shall be filled out in accordance with the instructions and regulations applicable thereto. The prescribed forms may be obtained from the Board. An employer will not be excused from making a contribution report for the reason that no form has been furnished to such employer. Application should be made to the Board for the prescribed forms in ample time to have the contribution report prepared, verified and filed with the Chief Cashier of the Board on or before the due date. Contribution reports shall be carefully prepared so as to set forth fully and clearly the data called for therein. Contribution reports which have not been so prepared will not be accepted, and the submission thereof shall have no effect whatever. In case the prescribed form has not been obtained, a statement made by the employer disclosing the period covered and the amount of compensation with respect to which the contribution is required may be accepted as a tentative contribution report if accompanied by the amount of contribution due. If filed within the prescribed time the statement so made will relieve the employer from liability for the penalty imposed for the delinquent filing of the contribution report, provided that the failure to file a contribution report on the prescribed form is not attributable to the fault of the employer, and provided further that without unnecessary delay such tentative report is supplemented by a contribution report made on the proper form. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.09 Place and time for filing employers' contribution reports. Each employer's contribution report shall be filed with the Chief Cashier of the Board at Washington, D. C.

The employer's contribution report for each quarterly period shall be filed on or before the last day of the second calendar month following the period for which it is made. If such last day falls on Sunday or a legal holiday, the report may be filed on the next following business day. If placed in the mails, the report shall be posted in ample time to reach the Chief Cashier of the Board at Washington, D. C., under ordinary handling of the mails, on or before the date on which the report is required to be filed. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.10 Payment of employers' contributions. The contribution required to be reported on an employer's contribution report is due and payable to the Board without assessment or notice, at the time fixed for filing the contribution report.

Certified or uncertified checks may be tendered as provisional payment of contributions and should be made payable to the Railroad Retirement Board and mailed with the contribution report to the Chief Cashier of the Railroad Retirement Board at Washington, D. C. No employer who tenders a check as provisional payment of contribution shall be released from the obligation to make ultimate payment thereof until such check has been duly paid. If a check is not paid by the bank on which it is drawn, the employer by whom such check has been tendered shall remain liable for the payment of the contribution and for all legal penalties and additions to the same extent as if such check had not been tendered. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.11 When fractional part of cent may be disregarded. In the payment of employers' contributions to the Board a fractional part of a cent shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half cent or more in which case it shall be increased to one cent. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.12 Adjustments.—(a) In General. Section 8 (d) of the Act provides that if more or less than the correct amount of employer's contribution is paid with respect to any compensation, proper adjustments with respect to the contribution shall, under regulations prescribed by the Board, be made, without interest, in connection with subsequent contribution payments by the same employer.

(b) Definitions. As used in these regulations, the following terms shall have the meanings hereinafter ascribed to them:

"Compensation adjustment" means the amount of any error, as disclosed by a report on Form BA–4, in the employer's report to the Board of the compensation of an individual employee. A compensation adjustment for any month that results in (a) an addition to the amount of creditable compensation for such month previously reported for any employee, or (b) the crediting of compensation for such month to an employee for whom no compensation had previously been reported for such month, is a "credit compensation adjustment" for such month. A compensation adjustment for any month that results in a deduction from the amount of the creditable compensation for such month previously reported for any employee is a "debit compensation adjustment" for such month. The difference between the total credit compensation adjustments for any month and the total debit compensation adjustments for such month is the "net compensation adjustment" for such month and may be either a "net debit compensation adjustment" or a "net credit compensation adjustment."

"Contribution adjustment" means an amount to be added to or deducted from the contribution payable for a calendar quarter with respect to the total compensation, exclusive of any part in excess of $300 for any individual in any one month, as reported on Form BA–5 and Form DC–1 for such quarter, to

Effect payment of contributions with respect to a net credit compensation adjustment for any month subsequent to June 30, 1939, made by the Bureau of Wage and Service Records on the basis or reports on Form BA–4; or to Permit the employer to take credit for an overpayment of a previous contribution represented by a net debit compensation adjustment for any month subsequent to June 30, 1939; or to

Effect payment of any deficiency of any previous contribution, due to error not involving compensation adjustments, in reporting on Form DC–1 the total creditable compensation for a calendar quarter, error in computing the amount of contribution due and payable, or error in making remittance for the contribution due and payable; or to Permit the employer to take credit for an overpayment of a previous contribution, due to error not involving compensation adjustments, in reporting on Form DC–1 the total creditable compensation for a calendar quarter, error in computing the amount of contribution due and payable, or error in making remittance for the contribution due and payable.

(c) Certificates of underpayment and overpayment. Except as provided in the third paragraph of this subsection, no adjustments may be made pursuant to the provisions of Section 8 (d) of the Act except upon the basis of certificates of underpayment or certificates of overpayment sent to employers by the Board. These certificates will be prepared on the basis of the compensation adjustments reported to the Bureau of Wage and Service Records on Form BA–4 for each month subsequent to June 30, 1939. All such certificates received by employers shall be taken up and accounted for by them in connection with the contribution reports for the quarters in which such certificates were issued, the date appearing on such certificates to be considered the date of issuance; except that certificates of overpayment may be taken up and accounted for at any time within four years from the date on which the overpayment was received.

Certificates of underpayment and certificates of overpayment, based upon compensation adjustments as reported on Form BA–4 or to correct other errors in reporting when such errors are discovered by the Board, will be issued to the employers by the Board on its own initiative. The Board may, however, when the circumstances so warrant, assess the amount of any deficiency in the payment of any contribution, and interest thereon and penalties, and make demand upon the employer for payment thereof, instead of issuing a certificate of underpayment. Any employer, who within sixty days after the due date of a quarterly report of contributions or a report of compensation adjustments, does not receive from the Board a certificate of overpayment to which he believes himself entitled either because of an error in such contribution report or because of a net debit compensation adjustment on such report of compensation adjustments, may make application, setting forth in support thereof all the facts in his possession, for a certificate of overpayment.

A contribution adjustment for any underpayment, not due to a compensation adjustment but discovered by the employer prior to the receipt of a certificate of underpayment with respect thereto, shall be made in the employer's quarterly report of contributions and remittance for the quarter in which the underpayment is discovered, in accordance with the applicable Instructions on the duplicate of Form No. DC–1.

No overpayment shall be adjusted under this section after the expiration of four years from the date the overpayment was received by the Board. No underpayment shall be adjusted under this section after the receipt from the Board of formal notice and demand for payment based upon an assessment, but the amount thereof shall be paid to the Board pursuant to such notice and demand. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.13 Refunds.—(a) In general. Section 8 (c) of the Act provides that if more than the correct amount of the employer's contribution is paid with respect to any compensation and the overpayment cannot be adjusted, the amount of the overpayment shall be refunded in such manner and at such times (subject to the statute of limitations properly applicable thereto) as may be prescribed by regulations of the Board.

(b) When permitted. A claim for refund may be made only when the overpayments cannot be adjusted in accordance with the procedure set forth in Section 345.12.

(c) Form of claim. A claim for refund shall be made on Form DC–3 in accordance with the instructions and regulations applicable thereto. The prescribed form may be obtained from the Board. There shall be set forth under oath all grounds in detail and all facts alleged in support of the claim, including the amount and date of each payment to the Board of the contribution for which refund is claimed, the name and address of the employer who paid the contribution to the Board, and the period covered by the contribution report on which such contribution was reported.

(d) Claim by fiduciary. If any contribution is paid by or on behalf of an individual who thereafter dies and a claim for refund or credit is filed by a legal representative of the deceased, certified copies of the letters testamentary, letters of administration, or other similar evidence shall be annexed to the claim, to show the authority of the executor, administrator, or other fiduciary by whom the claim is filed. If an executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, receiver or other fiduciary pays any contribution and thereafter a claim for refund or credit is filed by the same fiduciary, documentary evidence to establish the legal authority of the fiduciary need not accompany the claim, provided a statement is made in the claim showing that the contribution was paid by the fiduciary and that he is still acting. In such cases, if a refund or interest is to be paid, letters testamentary, letters of administration, or other evidence may be required but are required to be submitted only upon the receipt of a specific request therefor. If a claim is filed by a fiduciary or employer other than the one by whom the contribution was paid, the necessary documentary evidence shall accompany the claim. The affidavit on the claim form may be made by the agent of the employer in whose behalf the claim is made, but in such case a power of attorney shall accompany the claim.

(e) Time limit. No refund will be allowed for any contribution (including interest or penalty, if any) which has been erroneously, illegally, or otherwise wrongfully collected, after the expiration of four years after the payment to the Board of the contribution, penalty or interest, except upon one or more of the grounds set forth in a claim filed therefor prior to the expiration of such four-year period. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.14 Assessment and collection of contributions or underpayments of contributions. If any employer's contribution is not paid to the Board when due or is not paid in full when due, the Board may, as the circumstances warrant assess the contribution or the deficiency and interest and penalty, if any (whether or not the deficiency is adjustable as an underpayment, and whether or not a certificate of underpayment has been issued).

The amount of any such assessment will be collected, in accordance with the applicable provisions of law. If any employer liable to pay any contribution neglects or refuses to pay the same within ten days after notice and demand, the Board may collect such contribution with such interest and other additional amounts as are required by law, by distraint and sale in the manner provided by law. If any amount or part thereof included in an assessment has been previously reported and paid to the Board as an adjustment or otherwise, the employer against whom the assesment is made is privileged to file with the Board a claim on Form DC–3 for abatement of such amount, together with interest and penalties thereon if included in the assessment. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.15 Jeopardy assessment. Whenever in the opinion of the Director of Unemployment Insurance it becomes necessary to protect the interests of the Government by effecting an immediate reporting and collection of an employer's contribution, the Board will assess the contribution, together with all penalties and interest thereon. Upon assessment such contribution, penalty, and interest shall become immediately due and payable, and the Board shall thereupon issue immediately a notice and demand for payment of the contribution, penalty, and interest.

The collection of the whole or any part of the amount of the jeopardy assessment may be stayed by filing with the Board a bond in such amount, not exceeding double the amount with respect to which the stay is desired, and with such sureties as the Board may deem necessary. Such bond shall be conditioned upon the payment of the amount, collection of which is stayed, at the time at which, but for the jeopardy assessment, such amount would be due. In lieu of surety or sureties the employer may deposit with the Board bonds or notes of the United States, or bonds or notes fully guaranteed by the United States as to principal and interest, having a par value not less than the amount of the bond required to be furnished, together with an agreement authorizing the Board in case of default to collect or sell such bonds or notes so deposited. Upon refusal to pay, or failure to pay or give bond, the Board will immediately upon issuance of notice and demand for payment proceed to collect the contribution, penalty and interest. If any employer liable to pay any contribution neglects or refuses to pay the same within ten days after notice and demand, the Board may collect such contribution with such interest and other additional amounts as are required by law, by distraint and sale in the manner provided by law. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.16 Interest. If the employer's contribution is not paid to the Board when due and is not adjusted under Sec. 345.12, interest accrues at the rate of 1 per centum per month, or fraction of a month. Interest on past due contributions from the due date thereof until the date paid will be assessed after payment of the contributions, and notice and demand made upon the employer for payment thereof, in any case in which payment of the contributions is made before assessment under Sec. 345.14 hereof. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.17 Penalty for failure to pay an assessment after notice and demand. (a) In case the employer fails to pay to the Board the entire amount of any assessment of contribution, penalty, or interest within a period of ten days after the date of issuance of the form for first notice and demand, based on such assessment, there accrues (except as provided in (b) of this section) a penalty of 5 per cent of the amount of such assessment remaining unpaid at the expiration of such period.

(b) If, within ten days after the date of issuance of the first notice and demand, a claim for abatement of any amount of the assessment is filed with the Board, the 5 per centum penalty does not attach with respect to such amount. If the claim is rejected in whole or in part and the amount rejected is not paid, the Board shall issue notice and demand for such amount. If payment is not made within ten days after the date the Board issues the notice and demand, the 5 per cent penalty attaches with respect to the amount rejected. The filing of the claim does not stay the running of interest. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.18 Liens. If any employer required to pay a contribution neglects or refuses to pay the same after demand, the amounts (including any interest, penalties, additional amount, or additions to such contribution, together with any costs that may accrue in addition thereto) shall be a lien in favor of the United States upon all property and rights to property, whether real or personal, belonging to such employer. (I.R.C., Secs. 3670–3679, 53 Stat. 448–451; Sec. 8, 52 Stat. 1102; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358.)

§ 345.19 Penalty for delinquent or false employers' contribution reports.—(a) Delinquent Reports. Unless the employer required to file a contribution report establishes ta the satisfaction of the Board that a reasonable cause exists for the delinquency, the failure to file such contribution report on or before the due date shall cause to accrue a penalty equal to the following percentage of the contribution required to be reported thereon:

(1) 5 per cent, if the contribution report is filed on or before the thirtieth day after the due date;

(2) 10 per cent, if the contribution report is filed after such thirtieth day and on or before the sixtieth day after the due date;

(3) 15 per cent, if the contribution report is filed after such sixtieth day and on or before the ninetieth day after the due date;

(4) 20 percent, if the contribution report is filed after such ninetieth day and on or before the one hundred and twentieth day after the due date; or

(5) 25 per cent, if the contribution report is filed after such one hundred and twentieth day or if the contribution report is never filed by the employer required to file it.

In computing the period of delinquency all Sundays and holidays after the due date are counted.

Every employer filing a contribution report after the due date shall securely attach to the report a statement under oath setting out in detail the reason for the delinquency. The Board will determine whether a penalty has been incurred and, if so, will make the assessment.

(b) False reports. If a false or fraudulent employer's contribution report is willfully made, the penalty is 50 per cent of the total contribution due for the entire period involved, including any contribution previously paid. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.20 Authorization of contribution adjustments and assessments. The Director of Unemployment Insurance is authorized, on behalf of the Board, to issue certificates of underpayment, certificates of overpayment, assessments of contributions, interest and penalties, and notices and demands for payment thereof, and will certify, to the Director of Finance, refunds of overpayments. (Secs. 8, 12, 52 Stat. 1102, 1107; 45 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 358, 362)

§ 345.21 References to forms. Any reference in these regulations to any prescribed reporting or other form of the Board includes a reference to any other form of the Board prescribed in substitution for such prescribed form.

§ 345.22 Appeals. Appeals from determinations by employees of the Board with regard to any matter arising under this Part may be had in accordance with such regulations as the Board may from time to time prescribe.

By authority of the Board.*

"No full-time officer or employee of any Bank shall act in any capacity for any member or institution which is insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation under any understanding providing for continuous or repeated services nor act in any capacity for any institution in connection with any petition, application, or matter in which any action is required by the Bank or any of its officers, whether the Bank or such person will be acting for the Bank or as agent of the Board, Home Owners' Loan Corporation, or Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, except when employed by, or with the consent of, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation in cases involving payment of insurance, loans, purchases of assets or contributions by said Corporation under Sections 405 or 406 of the National Housing Act, as amended (48 Stat. 1259, 49 Stat. 299; 12 U.S.C. 1728, 1729, and Sup.). ## TITLE 30—MINERAL RESOURCES

BITUMINOUS COAL DIVISION

[Order No. 286]

AN ORDER RESCINDING ORDERS NO. 284 AND 285 AND DIRECTING DISTRICT BOARDS FOR DISTRICTS NO. 1 TO 20, INCLUSIVE, 22 AND 23, TO PROPOSE AND TO SUBMIT TO THE DIRECTOR PRICE CLASSIFICATIONS AND MINIMUM PRICES FOR COALS PRODUCED BY CODE MEMBERS WITHIN THE DISTRICT AND NOT HERETOFORE CLASSIFIED

Pursuant to the Bituminous Coal Act of 1937 (particularly Section 4, Part II thereof), it is hereby ordered that:

(1) Each District Board of Districts No. 1 to 20, inclusive, 22 and 23, shall, on or after November 1, 1939, proceed to consider and propose, and shall submit to the Director of the Bituminous Coal Division, United States Department of the Interior, in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed herein, the price classification for each kind, quality and size of coal, for which no price classification has heretofore been proposed and submitted by the District Board and which is produced within the respective districts by code members of whose acceptance of the code the District Board has been notified prior to November 1, 1939. Each District Board may, in its discretion, also propose and submit price classifications as aforesaid for the coal of code members of whose acceptance of the code the District Board is notified after November 1, 1939.

(2) If price classifications or minimum prices have been proposed by a District Board pursuant to any prior order of the Commission or the Division, or upon its own motion, for coal produced at a particular mine, no further price classifications or minimum prices need be proposed by the District Board for such coal at such mine pursuant to this order, notwithstanding that the owner or operator of such mine has changed after the classifications and prices were proposed therefor by the District Board: Provided, however, That the District Board may, if it so desires, propose and submit modifications or additions to such price classifications or minimum prices, together with the reasons for and the data supporting such modifications or additions.

(3) The following rules and regulations shall govern the proposal and submission of price classifications and minimum prices pursuant to this order:

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PROPOSAL OF PRICE CLASSIFICATIONS AND MINIMUM PRICES

(a) All price classifications for coals in a particular district shall be expressed as nearly as possible in the terms of the symbols and minimum prices contained in the schedule of minimum prices for such district heretofore approved by the National Bituminous Coal Commission to serve as a basis for coordination, and shall conform to the standards prescribed by Section 4 II (a) of the Bituminous Coal Act of 1937.

(b) Each District Board may, in its discretion, provide for conducting investigations, holding conferences or hearings, and receiving protests from interested persons; and may for this purpose adopt such procedure as it deems advisable or proper.

(c) Such price classifications for coals in a particular district shall be incorporated in a schedule to be prepared by the District Board and to be submitted to the Director. Together with such schedule, there shall also be furnished the following information, to the extent available: The name of the mine, the State, county and township in which the mine is located, the seams mined, the modes of transportation involved in transporting coal from the mine, the names of the railroads, if any, which are available for the shipment of coal from the mine, the approximate tonnage moved by each mode of transportation for the years 1937 and 1938, the geographic areas into which the mine ships or is expected to ship coal, and any special and unusual features in the quality, preparation or distribution of coal from such mine.

(d) Twenty-five (25) copies of the schedules of proposed price classifications and of such information as is furnished under paragraph (c) hereof, shall be submitted to the Director not later than November 25, 1939.

(e) Prior to the submission of the aforesaid schedule to the Director, the District Board shall mail five (5) copies thereof to each of the other districts referred to in paragraph (1) hereof, and one (1) copy thereof to each code member in the district.

(f) Each completed schedule shall include the following clause:

NOTE.—The prices in this schedule have been proposed by the District Board pursuant to the provisions of Order No. 286 issued by the Bituminous Coal Division on October 24, 1939, and are not final or effective price classifications or minimum prices for the coals of the code members mentioned therein. Any code member dissatisfied with any price classification or minimum price proposed in this schedule may file with the Director of the Bituminous Coal Division, Washington, D. C., within seven (7) days after receiving a copy of such schedule, a written protest setting forth the reasons for dissatisfaction together with the supporting data; and a copy of such protest shall be sent to the District Board.

(5) Any code member or District Board dissatisfied with any proposed price classification submitted pursuant to this order may file with the Director, at his office in Washington, D. C., not later than seven (7) days after receiving a copy of the schedule of price classifications, a written protest setting forth the reasons for dissatisfaction, together with the supporting data, and a copy of such protest shall be mailed to the District Board for the district in which the mine in question is situated. The Director will then provide for a proper precedure to the end that the coals classified in the schedules submitted pursuant to this order may duly be covered by and included within the schedules of effective minimum prices to be established by the Division.

(6) Any proposed price classifications or proposed minimum prices submitted by any District Board pursuant to Order No. 284,[1] dated October 10, 1939 (or as amended by Order No. 285,[2] dated October 13, 1939), will be accepted and considered by the Division as though submitted pursuant to this order.

(7) Orders No. 284, dated October 10, 1939, and No. 285, dated October 13, 1939, are hereby rescinded.

§ 84.18 Classes of property that may be loaned or transferred. (a) In conformity with the Act of May 26, 1928 (45 Stat. 753; 20 U.S.C. 94), the Chief of the Air Corps is authorized to approve loans of the following Air Corps equipment, when available, as prescribed in section 84.19, paragraph (a):

(1) Aircraft or engines that have been declared obsolete or have become impaired to the extent that repair would not be economical.

(2) Aircraft parts or instruments that have been declared obsolete or have become impaired to the extent that repair would not be economical.

(b) Transfers as distinguished from loans, in conformity with the Act of May 26, 1928, will be approved by the Secretary of War in each instance and will, except in cases of special importance, be confined to the class of property indicated in (a) (2) above. (45 Stat. 753; 20 U.S.C. 94) [Par. 4, A.R. 35–6610, Sept. 14, 1939]

§ 84.19 Procedure; conditions governing loans and transfers. (a) From time to time the Chief of the Air Corps will submit to the Secretary of War lists of aircraft, aircraft parts, instruments, or engines that have become obsolete or impaired to the extent that repair would not be economical and the loan or transfer of which is deemed advantageous under the provisions of the law. Upon approval of these lists the property so listed will be held available for loan or transfer as contemplated herein. The Chief of the Air Corps is authorized to remove from the list at any time such articles as in his opinion should no longer be carried thereon.

(b) In general, the property under consideration will be loaned subject to recall. When considered desirable, however, and such action is specifically approved by the Secretary of War, a transfer of such property may be made.

(c) In the case of all loans, the registrar or corresponding official of the institution concerned will sign for the property (see section 84.20, paragraph (d)) and will report annually to the Chief of the Matériel Division, Air Corps, on December 31, the quantity and condition of property loaned. Any changes in quantity or condition will be reported when such changes occur, with information as to the cause thereof.

(d) Records of all loans and transfers will be maintained by the Chief of the Matériel Division, Air Corps. See section 84.20.

(e) The cost of packing, handling, transportation, etc., for delivery to and return from institutions, and other expenses incidental to the loan or transfer of such property, must be borne by the institutions concerned. The expenses necessary for delivery of property to an institution, except transportation, will be paid in advance to the Chief of the Matériel Division, Air Corps, who will, before issuing shipping instructions, also obtain from the registrar or corresponding official of the institution receiving the property written authorization designating the Air Corps shipping officer as the agent for the institution in making the shipment. The shipment will then be forwarded on commercial bills of lading with transportation charges collect.

(f) A statement by the executive or corresponding official of the institution that none of the equipment will be used in actual flying will be required as a condition precedent to the loan or transfer of property. (45 Stat. 753; 20 U.S.C. 94) [Par. 5, A.R. 35–6610, Sept. 14, 1939]

§ 84.20 Accounting for property loaned or transferred. (a) Accountability for property loaned will continue while it is in the custody of the institution to which loaned. This accountability will be carried on a stock record account maintained by the Chief of the Matériel Division, Air Corps, and the property will be held on memorandum receipts by the institutions. Should property so loaned become lost, destroyed, or unfit for further use a report of survey will be initiated by the Chief of the Matériel Division with an affidavit from the responsible official of the institution, setting forth all facts relating to the loss, destruction, or unserviceability, as an exhibit thereto. In such cases, if the value of the property or its residue does not warrant the cost of inspection and disposal by the Government, the surveying officer may recommend that the property be abandoned. Upon final approval of the report of survey, the property will be dropped from accountable records.

(b) Accountability for property transferred, as contemplated in section 84.19, paragraph (b), will terminate when the transfer is effected.

(c) Shipping tickets covering issues of obsolete and unserviceable Air Corps equipment under the provisions of these regulations will be conspicuously marked to show whether the articles listed thereon are "transferred" or "loaned."

(d) (1) In the case of loans, seven copies of the shipping tickets will be prepared by the accountable officer shipping the property, and distributed as follows:

Two copies to the institution to which the property is shipped. The shipping officer will place a notation on one of the copies, requesting that it be signed by the proper official of the institution upon receipt of the property and forwarded to the Chief of the Matériel Division, Air Corps, Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Two copies to the Chief of the Matériel Division, Air Corps, Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Two copies to the Finance Officer, Fifth Corps Area.

One copy filed as a temporary voucher to the stock record account pending return of receipted copy.

(2) In the case of transfers, shipping tickets will be made out in quadruplicate by the accountable officer shipping the property, and distributed as follows:

Two copies to the institution to which the property is shipped. The shipping officer will place a notation on one of the copies, requesting that it be signed by the proper official of the institution upon receipt of the property and returned to the shipping officer.

One copy to the finance officer of the corps area in which the shipping officer is located, for auditing purposes.

One copy filed as a temporary voucher to the stock record account pending return of receipted copy. (45 Stat. 753; 20 U.S.C. 94) [Par. 6, A.R. 35–6610, Sept. 14, 1939]

§ 84.22 Procedure. Upon receipt of an application from a school for the donation of property for use in courses of vocational training and instruction, the Chief of Ordnance or the Chief of the Air Corps will ascertain the character of the school, the proposed uses of the property, and the need thereof. ## TITLE 24—HOUSING CREDIT

PART 608—PROGRESSIVE STEPS IN THE INITIATION OF A LOW-RENT HOUSING PROJECT*†

Sec.
608.0 Scope and content.
608.1 Co-operation with the United States Housing Authority.
608.2 Steps leading to a tentative earmarking of funds.
608.3 Steps leading to an application for financial assistance for a specific project.
608.4 Making of a loan contract and a contract for annual contributions for a specific project.

§ 608.1 Co-operation with the United States Housing Authority. Throughout the formulation of a local program there should be the closest possible co-operation between the local authority and the United States Housing Authority. The USHA is anxious to extend any necessary assistance, especially in the early stages, to assure that the local authority will proceed with a maximum of economy and a minimum of effort, and to protect the local authority against spending money in the formulation of a project which cannot be approved by the USHA. Care in the early stages of the project will in the long run make for the greatest speed, efficiency, and economy. The USHA will make available advisers to consult with local authorities on the spot as to the legal, economic, financial, planning, and architectural phases of their proposed programs. Through such consultation and advice, a project ought to be in shape for speedy consideration and approval when submitted to the USHA through a formal application. It is the policy of the USHA to deal directly with local housing authorities. Persons or organizations, who for a fee offer to promote projects or act as negotiators with the USHA, are unnecessary and are not recognized by the USHA. No middlemen are required or desired.*† [Par. I]

§ 608.2 Steps leading to a tentative earmarking of funds. (a) State legislation, where it does not already exist, should be adopted, authorizing the creation of local housing authorities with power to develop, administer, and finance low-rent housing projects, and enabling the State, city, county, or other political subdivision, in which a project is situated to make the required annual contributions (such as tax remissions or tax exemptions) and to provide other forms of co-operation. Upon request of local officials, the Legal Division of the USHA will aid in drafting new legislation or necessary amendments to existing legislation.

(b) Organization of a local housing authority and the appointment of its members should be accomplished in accordance with state law. Two certified transcripts of the organization proceedings should be supplied promptly to the USHA as a matter of record. Upon the request of local officials, the Legal Division of the USHA will supply a complete set of appropriate forms and proceedings for the organization of a local housing authority, including by-laws.

(c) Adequate preliminary funds must be available to the local authority for reasonable administrative and technical assistance in connection with its preliminary work.

(d) A tentative general program for low-rent housing in relation to the needs of the locality should be considered. This general program should not go so far as the formulation of specific projects, but should be based on:

(1) Available evidence as to the extent of slums and of indecent, unsafe and insanitary dwelling conditions in the locality; a general consideration of the need for low-rent housing; and a rough estimate of the rentals which low-income families can afford. Surveys or other such data are unnecessary at this stage.

(2) A preliminary consideration of alternate types of projects (on vacant sites or on slum sites; single houses, row houses, or multi-family structures; etc.)

(3) Estimate of amount of the USHA loan which, if available, could be effectively utilized during the succeeding two years.

(e) The three principal statutory requirements of the United States Housing Act should be considered, and the possibilities canvassed for:

(1) Raising the necessary 10 percent of the development cost of housing projects either through loans or capital donations.

(2) Obtaining necessary local annual contributions, such as tax remissions or tax exemptions.

(3) Providing for the required elimination of unsafe or insanitary dwellings substantially equal in number to the number of new dwellings proposed. (It is unnecessary to make specific arrangements or obtain commitments on these matters prior to an earmarking. In fact no such arrangements or commitments should be made or obtained at this stage regarding the 10 percent local financing).

(f) Request for earmarking of funds for its general program may be made by the local authority to the USHA when the above listed steps have been taken. In connection with such request, it will generally be helpful for one or more members of the authority, accompanied if possible by its general manager and technical adviser, to come to Washington for consultation. Direct contact with the Legal and Project Planning Divisions of the USHA will aid in clearing up difficulties and assuring rapid progress on the local program. As much data as is readily available on items (a) through (e) should be brought to Washington, but no formal presentation need be prepared in advance. Before securing an earmarking (and even after an earmarking until definite approval of a site by the USHA), the local housing authority should avoid definite commitments as to particular sites. Before such time, it will also be unnecessary for it to choose architects or engineers or to prepare any plans or specifications.

(g) Earmarking of funds by the USHA will be considered promptly when the above listed steps have been taken. Earmarkings do not in any case imply the approval of any specific project, but rather indicate the belief of the USHA that the local authority can proceed rapidly toward the formulation of satisfactory projects complying with the Act. Before a loan contract and a contract for annual contributions or capital grant relating to a low-rent housing project can be entered into by the USHA, the steps outlined under Sections 608.3 and 608.4 must be taken.*† [Par. II]

§ 608.3 Steps leading to an application for financial assistance for a specific project. As soon as an earmarking is made, the local authority should proceed with the formulation of a specific project. It is desirable that each specific project be considered as part of a comprehensive long-range program for elimination of the slums of the city and the rehousing of slum dwellers. The USHA is ready, from the start, to consult with the local housing authority on comprehensive plans for the future of its community. Adequate administrative and technical staff should be employed. The development and administration of even a moderate sized low-rent housing project is an important business and social venture, demanding sound judgment and technical ability. In most cases, a general manager with necessary assistants, and a technical adviser (who may be on a consultant basis) will prove necessary. The eight principal steps in the formulation of a specific project are enumerated and outlined below.

(a) Determination of need. As the first step in the formulation of a specific project, reliable data must be obtained as to the extent of slums and as to indecent, unsafe and insanitary housing conditions in the locality. On the basis of such information, the local authority should determine the actual need for the low-rent housing project, the income group to be served by it, and the rents which such group can afford to pay. The date for such determination may be available in the form of real property surveys or special surveys of slum areas. New sample surveys may in some cases be necessary.

(b) Site selection. Available sites should be carefully examined, bearing in mind their relative advantages in respect to their relation to a general city plan, to the first cost of land, cost of land improvements, types of buildings suitable to the various sites, and the resulting livability and cost to the occupants. The advice of city planning and zoning agencies will often be very valuable. In selecting sites, consideration should also be given to the ease and speed of acquisition of the site in order to permit the earliest possible commencement of construction work. The local authority should submit the proposed site for advice by the USHA as early as possible. In some cases it will be wise to select tentatively two or more alternate sites and submit them to the USHA for advice. In all cases before the submission of an application, a suitable site must be selected, its boundaries be determined, maps and photographs be prepared, and an estimate be made of its probable cost. This estimate of cost need not involve formal appraisal of the various parcels comprising the site. In addition to the above necessary steps, the local authority may, if it so desires, submit its site to the USHA for tentative approval before submitting its application. If the USHA then gives its consent, the local authority may proceed to the preparation of a survey, appraisals of the various individual parcels, the collection of title information, and the negotiation of options. In no event should appraisals be made without prior approval by the USHA of the appraisers to be selected, the cost of appraisals and the appraisal methods proposed; nor should options be taken until the USHA has approved the appraisals.

(c) Suggested site plan and proposed number of dwelling units. In order to ascertain the proposed development cost of the entire project, it will be necessary to determine the proposed number of dwelling units. This will involve the preparation of a site plan indicating an economical development of the site. The USHA will supply advisers or consultants to aid in such work. In the preparation of final plans and specifications, the suggested site plan may be modified as deemed desirable. The Local Authority should determine the number of dwelling units which can with advantage be placed on the site. It should also prepare a suggested schedule of dwelling units showing the approximate number of units of each type (such as 2-story row houses, etc.) and the number of units of various sizes (3 rooms, 4 rooms, etc.). In connection with the preparation of a suggested site plan, the local authority may wish to retain an architect or engineer on a consulting basis, but it is not necessary at this stage to contract for the final preparation of plans and specifications. The local authority may, however, if it so wishes, undertake at this stage an examination of the qualifications of various architects proposed for permanent employment, and make its final selection. However, the USHA cannot make loans to finance local authorities for expenditures of any nature unless such expenditures are applicable to projects for which loan contracts are made. Thus, contracts for architectural or engineering services should not be entered into until after the execution of a loan agreement with the USHA, except that local authorities may, in their own discretion, make such contracts contingent upon the execution of a loan contract and subject to such conditions as may be mutually satisfactory to the local authority and the architect in the event that the loan contract in question is not executed. The forms of contracts and fees to be paid should in all cases be approved by the USHA, and it is advisable that contingent agreements be based upon the conditions in the USHA's suggested form of architect's contract.

(d) Determination of proposed development cost of the entire project. Since definite plans and specifications will not be prepared until after a loan contract is made, the local authority will not be required to make a detailed estimate of the development cost of the project at this stage. Instead there will be used for application and contract a "Proposed Development Cost" based on the proposed number of dwelling units. An allowance of 5 per cent for changes and extras during development should be included in the Proposed Development Cost.

(e) Amounts requested for loan and annual contributions. The local authority should determine the amount of loan to be requested from the USHA. When annual contributions are made, the total loan by the USHA cannot exceed 90 per cent of the actual total development cost of the project. The amount of loan for which the local authority requests a contract should not exceed 90 per cent of the proposed development cost of the entire project. The contract when written will provide that the amount of loan contracted for may, at the option of the USHA, be increased subsequently by a margin of safety of 1/10. The addition of the 10 per cent margin of safety in the preparation of contracts between the local authority and the USHA does not in any way imply that the project cost should exceed the proposed development cost. On the contrary, in developing the project the local authority will be required to achieve the maximum economy consistent with the purposes of the Act and to exert every effort to keep within the proposed development cost. The local authority should also determine the amount of the annual contributions to be requested from the USHA. This will be based upon the annual contribution (in addition to the local annual contribution) needed to make up the difference between the annual costs of the project and the rentals which the low-income families can pay. In no event can the annual contributions by the USHA exceed 3¾ per cent[1] annually of the actual total development cost of the project. The amount of annual contributions requested should not exceed 3¾ per cent annually of the proposed development cost plus a margin of safety of 1/10.

(f) Specific arrangements for meeting three principal statutory requirements. Before submitting an application, the local authority should make specific arrangements for obtaining necessary local annual contributions, such as tax remissions or tax exemptions and providing for the required elimination of unsafe or unsanitary dwellings substantially equal in number to the number of new dwellings proposed. Whenever possible, before an application is submitted, definite provisions for meeting these statutory requirements shall have been completed through binding contracts between the local authority and public agencies. A resolution by a city council or other governing body will suffice if it imposes upon the city or other public agency, a similar contractual obligation. Whenever it is impossible for the local authority to obtain such final contracts or resolutions prior to the submission of the application, the USHA, for the purpose of taking action on the application, will accept other reasonable assurances. However, in such cases, a provision will be inserted in the Loan Contract requiring that such contracts or resolutions be obtained as a condition precedent to the obligation of the USHA to advance any funds under the Loan Contract. The third principal statutory requirement is that at least 10% of the development cost of the project be financed other than by loans from the USHA. Such local financing may be by capital donations or sale of bonds to private purchasers. Whenever possible, before an application is submitted, definite arrangements by contracts or resolutions should be made for such capital donations as are to be obtained. The USHA will not require, as a condition precedent to entering into loan and annual contributions contracts or to the advance of funds prior to the award of construction contracts, that any specific arrangements be made or commitments obtained for the sale of any bonds to purchasers other than the USHA. In fact it is advisable that the local authorities should not enter into any binding agreements in regard to the private sale of these bonds but that they should be sold at public sale with competitive bidding to ascertain their market value and obtain the best possible terms of sale. The USHA will merely require reasonable assurances that such bonds can be sold. These assurances may take the form of an offer or a letter from a prospective purchaser stating that it will make a bid for the bonds on certain proposed terms.

[1] The United States Housing Act limits the rate of Federal annual contributions to 1 per cent in excess of the going Federal rate of interest at the time the annual contributions contract is made. The going rate of Federal interest is now 2¾ per cent thus fixing the annual rate of Federal annual contribution at a maximum of 3¾ per cent. This maximum is subject to change as the going rate of Federal interest may change. Prior to June 15, 1938, this rate was 2½ per cent and annual contributions contracts entered into prior to that date are at the rate of 3½ per cent.

(g) Other arrangements for co-operation with local governments. Other possible forms of co-operation by which local governments might aid a low-rent housing project are: the zoning or rezoning of the site and of the area surrounding the site; vacation or replanning of streets and alleys, etc., as necessary for the proper planning of the project; the acceptance of the dedication of new streets and alleys, etc., together with the improving and maintaining of the same; the waiving of building and inspection fees; the making of exceptions from building regulations and ordinances as necessary in the development of the project; the maintaining of playgrounds, recreation centers, or other community facilities included within the project; the furnishing and maintaining of public facilities adjoining or in the neighborhood of the project, such as new street approaches, playgrounds, schools, community centers, clinics; the extending, enlarging, or changing of sewer or utility lines; the furnishing, without charge, or at special rates, of municipal services for which a charge is usually made in addition to ad valorem taxes, such as water, gas, electricity, or sewerage, garbage, trash and ash removal. When arrangements are made for some or all of the above forms of co-operation, contracts, or resolutions should, if possible, be obtained before an application is submitted. Whenever it is impossible for the local authorities to obtain such final contracts or resolutions prior to the submission of the application, the USHA, for the purpose of taking action on the application, will accept other reasonable assurances. However, in such cases, a provision will be inserted in the Loan Contract requiring that such contracts or resolutions be obtained as a condition precedent to the obligation of the USHA to purchase bonds of the local authority. In order that the contracts, resolutions, or other assurance in connection with the three principal statutory requirements mentioned in paragraph (f) above, as well as the arrangements for co-operation with local governments mentioned in this paragraph (g) may be in satisfactory form, it is recommended that a legal advisor of the USHA be consulted before they are entered into. Forms of contracts and proceedings for their authorization are available and will be furnished by the USHA upon request.

(h) Submission of the application. When the above action has been taken in the formulation of a specific project, the local authority should submit to the USHA an Application for Financial Assistance. This application shall correlate and present all of the material outlined under the above items (a) through (g). Application forms (including instructions for their preparation) are available from the USHA.*† [Par. III]

§ 608.4 Making of a loan contract and a contract for annual contributions for a specific project. When a completed application is submitted, it will be reviewed by the USHA. Contracts for financial assistance cannot be made unless it is established:

(a) That slums, or indecent, unsafe, and insanitary dwelling conditions exist in the locality; that there is a need for low-rent housing; and that the project will help to meet that need.

(b) That the legal requirements of the Act will be met (including equivalent elimination, assurances of 10% local participation, necessary local annual contributions, and local co-operation, etc.) and that proper disposition can be made of all legal questions affecting the development, financing, and administering of the project.

(c) That it is possible, under the conditions prevailing in the locality, to develop a feasible project within the cost limitations and other terms of the Act.

(d) That the project is feasible and desirable from the viewpoint of site selection, and that the site can be acquired at a reasonable price and at a price consistent with its proposed use for low-rent housing.

(e) "That the project will not be of elaborate or expensive design or materials, and economy will be promoted both in construction and administration." See Sec. 15 (5) (a) of the United States Housing Act of 1937.

If the USHA approves the application, it will proceed with the preparation of two separate contracts, namely, a loan contract to aid in financing the development of the project, and a contract for annual contributions to assist in achieving and maintaining low rentals. The approval of an application and the making of contracts based thereon does not constitute final approval of all items included in the application. These two contracts, which are described separately below, will be executed at the same time.

(a) Loan contract. In the loan contract, the USHA will agree to loan funds to assist in financing the development of a low-rent housing project on the following terms:

(1) The amount to be loaned by the USHA will be a specified amount, equal to 90% (or such lesser per cent as may be agreed upon and stated in the contract) of the proposed development cost of the project. The contract will also provide that the USHA may at its option subsequently increase such amount by a margin of safety of 1/10. Since the loan contract will be made prior to the final determination of the actual cost of the project, it will contain a provision for the reduction of the entire amount of the loan to the extent that such amount proves to exceed 90% (or such lesser per cent as may be agreed upon and stated in the contract) of the actual total development cost of the project as determined by the USHA.

(2) Upon the request of the local authority, the USHA will advance funds for the purchase of land, for the preparation of plans and specifications, and for other preliminary expenses at any time after the loan contract is executed and before compliance with the conditions applicable to purchases of definitive bonds. Such advance will be made upon receipt of Advance Loan Notes exchangeable for definitive bonds when issued.

(3) The obligations evidencing the loan made by USHA (with the possible exception of any advance pursuant to (2) above for which other security provisions may be made) must be negotiable, serial, coupon bonds, bearing interest at an agreed upon rate (not less than 3¼%)[1] must be payable in full in a specified period of time not exceeding sixty (60) years, and will be secured by a trust indenture (without a power of foreclosure) with such provisions as may be provided in the loan contract.

(4) The USHA will be under no obligation to take up and pay for any bonds which it has contracted to purchase, or to make any advance pursuant to (2) above, until the local authority has demonstrated to the satisfaction of the USHA that:

(i) The local authority has a binding contractual obligation or a right under law, to obtain the necessary local annual contributions and local co-operation from the State, city, county or other political subdivision.

(ii) The provisions for equivalent elimination, as required by Sec. 10 (a) of the United States Housing Act have been accomplished or contracted for.

(iii) The local authority has obtained reasonable assurances that it can obtain by capital donations or sale of its bonds to purchasers other than the USHA the amount necessary to cover that portion of the proposed development cost which the USHA has not contracted to furnish, plus a margin of safety of one-tenth.

(5) The USHA will be under no obligation to take up and pay for any bonds (except for any advance pursuant to (2) above) which it has contracted to purchase until the local authority has demonstrated to the satisfaction of the USHA that (in addition to meeting the conditions in (4) above):

(i) It has prepared final plans and specifications which are accepted by the USHA.

(ii) It can complete the development of the project in accordance with such plans and specifications for the amount which the USHA has agreed to lend, together with such amount as the local authority has arranged to obtain from other sources.

(iii) The cost of dwelling facilities per room and per dwelling unit will meet the specific limitations in Sec. 15 (5) of the Act, and that the construction cost of dwelling units will meet the limitations of Sec. 15 (5) (b) of the Act.

(iv) A bond transcript has been submitted showing that the bonds are binding and legal obligations.

(v) The local authority has obtained (or has a binding contractual obligation to obtain) the amount of funds necessary to cover that portion of the Proposed Development Cost which the USHA has not contracted to furnish, plus a margin of safety of one-tenth.

(vi) The local authority has observed all the provisions contained in the loan contract.

(6) After compliance with the contract conditions applicable to advances under (2) above or to bond purchases (as the case may be), a local authority may file requisitions for funds on account of the loan as they are needed for the development of the project, such requisitions to be accompanied by such documents and transcript papers as may be required by the contract. Each such payment of funds will be made by the USHA only after the filing and approval of a certificate of purposes of the expenditures which the local authority proposes to make.

(7) If all or a part of the local participation in the development cost is to be met by loans, at least 50% of such loan funds must be obtained by the local authority not later than the date on which the USHA has advanced 50% of the specified amount of its loan. The balance of such local loan funds must be obtained by the local authority not later than the date on which the USHA has advanced 90% of the funds to be loaned by it.

(8) The loan contract will provide for the following construction terms and conditions: the requirement that construction work be done by lump sum contract, after competitive bidding; the submission to and approval by the USHA of proposed and final construction contract documents; the securing of performance bonds and compensation and liability insurance; the prohibition of child and convict labor, discrimination in employment, interference with collective bargaining, and so-called "kickback" payments; the requirements of payments of prevailing wage rates and other conditions of employment, including hours of work; compliance with provisions in Sec. 6 (c) of the Act relating to American-made materials; and review during construction and submission of periodic reports.

(b) Contract for annual contributions. In the contract for annual contributions, the USHA will agree to make annual contributions to the local authority to assist in achieving and maintaining the low-rent character of the project on the following terms:

(1) The annual contribution will be a specified percentage (not exceeding 3¾%) annually of the actual total development cost of the project as determined by the USHA but not to exceed, in any event, a specified amount which amount will be the specified percentage (not exceeding 3¾%) of the proposed development cost plus a margin of safety of one-tenth.

(2) Such annual contributions will be payable in uniform amounts over a specified period, not in excess of sixty (60) years, from the date of the contract. Such annual contributions will commence on a date to be fixed in the contract which date shall be not earlier than one year from the date of the contract. In case any contract is made for a period exceeding twenty (20) years, the USHA will reserve the right under Sec. 10 (c) of the Act to re-examine the status of the project at the end of ten (10) years after the date of the contract, and every five (5) years thereafter, and to make any modifications required by the provisions of said Sec. 10 (c).

(3) Each annual contribution will be payable fifteen days in advance of the commencement of the yearly period to which such contribution is applicable. The local authority will be required to furnish a certificate and other assurances that during the twelve months' period preceding any such payment the local authority shall have retained ownership of the housing project, maintained its low-rent character, paid prevailing wages as required by Sec. 16 (2) of the Act, obtained the required local annual contributions to supplement the annual contribution from the USHA, and observed the provisions of the annual contributions contract relating to equivalent elimination.

(4) All such annual contributions shall be pledged as security for any loans obtained by the local authority to assist the development of the project; Provided, That such annual contributions shall be used first to apply toward the payment of interest or principal as the same mature on any loan made by the USHA to the local authority (including any bonds or other evidences of such loan which may be resold by the USHA) to assist the development of the project to which the annual contributions relate.

(c) Forms of contracts and proceedings. In order to assist local authorities the USHA has available for local use suggested forms of contracts and proceedings relating to:

(1) Creation and organization of local housing authorities, including by-laws,
(2) Equivalent elimination,
(3) Local co-operation and local annual contributions in the form of tax exemption,
(4) Public sale of local authority bonds,
(5) Local capital donations,
(6) Surveys, title information, guarantee policies, title certificates, appraisals and options,
(7) Architect's services,
(8) Construction contracts, and related documents,
(9) Deposit of Loan Proceeds in Development Fund,
(10) Advance Loan Notes, and proceedings authorizing same,
(11) Housing Authority Bonds, Trust Indenture securing same and proceedings authorizing issuance thereof, and
(12) Other matters involved in the financing or development of projects.

(d) Presidential approval. Pursuant to Sec. 6 (d) of the U. S. Housing Act, no loan contract or contract for annual contributions or capital grant will be entered into by the USHA without the approval of the President.

(e) Execution of contract. Upon the completion of the steps outlined in this bulletin and upon the approval of the President, a loan contract and a contract for annual contributions or capital grant may be executed by the USHA and the local authority.*† [Par. IV]

PART 609—SELECTION AND QUALIFICATION OF ARCHITECTS *†

Sec.
609.0 Scope and content.
609.1 Methods of selection.
609.2 Selection of method.
609.3 Procedure of qualifying competition.
609.4 Miscellaneous considerations.

§ 609.0 Scope and content. This Part is intended to describe the methods of selecting architectural services after the execution of a loan agreement with the USHA. It is to be understood that local authorities may, in their own discretion, make contracts with architects contingent upon the execution of a loan contract and subject to such conditions as may be mutually satisfactory to the local authority and the architect in the event that the loan contract in question is not executed. In connection with the problem of engaging architectural services the Part discusses the following points: methods of selection, selection of method, procedure of qualifying competition and miscellaneous considerations.*† [Introduction]

§ 609.1 Methods of selection. In connection with the problem of engaging architectural services, local housing authorities are requested to give consideration to the following methods of selection:

(a) By direct competition. This method contemplates open competition on the basis of plans submitted for the actual architectural services involved in a particular project. The USHA takes no position for or against this method with respect to general work but it appears that it is not well adapted to the USHA program for the following reasons: in the early stages of project development the problem is not sufficiently clear to permit the drafting of an adequate program for the competition, hence serious delays would result from this process; extra costs are involved since it is necessary to employ architectural advisers for a well organized competition; there is the well known danger that the winner of a competition might be brilliant in general plan and design but inept with respect to practical considerations. It should be borne in mind that unusual executive and organizing ability are vital qualifications for this class of architectural service.

(b) By direct employment of large groups. This method has been frequently employed by local housing authorities. It has the merit of meeting pressure and of distributing work to a large number of architectural firms. However it does not involve the employment of a larger number of draftsmen but does, in effect, curtail the benefits to those architects in the group who will, inevitably, take the lead. The method has at least two distinct disadvantages; it involves the possibility of serious delays and it tends to check ingenuity of design and construction. Admittedly the latter point may be argued from the reverse point of view, that is, a large group may also be depended upon not to produce plans which contain serious errors. However the danger of mediocrity should not be overlooked, nor should the local authority fail to realize that with a large group it is difficult if not impossible to center the responsibility.

(c) By direct employment of a single firm or a very small group. Under this method the natural and proper procedure would be to select a single firm, or at most two or three firms who, by training and past experience, are well qualified with respect to the peculiar problems of low-rent housing.

(d) By the establishment of an architectural office within the local authority. This method may, in rare instances, be necessary, but should be avoided so far as possible. The experience of the USHA indicates that the employment of carefully selected architects on a professional basis will bring to each project maturity of judgment plus originality of ideas and that a new organization more or less hastily assembled for the purpose will lack not only this experience and originality, but the incentive of maintaining a professional reputation as well.

(e) By qualifying competition. In this form of competition a hypothetical problem, incorporating typical questions involved in planning USHA-Aided projects, is presented by the local authority. The competing local architects prepare and submit drawings embodying their solutions of the problem to a group of experts selected by the local authority (hereinafter referred to as the "Jury"). The Jury examines the drawings and, upon the basis thereof, selects the architects qualified for work on USHA-Aided projects. The architects qualifying make up the list (hereinafter referred to as the "Panel") from which the local authority selects architects for its future projects. The advantages of this method of selection may be listed as follows:

(1) The Method supplies a scientific process for determining, in advance, the architects who have the analytical ability necessary to solve the new problems and meet the new issues involved in planning USHA-Aided projects. Many architects who are otherwise thoroughly competent have been unable to solve the special problems involved in planning large-scale, low-rent housing projects.

(2) The Method supplies the local authority with a Panel of architects from which, under the terms of the Competition Program, architects will be selected for future projects. The local authority may reserve complete discretion as to selection from the Panel or may request the Jury to assign a numerical order of merit or to arrange working groups. Architects who are selected for the Panel are thereby given an incentive to study and prepare for work in the low-rent housing field.

(3) The Method is inexpensive. The costs to the local authority are limited mainly to the expenses incurred in printing or mimeographing and mailing the "Competition Program" (described in Sec. 609.3 (c)) and any necessary compensation to the local architect or housing expert serving on the Jury. The cost allocable to any one of several projects will be particularly low, since one competition will ordinarily supply a Panel which may be used for a considerable period of time.

(4) The Method tends to expedite the program by obviating the delays which sometimes develop in obtaining qualified architects when they are needed. Selection under the Method may be completed well in advance of the time of actual need as no particular site or any other purely local conditions are involved.

(5) The Method provides an exceptional opportunity for brilliant but inexperienced young architects. Such architects are at a disadvantage in certain forms of competition since "names" and established reputations tend to outweigh technical resourcefulness and originality. The Method tends to reduce these handicaps for younger men and to facilitate their qualifying. The Method also provides a means of associating younger men with qualified seniors and thereby developing the professional maturity of the juniors as well as obtaining a nice balance between originality and experience.*† [Par. I]

§ 609.2 Selection of method. The advantages of selection by direct employment of a single firm or a very small group appear to greatly outweigh the advantages of selection by direct competition, by direct employment of large groups, or by establishment of an architectural office within the local authority. However, depending upon the size of the project, the future plans of the particular authority, and other pertinent considerations, the selection by qualifying competition may be found to be the most expedient.*† [Par. II]

§ 609.3 Procedure on qualifying competition. The principal steps in organizing and carrying out a qualifying competition are as follows:

(a) The local authority notifies the local architects that a "qualifying competition" will be held to obtain a Panel of architects for future projects. Interested architects are advised to obtain from, and file with, the local authority applications for the Competition Program. The letter of notification should also state that the proposed competition will have the approval of the American Institute of Architects and that applicants should submit with their applications proof of their eligibility, such as registration in States having a registration law or other proof of practice in States not providing for registration.

(b) The local authority obtains from the USHA a suggested form of Competition Program setting forth a hypothetical problem in large-scale, low-rent project and unit planning. This problem is designed to show the analytical ability of the architect rather that his skill as a draftsman. The drawings required are few and the time allowed short.

(c) The local authority arranges and prepares copies of the Competition Program. To meet the requirements of the USHA and the American Institute of Architects, the Program must provide for a Professional (architectural) Adviser to assist in adapting the Competition Program to local needs, to answer questions, to rule on mandatory requirements of the Program, and generally to assist the Jury in determining the qualifications of the applicants; assure absolute anonymity of the applicants during the competition; state that future awarded contracts will be in accordance with the USHA suggestions; provide for a Jury comprising a member of the local authority, an architect selected by the local architectural society, and a specialist in housing (preferably an architect) to select the winning submissions and, if so requested, place them in order of merit; indicate the places at which and the time when the Jury will render judgment; and state that a brief report by the Jury on the competition will be published. (The USHA suggested form of Competition Program satisfies all the requirements set forth in this subparagraph (c) ).

(d) Upon receipt of the executed applications, the local authority issues copies of the Competition Program. The applicants then prepare and submit drawings embodying their respective solutions of the hypothetical problem.

(e) The drawings are checked by the Professional Adviser, or other representative of the local authority for mandatory disqualifications. Each set of drawings is submitted wrapped, together with an envelope containing the name of the submitter. The representative of the local authority, after checking the drawings as indicated, above, numbers each set and numbers correspondingly the envelope containing the name of the submittor. The eligible drawings are then submitted to the Jury.

(f) The Jury examines and renders judgment on the drawings. The judgment will ordinarily require about three days. In the case of a very large number of entrants (for example, a hundred or more) careful judgment will require a longer period.

(g) The Professional Adviser or other representative of the local authority, in the presence of the members of the local authority, opens the envelopes containing the names of the persons submitting the drawings, reads the Jury report, and makes public the awards of the Jury. The architects qualifying constitute the Panel from which the local authority must, pursuant to the terms of the Competition, select architects for its future projects.*† [Par. III]

§ 609.4 Miscellaneous considerations. In addition to the suggestions contained in the foregoing paragraphs, the following points are offered as suggestions for consideration by the local housing authorities in selecting architects:

(a) In case a local authority has made arrangements with architects to do preliminary work on a contingent basis, and where the local authority is without funds, or sufficient funds, for administrative purposes, it is suggested that the architect might prepare the major part of the application in addition to preparing the preliminary site plan and other architectural studies.

(b) If the local authority does not contemplate the employment of a Technical Director as well as an Executive Director, the Executive Director should have a technical background.

(c) In the case of multiple projects it is considered desirable for the authority to designate the Technical Director to act as the clearing house for all architectural ideas. We believe the Technical Director should be employed on a full time salary basis rather than on a contract fee basis. If the local authority does not have a Technical Director, one of the architects on one of the projects should be designated to act as the clearing house. In this connection it should be made clear that the local authority should reserve the right to use ideas developed by one architect, or group of architects, in the development of other projects. In any event, when architects are employed in large groups, the local authority should insist that each group enter into an organization agreement which would set up a Director of the group as the responsible contact between the authority and the architectural group; such an agreement should be submitted to the local housing authority for approval.

(d) If two, or more, firms of architects are engaged for a single project, they should be chosen with the thought in view that it is desirable to secure a diversity of advantages by this process. Hence, it should be borne in mind that an ideal group will comprise an outstanding designer, a man with wide practical construction experience, a man fully experienced in writing specifications, and finally, a man with organizing ability to see that work is coordinated and progress maintained in a business-like manner.

(e) On projects which are large, and which entail considerations of city planning, the local authority should consider the desirability of engaging a good city planner as a consultant, unless the engaged architects have such a man among their number.*† [Par. IV]

C.*[1] In accordance with the provisions of Section 5 of the River and Harbor Act approved August 18, 1894, the following special regulations are prescribed to govern the opening of the drawbridge of the South Carolina State Highway Department across Battery Creek between Beaufort and Parris Island, South Carolina:

(a) The owner or agency controlling the bridge will not be required to keep a tender in constant atendance at the aforementioned bridge.

(b) Whenever a vessel, unable to pass under the closed bridge, desires to pass through the draw span, at least 24 hours' advance notice of the time the opening is required shall be given to the authorized representative of the owner or agency controlling the bridge.

(c) Upon receipt of such notice, the authorized representative of the owner of or agency controlling the bridge, in compliance therewith, shall arrange for the prompt opening of the draw at the time specified in the notice for the passage of the vessel.

(d) The owner of or agency controlling the bridge shall keep conspicuously posted on both the upstream and downstream sides of the bridge, in a manner that it can easily be read at any time, a copy of these regulations, together with a notice stating exactly how the representative specified in paragraph (b) may be reached.

(e) The operating machinery of the draw shall be maintained in a serviceable condition and the draw opened and closed at least once each quarter to make certain that the machinery is in proper order for satisfactory operation.

(f) These regulations shall take effect and be in force on and after November 1, 1939, and are supplemental to the "Rules and regulations to govern the operation of drawbridges crossing all navigable waterways of the United States discharging their waters into the Atlantic Ocean south of and including Chesapeake Bay and the Gulf of Mexico, excepting the Mississippi River and its tributaries." § 16.0 When effective. These regulations are not retroactive; i. e., they do not apply to vessels the keels of which were laid prior to the date these rules become effective. These regulations become effective March 1, 1940.

§ 16.1 Authority of Director. (a) The Director of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation is charged with the supervision of the laws relating to the admeasurement of vessels, and on all questions of interpretation growing out of the execution of the laws relating to this subject his decision is final.

(b) The Director of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation shall, in the following sections, be referred to as the Director.

(c) Doubts arising in the minds of the admeasurers concerning decks to the hull, enclosures on or above the upper deck, shelter decks, method of procedure, etc., shall be submitted to the Director for his decision, and shall be accompanied by blueprints or sketches of the spaces in question giving all the facts bearing on same.

§ 16.2 Officials authorized to admeasure vessels. (a) Before any vessel shall be registered, enrolled, or licensed she shall be measured by an officer of the customs at the port or place where she may be.

(b) A vessel is not to be measured unless she is required by law to be registered, enrolled or licensed, or otherwise specially provided for.

§ 16.3 Purpose for which measurements are taken. (a) Tonnage measurements are taken for the purpose of ascertaining the internal capacity of measurable spaces.

(b) All measurements are to be taken in feet and fractions of feet, and all fractions of feet shall be expressed in decimals.

§ 16.4 Register ton. A register ton is a volume of 100 cubic feet.

§ 16.5 Gross register tonnage. (a) The gross tonnage referred to in the following sections is the gross register tonnage; that is, the gross tonnage exclusive of all permissible exempted spaces.

(b) The gross register tonnage of a vessel shall consist of the sum of the following items:

(c) The cubical capacity below the tonnage deck, excluding exemptible water ballast spaces within the measureable portion of the vessel.

(d) The cubical capacity of each between deck space above the tonnage deck;

(e) The cubical capacity of the permanent closed-in spaces on the upper deck available for cargo or stores, or for the accommodation of passengers and/or crew.

(f) All permanent closed-in spaces situated elsewhere available for cargo or stores, or for the accommodation of the crew, or for the charts, except cabins or staterooms for passengers constructed entirely above the first deck which is not a deck to the hull;

(g) The excess of hatchways.

§ 16.6 Net register tonnage. (a) The tonnage of a vessel remaining after the authorized deductions have been made from the gross register tonnage shall be deemed the net register tonnage.

(b) In ascertaining the net tonnage no space may be deducted unless it has previously been included in the gross tonnage and certified, showing the purpose for which used.

§ 16.7. The marine document. The marine document of every vessel shall show the date and place of build; the register length, breadth, depth, and, in vessels of more than two decks, the height of the upper deck to the hull above the tonnage deck; the number of decks and masts; build as to her head and stern; capacity under the tonnage deck, that of the between decks, and also separately, permanently enclosed spaces on or above the upper deck to the hull available for cargo or stores or for the accommodation of passengers (provisionally) or crew, and the omitted spaces, whether open or closed in, on, above, or below the upper deck; the gross tonnage; items of deduction; and net tonnage.

§ 16.8 Application for measurement. The builder of a new vessel required to be admeasured, or the person having supervision of changes and/or alterations affecting a vessel's register tonnage, is obliged to make application for admeasurement or tonnage adjustment as the case may be, in writing, to the collector of customs of the district in which the vessel is located. Such application shall be made before cargo or ballast is taken on, and in case of a new vessel, before boilers or engine is installed or compartments partitioned off.

§ 16.9 Drawings. (a) The builder of a vessel of over 100 gross tons, approximately, is requested, if practicable, in order to facilitate measurement, to furnish, at a reasonable time before the vessel is launched, to the principal customs officer nearest to the place where the vessel is building, the following plans:

(1) A drawing of the cross section in which is shown the construction of the double bottom, if there be one;

(2) An inboard view of the longitudinal section, showing the double bottom, its use or uses, if existing, otherwise the floors, the compartments for water ballast, other than the double bottom, the decks, the superstructures, hatchways, etc.;

(3) Deck plans showing the arrangement and uses of different compartments and deductible spaces;

(4) Drawings showing the arrangement of the engine, boiler, and fuel compartments; and

(5) A tonnage plan showing half breadths of the sections at the points of division of the tonnage length of the vessel into a certain number of equal parts in accordance with the rules for the measurement of spaces under the tonnage deck. The scale or scales of these drawings are to be indicated thereon.

The collector of customs is to be advised of any subsequent changes in the vessel and furnished copies of the corrected plans, or a statement of such changes.

(b) Sketches. When admeasuring a small craft for which there are no blueprints, the admeasurer should make a rough sketch of the inboard profile, hull and deck plans (arrangement plans), recording all necessary dimensions thereon. From such sketches neater ones may be prepared and filed with the tonnage admeasurement (Form 1410). Sketches should show the following details: The inboard profile should show the depth of bottom frames or floor timbers if fitted, superstructures, position and use of spaces in the hull and those above deck; the midship cross section, the floors or floor timbers, thickness of inner and outer skin, depth of side frames, etc., and the arrangement plans, the plane outline of hold and deck erections and use of spaces. See Figure 1 (Sec. 16.65) and definition of depth of frame (Sec. 16.69).

§ 16.10 Measurements to be taken at an early stage. Admeasurement should begin as soon as the vessel is sufficiently advanced in construction to permit its being done, usually when the decks are laid, the hold cleared of encumbrances to admit the required depths and breadths being properly taken; before the engine and boilers are installed and accommodations are partitioned off.

§ 16.11 Uniform system required. (a) The following directions are given showing the progressive steps to be followed in the process of admeasurement. It is important not only that the rules be followed, but that required measurements be taken and calculations made in a uniform and correct manner that one general system may prevail throughout the service respecting this subject.

(b) Measurements taken aboard are to be recorded in the "Memorandum of Dimensions" known as Form 1413.

§ 16.12 Forms. The following forms will be furnished the measuring officers upon request:

Master Carpenter's certificate (book form), Form 1261.

Master Carpenter's certificate (for loose leaf binder), Form 1261A.

For other forms required see Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation catalogue.

§ 16.13 Measuring instruments. (a) The measurements should be made with a waterproof tape, graduated into feet and tenths of a foot, and as nearly inelastic as possible.

(b) Sliding rods which are of three sizes: One 3 feet long for taking depths from 3 to 5.8 feet; another 6 feet long for taking depths from 6 to 11 feet, or, with the extension piece attached, to 16 feet; and a third one 11 feet long for taking depths from 11 to 21 feet, or, with the extension piece attached, to 26 feet. The movable or index rod in each has an arrow index traversing a decimal scale on the fixed rod. Greater depths may be taken by inserting into the ends of the index rods, and extension piece, provided with sockets for this purpose one or more joints of lift rods described below:

The fixed rod is graduated in feet (in red) and tenths and half-tenths (in black), and when the ends of the rods are well together the arrow on the index rod points to the figure indicating the constant length of the fixed rod, and as the index rod is moved up the arrow indicates the length from the upper end thereof to the lower end of the fixed rod. Bear in mind, however, that when you use any of the attachments referred to above you must add to the reading on the fixed rod the net length of the attachment used; e. g., if the 6-foot rod is extended to its limit, 11 feet, which is reached when the arrow on the index rod is fair with the upper end of the fixed rod, and the extension piece is attached, which is done by slipping the bands on the lower end of it over the upper end of the index rod until the upper edge of the upper band is fair with the upper end of the index rod, and by fastening (on the groove side of the index rod) with set screws in the said bands, the length will not be 11 feet, as shown by the reading, but 16 feet, the reading plus the increment due to the attachment (11 feet±5 feet). This increment may be further increased by inserting into the end of the extension piece one or more joints of lift rods, each of which is about 3.95 feet when adjusted.

At the station of the area to be measured in single-deck vessels the rod is to be placed on the ceiling, or floor beam or timber when no ceiling is present, alongside the keelson or line of the keel, perpendicular or square thereto, and also parallel to the middle longitudinal plane of the ship, and forced up firmly under the deck and fixed in such position by the set screws; from the depths thus found take one-third of the round or one-half of the pitch of beam to get the depth of the area.

The depth of an area taken as above is to be divided into the required number of equal parts. (See Sec. 16.29d) With the rod fixed in position as above, set off on it from its lower end one of these equal parts, or common interval between the breadths, using white or other colored chalk or material that will make a visible mark, which gives the position of the first breadth above the bottom breadth, and from this when the rod is taken down the positions of the remaining breadths are to be set off at the said common interval.

The positions of all the breadths being thus severally marked on the rod, it is then to be set up again and firmly fixed or held in position, and the breadths may be readily and correctly measured by means of the tape held at right angles across the rod at each of the positions marked thereon.

In measuring vessels with more than one deck, where the second deck from the bottom is the tonnage deck, it will be necessary to use two of these rods in combination, one directly over the other, one in the hold under the first deck, as directed for single-deck vessels, and the other in the space between this deck and the tonnage deck. In this combination the tonnage depth is found by adding together the two depths and the thickness of the deck between the rods and deducting from this combined depth one-third of the round or one-half pitch of beam; then proceed as before directed.

(c) A 2-foot rule with a hinge joint is required for taking the rake of the bow and stern and for other purposes.

(d) A carpenter's square will be found useful for setting the sliding rod perpendicular to the keelson.

(e) For taking the breadths in the hold which are beyond the reach of the measuring officers two lift rods will be needed, each about 8 feet long (made by joining two sections), one having a pulley at the end over which the tape may be drawn when the rods are held in position and the other an attachment for holding the ring at the end of the tape.

(f) For transferring the location of the stations or ordinates of the transverse sections from the deck to the keelson, and sometimes, for finding registered breadth, a plumb line and bob are needed.

(g) For measuring laden vessels for Panama or Suez Canal tonnage certificates, a girting galvanized chain of an approved make is required.

§ 16.14 Stem. A vessel's stem is to be described according to its contour; i. e., straight, raked, curved or square.

§ 16.15 Stern. Describe the stern according to its shape at the after end below the upper deck or line of same, as round, elliptical, square or sharp.

§ 16.16 Masts. In addition to what are commonly known as masts, spars set up at the center line of the bridging at the top of king-posts of certain vessels for signals and wireless antennae, etc., are to be considered as masts. The number of king-posts and derrick posts, etc., independent of the supported masts are to be separately stated after the number of said masts; e. g., "Two masts and eight king-posts," or as the case may be.

§ 16.17 Ceiling, cargo battens, etc.— (a) Ceiling. Ceiling hereafter referred to is considered the permanent planking fitted directly on the inboard side of the frames, or floors, or the top of the double bottom. The maximum allowance for ceiling is 3 inches on the bottom and 3 inches on each side. When ceiling is found to be less than 3 inches thick, allow the actual thickness thereof; that is take dimensions to the face of the ceiling so found. Depths and breadths shall not be decreased due to grounds supporting ceiling nor shall allowance be made for ceiling on the under side of deck beams.

(b) False Ceiling. In small vessels with "false ceiling" in a portion of their cabins, in their holds, or forming a part of their seats or lockers, etc., therein, and which stands off from their frames—that is, not fitted to them as ordinary ceiling—take the breadths through the said "false ceiling" to the inner faces of the vessel's frames, deducting therefrom the thickness of the "false ceiling" on each side. If, however, there is a ceiling fitted on the frames in addition to the "false ceiling," take the breadths to the ceiling on the frames, making no allowance for the "false ceiling."

(c) Cargo Battens, insulation. This section applies to cargo battens (spar ceiling) and refrigeration insulation.

§ 16.18. Register length. (a) The length measured on the tonnage deck, from the fore part of the outer planking (where it is rabbeted) on the side of the stem of wooden vessels, or fore end of lap of outer plating of steel or iron vessels, to the after side of the main sternpost, shall be accounted the vessel's register length. See Figures 2 and 3 (Sec. 16.65).

(b) In the case of screw vessels with no sternpost, take the length to the forward side of the rudder-stock or line of same extended through the deck.

(c) The register length of scows and barges, with a square bow and stern sloping up from the bottom to the deck, and with neither stem nor sternpost, is to be taken on the deck from the extreme point of the hull at the bow to the extreme point of the hull at the stern; that is, the over-all length of the hull, not including guards or rubbing strakes, is to be considered the register length of such vessel.

(b) A practical method for finding the register breadth is, to add twice the sum of the depth of the vessel's side frames and thickness of outer skin, plus an allowance for thickness of ceiling, insulation or cargo battens if fitted, to the greatest tonnage breadth.

§ 16.20 Register depth. The register depth is taken at the middle of the tonnage length from the under side of the tonnage deck, or line of same, down to the top of the floors at the side of the keelson; or to the ordinary floor timbers or plates when flitted; or to the inner bottom plating (tank top) of a cellular double bottom; as the case may be, in a direction perpendicular to the keel.

(b) Should ceiling be fitted on the above mentioned bottom members, the register depth shall be measured to the top of same and to this dimension shall be added the height of grounds, battens or other type of support for the ceiling. See Figures 4 and 5 (Sec. 16.65).

(c) If the vessel is measured in parts, as explained later; the register depth is taken at one-half the tonnage length of the vessel.

§ 16.21 Deck to the hull. The uppermost complete deck, which extends from stem to stern and from side to side at all points of its length and below which there are no openings through the hull as required in shelter deck spaces and also having its hatchways or other openings provided with means for closing them against the action of the sea and weather upon the space below enclosed by the sides of the vessel, making the said space a fit place for the stowage of general cargo, is to be considered the upper deck to the hull.

§ 16.22 Enumerating the decks. In enumerating the number of decks, only those which are without such openings as exempt the spaces beneath from being included in the tonnage under the upper deck are to be considered. Other decks, if any, containing such openings as exempt the spaces beneath from inclusion in tonnage should be separately described after the number of decks proper; e. g., "Two decks and shelter deck," or as the case may be. Partial decks, forward or aft, such as orlop decks, are not considered as decks.

§ 16.23 Register height. If the vessel has three or more decks to the hall, then the height from the top of the tonnage deck planking and/or plating to the under side of the planking and/or plating of the uppermost deck shall be deemed the register height of the uppermost deck above the tonnage deck.

§ 16.24 Round of beam. The round of beam (camber) is the perpendicular distance down from the crown of the under side of the tonnage-deck plank or plating at the center to a line stretched athwart the vessel from end to end of the top of the beam and is to be ascertained at every place where it is to be used in the measurement. See Figures 6 and 16 (Sec. 16.65).

(b) The round of beam of the tonnage-deck, which must be known before taking the tonnage length, as well as before measuring the depths of the tonnage sections, may be taken either at the under side of the deck by stretching a small line tightly from end to end at the top of the beam, which will show the round or camber of the beam at the center; or it may be taken, if more convenient, at the upper side of the deck by stretching a line tightly across, held at equal heights from the deck at each side of the vessel, so as just to touch the crown of the deck at the middle line; then the distance from the deck to the line at the vessel's sides gives the round of beam. See Figure 6 (Sec. 16.65). It is necessary to take the round of beam at each point of division of the length except when the vessel has a flat deck or one practically so. In lieu of the above methods, it may be ascertained on the basis of one-fourth of an inch to the foot of beam at each section in iron or steel vessels of the usual camber of beam. This method is more accurate and easier of application than the others.

(c) When the round of beam is .15' or less, it may be ignored.

§ 16.25 Pitch of beam. (a) In vessels whose tonnage deck has a pitch instead of a round from its side at the shell plating to its center, find the height of the pitch of the beam at each tonnage section. It may be done in any practical manner.

(b) The height of the pitch of the beam is the perpendicular distance from the apex at the under side of the tonnage deck plank or plating at the center of the deck down to a straight line from end to end of the top of the beam. See Figure 7 (Sec. 16.65).

§ 16.26 Tonnage deck. (a) The tonnage deck is the upper deck to the hull in vessels having not more than two decks, and the second deck from the keel in vessels having more than two decks.

(b) If the tonnage deck consists of several partial decks extending with breaks from stem to stern, and if the partial decks are at different heights, the line of the lowest deck will be taken as the tonnage deck, and the headroom above such line under the higher deck or decks will be measured as a break.

(c) Engine and boiler casings, peak tanks and cofferdams are not considered as breaking the continuity of a deck. See Figures 8 and 9 (Sec. 16.65).

§ 16.27 Tonnage length. The tonnage length is the longitudinal distance on the under side of the tonnage deck, or line of same from a point where the line of the inboard faces of the side frames, or ceiling thereon if any, intersects the side of the stem, to a point aft on the inboard face of the stern timber or cant frame, or ceiling if fitted thereon. See Figures 10 and 11 (Sec. 16.65).

(c) Raised platform. In vessels with a raised platform in the bottom and no ceiling fitted on the bottom frame members, the depths are to be taken down through the platform to the upper side of the floor timbers or floor plates as described above, deducting therefrom the thickness of the ceiling of the platform in question.

(d) Depths in way of interruptions to tonnage deck. Should depths of transverse sections fall where the tonnage deck is interrupted, due to a break, hatches, etc., then depths are taken from the line of continuation of the tonnage deck.

(f) Fall of double bottom. In vessels having a double bottom the tank top of which, in way of tonnage sections, has a straight fall from the center line to the wings the tonnage depth of each section will terminate at one-half height of fall. See Figure 13. (Sec. 16.65).

§ 16.29 The tonnage depth—(a) Location. The depth generally referred to as "the tonnage depth" is located at the middle point of division of the tonnage length and is found in a manner similar to the other depths of transverse sections.

(b) Tonnage depth in a vessel measured in parts. Should a vessel be required to be measured in parts, and each part measured as a separate unit; then a tonnage depth shall be found for each part or unit at one-half its tonnage length. See Figure 14 (Sec. 16.65).

(c) Tonnage depth is the first depth measured. The tonnage depth governs the number of parts into which it and all the remaining depths of the part in which said depth is located, is divided.

(d) Divisions of tonnage depth. If the tonnage depth at the middle of the tonnage length of the vessel or part of same does not exceed 16 feet, divide each depth into four equal parts; but if the depth at the middle of said length exceeds 16 feet, divide each depth into six equal parts.

(e) Intervals. The common intervals between the points of division of depths, also one-third common intervals are to be carried to the nearest hundredth of a foot.

(f) Purpose for dividing tonnage depths. Depths are divided to indicate points at which tonnage breadths are to be measured.

§ 16.30 Tonnage breadths—(a) Breadths. An inside horizontal breadth is to be measured at each point of division of the depth marked on the sliding rods placed in position as directed in Sec. 16.13 (b) and also at the upper and lower points of the depth. Extend each measurement to the inboard face of the ordinary frames, or line of same, or inboard face of ceiling, or battens, or insulation of average thickness if fitted. See Figure 15 (Sec. 16.65). Care must be taken that the sections shall be parallel to each other and at right angles to the axis of the vessel.

(b) Upper breadth. In finding the upper breadth of each transverse section make no allowance for the excess of the deck-beam shelves, etc., over the permissible thickness of ceiling, if any, thereunder.

Referring to Figure 16 (Sec. 16.65), observe that after the deck is laid the upper breadth (represented by the line U. B.) passes through the deck on each side. Hence, it is impossible to take it at its true position. In such cases take it on the deck, allowing within the extended line of frames the thickness of the ceiling if any on the frames under deck, as shown by line T. B. in the figure.

Owing to deck-beam shelves or other obstructions, it can be more conveniently and accurately taken here than under the deck, and, besides it will be only a few inches from its true position. In vessels which have upright sides the said breadth so taken will be correct, but in the case of vessels with inclining sides the necessary allowance must be made for the deviation of the sides from the upright in the few inches above the true position of the said breadth.

(c) Bottom breadths. Bottom breadths are taken only so far as the flat of the floor extends. See B. B. Figures 4 and 5; Figures 15 and B. B. Figures 17 and 18 (Sec. 16.65).

When bottom frames rise immediately from the keelson, or combined keel and keelson, and bona fide floor timbers or floor plates are not fitted, bottom breadths are equal to the breadth of keelson, or combined keel and keelson as the case may be. See B. B. Figure 19 (Sec. 16.65).

The bottom breadths of transverse sections of vessels of longitudinal construction falling in the hold where there is no double bottom and where there is a dead rise of the bottom out to the sides of the vessel may be considered to be equal to that part of the bottom plating not affected by dead rise.

(d) Bottom breadths in case of rise or fall of double bottom. Bottom breadths falling in way of a double bottom the top of which rises or falls from the midship longitudinal plane to the wings are measured from and to the inboard end of the frame brackets, (or ceiling thereon if fitted) connecting the double bottom with the frames. See B. B. Figures 12 and 13 (Sec. 16.65).

§ 16.31 Measuring the tonnage length. (a) The cubic capacity of the space below the tonnage deck is determined by use of the tonnage length together with the areas of a prescribed number of transverse sections as hereinafter described.

To determine the extreme points of the tonnage length as indicated by Sec. 16.27 and T. L. in Figures 10 and 11 (Sec. 16.65), observe the following:

(b) Vertical bow and stern. In vessels having a vertical bow, also a vertical stern, both above and below the tonnage deck, measure horizontally the depth of frames, also the thickness of ceiling thereon if any, at the extreme forward and after ends immediately under the tonnage deck. Mark these measurements on the upper side of the tonnage deck, from the outer shell and in the direction in which the frames were measured. Then draw through the points thus obtained, lines parallel to the shell. The forward and after points of intersection of these lines indicate the points from and to which the tonnage length is to be measured.

(c) Raked bow or stern. In the case of vessels having a raked bow or stern at the level of the tonnage deck, the extreme points of the tonnage length are, when practicable, to be determined at the under side of the tonnage deck. The distance from these points to a hatch coaming, bulkhead, etc., should be measured and transferred to the upper side of the tonnage deck as indicated in Figure 20 (Sec. 16.65).

(d) Should it be impracticable to determine the extreme points of the tonnage length at the under side of the tonnage deck, and should the thickness of this deck be considerable, as in the case of a wooden deck, the rake of the bow or stern within the thickness of the deck is to be taken into account. This is done after having first proceeded as indicated in subsection (b), by measuring the thickness of the tonnage deck and determining by means of a hinged rule, or any other instrument for finding angles under similar circumstances, the angle of the rake which the bow or the stern forms with the tonnage deck. Transfer thereafter this angle on the deck by drawing the lines A, B, C shown in Figure 21 (Sec. 16.65), A, B, represents the upper side of the tonnage deck and B, C, the after side of the stem or the inside of the shell at the stern, as the case may be. The perpendicular B, D, represents the thickness of the tonnage deck. The points T, L, in Figures 10 and 11 (Sec. 16.65) marked on the upper side of the tonnage deck are then to be moved forward at the stern or aft at the stem, as the case may be, for a distance equal to D, E, representing the rake within the thickness of the deck.

(e) It should be borne in mind that the condition for applying the method of setting out the angles on the upper side of the tonnage deck is that the stem or stern have the same angle of rake above and immediately below the tonnage deck. If the angle of rake at or immediately below the tonnage deck is a different one, then this last angle must be used.

(f) Should a vessel as referred to in subsection (c) have a square bow or stern, it will be necessary to make a correction for camber where such exists. This is done by increasing the thickness of the deck B, D, in Figure 21 (Sec. 16.65) by one-third of the round or one-half of the pitch of beam at the extreme point of the tonnage length.

§ 16.32 Divisions of tonnage length. (a) The tonnage length is to be divided into an even number of equal parts as required by the following table, according to the class in such table to which the vessel belongs:

| Class | Tonnage length | Divisions |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | 50 ft. or less | 6 |
| 2 | Above 50 ft., not exceeding 100 ft | 8 |
| 3 | Above 100 ft., not exceeding 150 ft | 10 |
| 4 | Above 150 ft., not exceeding 200 ft | 12 |
| 5 | Above 200 ft., not exceeding 250 ft | 14 |
| 6 | Above 250 ft. | 16 |

(b) The points of division of the tonnage length, also each end of the length indicate the common intervals at which the depth is measured.

Intervals and one-third intervals are to be carried to the nearest thousandth of a foot.

§ 16.33 Transfer of location of sections to keelson. (a) The tonnage length having been ascertained and the number of sections to be measured and the interval between them determined, a line is then to be extended down the main hatchway, at the middle line of the vessel, in a perpendicular direction.

(b) The distance of the midship tonnage section is then to be set off from this line in the same direction on the keelson, which gives the position of the midship section on the keelson, and the positions of the other sections are obtained on the keelson by setting off forward and abaft the midship section the common interval between sections as already determined.

The position of the midship tonnage section may be determined by any other practical means.

§ 16.34 Transverse areas, rule for finding. (a) Assuming the tonnage length exceeds 250 feet requiring that it be divided into 16 equal parts, and the tonnage depth at the middle of the tonnage length exceeds 16 feet, requiring it to be divided into 6 equal parts:

(b) Measure the depth at each of the fifteen points of division of the length as required, also at the extreme forward point (Section 1) and at the extreme after point (Section 17) of the length. See Figure 22 (Sec. 16.65).

(c) The extreme points of the length at the bow and stern, though described as being the positions of the first and last areas, do not in vessels of usual form yield any area for practical purposes. Therefore, in the computation for tonnage, where the first and last sections yield no areas, a cipher must be employed in their places. In vessels of unusual form, as, for instance, in barges or other craft in which the bow and stern are upright, with breadth also at those places, sections at the extreme points of the length will yield areas; in which cases such areas must be measured and used in the computation.

(d) Then measure the inside horizontal breadth at each of the 5 points of division of the depth, also at the upper and lower points of the depth.

(e) Number the breadths from above, numbering the upper breadth 1 and so on down to the lowest or 7th.

(f) Multiply the second, fourth and sixth by 4, and the odd numbered breadths by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1.

(g) Add these products together.

(h) Multiply the sum thus obtained by one-third of the common interval between the breadths, and the product shall be deemed the transverse area.

(i) This process will be repeated for every section.

(j) Having thus ascertained the transverse area at each point of division of the length of the vessel, also at each end of the length if they yield areas, as required above, proceed to ascertain the register tonnage of the vessel in the following manner:

(k) Number the areas successively 1, 2, 3, etc., No. 1 being at the extreme limit of the length at the bow and the last number at the extreme limit of the length at the stern.

(l) Then multiply the second and every even numbered area by 4 and the third and every odd numbered area by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1.

(m) Add these products together and multiply the sum thus obtained by one-third of the common interval between the areas, and the product will be the contents in cubic feet of the spaces under the tonnage deck.

(n) Divide this product by 100, and the quotient, being the tonnage under the tonnage deck shall be deemed the register tonnage of the vessel, subject to the additions hereinafter mentioned.

(o) In every case when finding the capacity under tonnage deck, or a part thereof; whether the length be divided according to the table into 6 or 16 parts, as in classes 1 and 6, or in 2 or 4 parts as provided for in Sec. 16.35 (a) and the depths into 4 or 6 parts, thus requiring 5 or 7 breadths respectively to be taken; the above formula shall be used; i. e., even numbered breadths shall be multiplied by 4, and odd numbered ones by 2 except the first and last which are multiplied by 1. Similarly when running areas through the multipliers, the even numbered ones shall be multiplied by 4 and odd numbered ones by 2, except the first and last, which are multiplied by 1.

(b) When a vessel is required to be measured in parts, and each part measured as a separate vessel, the sum of the tonnages of the several parts is the capacity under the tonnage deck.

§ 16.36 Vessels having side tanks may be measured in parts. Vessels having side tanks extending above the floor line or double bottom, and through which tanks tonnage breadths normally pass, may be measured in parts. The length of the first part will extend aft to the line of the forward bulkheads of the side tanks. See Figures 23 and 24 (Sec. 16.65). The length of the second part is equal to the length of side tanks, and the depths extend, at proper intervals under the tonnage deck, down to the athwartship lines forming continuation of the side tank tops. See Figure 25 (Sec. 16.65). The third length immediately below the second part should equal that of the second. The breadths are taken between the inboard faces of the side tank bulkheads, and depths from athwartship lines forming continuation of the side tank tops. The fourth part will extend from a line athwart the after bulkhead of side tanks to a point aft where tonnage lengths usually terminate. Measure separately a side tank, the tonnage of which is to be doubled, assuming both tanks are identical as they usually are; then the sum of the tonnage of the several parts thus found shall be deemed the capacity under tonnage deck.

§ 16.37 Outside shaft tunnel. To find the under deck tonnage of a vessel having an outside shaft tunnel, the shape of a section of which is usually the segment of a circle, measure the portion of the tunnel space included by the process of measurement in the under deck tonnage and subtract it therefrom. See Figure 26 (Sec. 16.65).

Divide the length of such tunnel into a convenient number of equal parts, then find an area at the points of division of the length, also at the ends, if the end ones yield an area, by the following formula:

$$\text{AREA}=\frac{2h}{3}(c)$$

c=chord of the segment of a circle.

h=height of segment (from chord to crown of arc.).

Having found the required areas, proceed in the manner provided for using the areas as ordinates in determining under deck tonnage, finding the sum of even numbered areas multiplied by 4; the odd numbered areas multiplied by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1. Then multiply the sum so found by one-third common interval between sections. The result divided by 100 gives the tonnage of the tunnel to be subtracted from the under deck tonnage found by ignoring initially the projection of the crown of the tunnel into the hold.

§ 16.38 Square end vessels having head blocks. (a) In the case of vessels with square ends having head blocks extending from the deck to the bottom longitudinals on the rake of the bottom, the termini of the tonnage length will be at the inboard face of said block, and the area of the first and last section will equal the area of the inboard face of said block. See Figure 27 (Sec. 16.65).

(b) Should the head blocks extend inboard of the inboard face of the end frames, (see Figures 28 and 29), or should the head plates be excessive, (see Figure 30) (Sec. 16.65), consider the termini of the tonnage length to be at points inboard from the ends of the vessel, equal in distance to the thickness of the shell plating, depth of side frame, plus ceiling if fitted. Rubbing strakes to be excluded.

§ 16.39 Between decks. (a) If the vessel has a third deck, the tonnage of the space between it and the tonnage deck shall be ascertained as follows:

(b) Measure the inside length of the space at the middle of its height, from the ceiling at the side of the stem to the ceiling on the midship stern timber; or, if there is no ceiling take the length from a point forward where a continuation of the lines of inboard faces of the side frames intersect the center line of the vessel aft to the inboard face of the midship stern timber. Divide the length into the same number of equal parts into which the length of the tonnage deck is divided.

(c) Measure also at the middle of its height the inside breadth of the space at each of the points of division of the length, the breadth at the stem, and the breadth at the stern (if round, as in the case of poops of similar form). Number the breadths successively 1, 2, 3, etc., commencing at the stem.

(d) Multiply the second and all other even numbered breadths by 4 and the odd-numbered breadths by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1. Multiply the sum of these products by one-third of the common interval between the points at which the breadths were taken; the result will give, in superficial feet, the horizontal area at the mean height of such space.

(e) Multiply the mean horizontal area by the average height taken between the planks of the two decks and the product will be the cubical contents of the space; which, divided by 100 shall be deemed the tonnage to be included among the items comprising the vessel's gross tonnage.

(f) If the vessel has more than three decks, the tonnage of each of the between decks above the tonnage deck shall be severally ascertained in the manner above described and shall be added as items comprising the vessel's gross tonnage.

§ 16.40 Superstructures. (a) Permanent erections; i. e., forecastle, bridge, poop, break, etc., on or above the upper deck, shall be measured tier by tier, and, exclusive of closed-in exemptible spaces, and open spaces, shall be included in the gross tonnage.

(b) Length. Measure at half height the mean length of such a space along its center longitudinal line, from and to the line of the inboard faces of the frames, or stiffeners, or ceiling if fitted. Divide the length into an even number of equal parts the common intervals of which shall be most nearly equal to that of the parts into which the tonnage length was divided. See Figure 31 (Sec. 16.65).

(c) Breadths. Measure at the middle of its height the inside breadths; namely, one at each end and one at each point of division of the length, numbering them successively 1, 2, 3, etc., the number one breadth being at the extreme forward end of the length.

(d) Round end erections. If the after end of an ordinary poop is elliptical, make the breadth at the extreme after end of its length one-half of the preceding breadth, but if it is round as usually found on lake vessels, two-thirds of the preceding breadth. See Figures 32 and 33 (Sec. 16.65).

(e) The after breadth of a round end house shall be found in the same manner as provided for finding the after breadth of a rounded poop. When the forward end is rounded the first breadth will be either one-half or two-thirds of the following breadth depending on the form of the round.

(f) Multiply the even numbered breadths by 4, and the odd numbered ones by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1.

(g) Multiply the sum of the products by one-third of the common interval between the points at which the breadths were taken; the result will give the horizontal area at the mean height of such space.

(h) Height. Multiply the mean horizontal area by the average height measured between the decks, or the extended line of same. See b and c in Figure 9 (Sec. 16.65). Divide the product by 100 and the quotient shall be deemed the tonnage of such space.

(i) Superstructures having breaks in their covering deck or side lines shall be measured in parts. See Figure 34 (Sec. 16.65).

(j) Superstructures on small craft shall be measured similar to the method for finding the gross tonnage of larger structures. When a superstructure is erected over a cut-away portion of the tonnage deck the height of such superstructure is to be taken from the under side of its covering deck to a line of continuation of the tonnage deck. Should there be no camber to the tonnage deck, allow for same, in the covering deck of the erection if it exceeds .15'. After subtracting the tonnage of exemptible spaces in the superstructure, the remainder shall be listed under a name describing the erection, among the items comprising the gross tonnage.

(k) Height of a turtle back. The mean height of a superstructure referred to as a "turtle back" may be found by taking a height at each point of division of its length, at the after terminal of its length and at one-third common interval abaft the forward end of the length. The sum of the heights so taken, divided by the number of heights, will give a sufficiently accurate mean height.

§ 16.41 Hatchways. The cubical contents of the hatchways shall be obtained by multiplying the length and breadth together and the product by the mean depth taken from the top of the beam to the under side of the hatch cover. From the aggregate tonnage of the hatchways there shall be deducted one-half of 1 per cent of the gross tonnage of the vessel exclusive of the tonnage of the hatchways, and the remainder only shall be added to the said gross tonnage as excess hatchways.

The hatchways referred to are the ones out in the open or in open spaces on the upper deck to the hull and on closed-in deck erections. Hatchways on between decks and on the deck of open erections are not to be measured and included in the aggregate of hatchways from which the statutory deduction is to be made. The total hatchways on between decks and on the portion of the decks within closed-in erections on the upper deck to the hull are automatically included in the between deck spaces and in the said erections by the process of measurement; and, of course, the hatchways on decks of open erections are not to be considered, serving as they do spaces not entering into the tonnage of the vessel.

§ 16.42 Record of exempted spaces. The tonnage measurement of all spaces on or above the upper deck that the measurer has not included in the gross tonnage of the vessel must be recorded in detail on Form 1410, "Tonnage admeasurement," which, when forwarded to the Bureau for examination and appropriate action must be accompanied by suitable plans or sketches drawn to scale, or a complete explanation for the proper consideration of the exemption of such spaces.

§ 16.43 Enclosed spaces exempted from inclusion in gross tonnage. The following closed-in spaces situated on or above the upper deck shall not be included in the gross tonnage provided they are reasonable in extent, adapted and used exclusively for the purposes outlined:

(b) Companions. Companions and booby-hatches serving as a protection for companion-ways (stairways or ladderways) leading to spaces below, whether such spaces are exempted or not. See a, b, c and d in Figure 35 (Sec. 16.65).

(c) Galleys. Spaces fitted with ranges or ovens (bakeries), without regard to the category of the persons they serve.

(d) Light and air. Spaces forming part of the propelling machinery space, or serving for the admission of light and air to such machinery shall be exempt under the heading of light and air. When no part of the propelling machinery extends below the upper deck, the space occupied by same is exemptible in its entirety together with such fuel bunkers as are located on or above the upper deck. Where fuel bunkers or tanks are located wholly or in part below the upper deck the space so occupied below the upper deck is not deductible.

(e) Light and air on small boats. A house of reasonable size, into which the propelling machinery projects above the deck line, or a similar house used exclusively for light and air over such machinery on small boats is exempted, in its entirety, as light and air.

A compartment of reasonable size, bulkheaded off and similarly used, located in a house serving other purposes is likewise so treated.

When propelling machinery and/or light and air space, not bulkheaded off, is in a house serving other purposes, the actual length and breadth of the engine plus two feet each side and each end for working space, if such space is available, projecting up into the house becomes the length and breadth of exempted light and air, exclusive of such part as may be decked over and available for other purposes.

If bunks, galley, supplies, etc., are located in the hull abreast the engine and under a house open to same, as described in preceding subsection, and the 2-foot allowance for working space on each side of the engine base, overlaps working space at galley, or as the case may be, allow one-half the actual breadth on each side the engine, which breadths plus the actual engine breadth projecting up into the house becomes the permissible breadth of light and air exemption.

(f) Machinery spaces. Spaces occupied by machinery other than propelling machinery.

The spaces occupied by dredging machinery on the upper deck of dredging vessels which are not self propelled but which are required to be documented are to be exempted. No allowance is to be made for spaces occupied by such machinery below the upper deck.

(g) Skylights. Skylights and domes affording ventilation and light to the erection thereunder, except skylights over propelling machinery. None of the space below the covering deck of such erection shall be exempted from inclusion in tonnage unless an opening is left in the deck of the superstructure immediately under such skylight or dome to give ventilation and light to spaces below such deck line. See exempted skylight and a, b, c and d in Figure 36 (Sec. 16.65). This additional exemption is to be approved by the Director, and the request for such approval must be accompanied by a blueprint or sketch of said space. For treatment of skylights over propelling machinery see subsection (d) hereof.

(h) Special exempted water ballast spaces. Any space other than the double-bottom space adapted only for water ballast, certified by the collector not to be available for the carriage of cargo, stores, supplies, or fuel, shall be deducted from the gross tonnage as measured to get gross register tonnage. (Act of February 6, 1909, Sec. 2, 35 Stat., 613, 46 U.S.C. 77.)

Adaptation for water ballast consists of having the space or spaces properly constructed and tested as ballast tanks; that the pumps, pipes, etc., for filling and emptying such tanks must be of suitable dimensions, connected to the ballast system, and completely independent of the cargo, fuel oil, feed or domestic water pumping apparatus. Access shall be only through oval or circular manholes, whose greatest diameter must not exceed 2 feet in the water-tight deck. Where a hatch exists over a space now to be used for the carriage of water ballast, plating shall be fitted and riveted or welded to form a watertight cover and a manhole as above described may be fitted in this cover plate. Such manholes except when fitted on the weather deck may be provided with a coaming not exceeding 6 inches in height. If these spaces are found being used for purposes other than water ballast, they are to be added to the gross tonnage of the vessel, and so included until such changes have been made as will definitely preclude their use for purposes other than for water ballast.

(i) Water closets. Any public room or compartment, if of reasonable size, fitted with hopper or hoppers, is for admeasurement purposes, a water closet. This definition includes a room or a compartment designated as a toilet, fitted with urinal, or urinals, shower bath or shower baths, in addition to the hopper or hoppers. A crew W. C., is considered public if it serves more than one member of the crew.

§ 16.44 Passenger cabins. Passenger cabins and staterooms immediately on the upper deck to the hull, permanently "closed-in" and fitted up for permanent use of passengers, are to be included in the gross tonnage. They will be exempted only when they have no berthing accommodations and have only temporary arrangements to protect passengers on short voyages from rain and the shipment of seas, constituting sheltered spaces under cover and open to the weather; that is, not enclosed.

Cabins and staterooms when assigned for use of passengers only, constructed entirely above the first deck which is not a complete deck to the hull, (see Sec. 16.21) may be exempted from inclusion in tonnage. In the case of Army transports, colliers, supply ships, hospital ships, etc., the term "passengers" shall include all officers, enlisted men, and other persons who are not assigned to ship's duties and not entered on the ship's articles, and no deductions for spaces occupied by such persons shall be made, nor are cabins and staterooms occupied by them when situated on a deck not a deck to the hull to be included in gross tonnage.

For admeasurement purposes a cabin is defined as an apartment of a vessel, or the portion of the apartment that is assigned for the exclusive use of passengers. A cabin may consist of staterooms, bathrooms, toilets, libraries, writing rooms, lounges, dining rooms, saloons, smoking rooms, play rooms, etc., individually or collectively. The following spaces,—smoking room, lounge, foyer, library and similar public spaces, with or without a stateroom,—would, for instance be considered cabins. In short, any passenger stateroom or public space reserved entirely for the use of passengers is to be considered as coming under the meaning of the word "cabin".

A passenger stateroom is defined as an apartment, or one of the units of an apartment on a vessel, intended primarily to afford sleeping and/or other accommodations for passengers traveling alone or together.

§ 16.45 Open superstructures on or above the upper deck. (a) Nothing shall be added to the gross tonnage for any sheltered space on or above the upper deck which is under cover and open to the weather; that is, not enclosed.

(b) In deciding whether or not superstructures are permanent closed-in spaces and should be included in tonnage, the measurer should have regard to the character and structural condition of such erections.

(c) Tonnage openings. A forecastle, bridge, poop, or any other permanent superstructure on or above the upper deck to the hull, with one or more openings in its sides or ends, not fitted with doors or other permanently attached means (except as provided for below) of closing them, shall be exempted from inclusion in gross tonnage if the opening or openings are in conformity with the following provisions:

(d) Two 3 x 4 foot tonnage openings. When there are in one of the end bulkheads, two tonnage openings, each 3 feet wide by 4 feet high in the clear, one on each side of the center line of the end bulkhead.

(e) One 4 x 5 foot tonnage opening. When there is in one of the end bulkheads, as near as is practicable to the center line of the space, one tonnage opening at least 4 feet wide by 5 feet high in the clear, or its equivalent. An equivalent opening is considered to be one of at least 20 square feet in the clear, resulting from a breadth in excess of 4 feet and a height of not less than 3 feet. In such cases the owner's application for exemption and also a sketch of the space drawn to scale must be forwarded to the Director for examination, and exemption must not be allowed without the Bureau's approval.

(f) Intermediate bulkheads. If the space is subdivided by intermediate bulkheads, such bulkheads shall have an opening or openings of the same dimensions as prescribed above.

(g) Coamings. If coamings are fitted to tonnage openings, their height must not exceed 2 feet at any part.

(h) Permissible temporary closures for exterior bulkhead tonnage openings. Tonnage openings prescribed for the above mentioned superstructures may be temporarily closed by shifting boards dropped into channel sections at the sides of such openings, or by plates or boards held in place by hook bolts, spaced not less than 1 foot apart, fitting over the stiffener bar at the sides, top and bottom, of such openings, or by a plate or boards held in place by bolts and cross pieces so arranged as not to be held in place by cleats or other attachments to, or bolts through the bulkhead. See Figures 37 to 43 inclusive (Sec. 16.65). Cover plates, etc., must fay against the bulkheads.

(i) Battening gaskets. In no case is the use of battening, caulking or gaskets of any material permitted.

(j) Permanent fixtures. Cleats, stud bolts, hinges attached to, or bolts in bulkheads at the edges of tonnage openings are prohibited as they are considered to be part of the means, in conjunction with the plate or boards, of closing the tonnage opening.

(k) Closures for interior bulkhead tonnage openings. The same temporary means of closing, except by plates, the tonnage openings in interior bulkheads are permitted.

(l) Enclosure within an open space. An enclosure within an exempted space must be treated according to its use.

§ 16.46 Open shelter deck space. (a) When exemption from inclusion in gross tonnage is claimed for the space between the upper and shelter deck due to a permanent middle-line tonnage opening in the shelter deck, the length of such opening must be at least 4 feet in the clear and its width equal at least to the width of the after cargo hatchway on the same deck. Provided, That an opening with rounded corners with radii not in excess of 9 inches may be considered to be square.

(b) Position of middle line tonnage openings. The distance between the after edge of this tonnage opening and the aft side of the sternpost must not be less than one-twentieth the register length of the vessel, or if the tonnage opening is forward, its fore side must not be less than one-fifth the register length of the vessel from the stem.

(c) Coamings. The coamings of the middle line tonnage opening must not exceed 12 inches extreme mean height above the deck, including the heading, etc., at the top for confining the hatch covers, and the opening must be guarded with rails and stanchions. The arrangement of rails and stanchions shall in no way permit their use as part of the method allowed for temporary closing of the tonnage opening.

(d) Cover. When portable wood covers are fitted they may be held in place by lashings fitted to the under side of the covers; lashings may be of hemp, manila or other similar material.

When a metal cover is used, it may be held in place by hook bolts spaced not less than 18 inches apart, passing through the cover plate and hooked over angle stiffeners or flanges fitted on the outside of the coamings; i. e., the bolts must not pass through the stiffeners or flanges on the coaming, nor must there be any other attachments on the coaming for fastening the cover.

(e) Opening not to be enclosed. The middle line tonnage opening in a shelter deck must not be within a superstructure of any type.

(f) Tonnage openings in shelter deck space. When the permanent deck opening is situated aft, there must be at least two openings, each 3 feet wide by 4 feet high in the clear, in each of the transverse bulkheads within the shelter deck space forward of said deck opening; or should the deck opening be forward, the same requirements apply to transverse bulkheads abaft such forward deck opening.

(g) Coamings. Coamings, if fitted, must not exceed 2 feet in height at any part.

(h) Temporary closure. Excluding plates, the same temporary means of closing tonnage openings in the bulkheads of the well under the middle line tonnage opening in the shelter deck and in the intermediate bulkheads, if any, in the shelter deck space are permitted as described in Sec. 16.45 (h).

(i) Well under middle line tonnage opening. The well under the middle line tonnage opening (in the shelter deck) must have a minimum length of four feet throughout its entire breadth and height, and shall be kept clear at all times.

(j) Scuppers. A scupper, having a 5-inch minimum inside diameter, fitted with a screw down non-return valve geared to and operated from the shelter deck, must be fitted on each side of the upper deck in way of the permanent middle line tonnage opening in the shelter deck. See Figure 44 (Sec. 16.65).

(k) All openings in the upper deck to the hull must be provided with proper means for closing and battening down.

(l) Closed in spaces. Any closed-in space within an open shelter deck space shall be treated according to its usage.

§ 16.47 An open structure on small craft. A house on a small craft is considered open to the weather and exempted from inclusion in tonnage provided the after end of such house in entirely open, from the under side of its roof beam down to a coaming not exceeding three inches in height, if there be a coaming, otherwise to the deck or line of same; and open in an athwartship direction from and to the inboard face of the end side stiffeners. See Figures 45 and 46 (Sec. 16.65). Closed-in spaces within an open erection will be treated according to their usage.

Such an opening may be guarded by wire mesh screens and/or temporarily closed by canvas secured at the top and lashed down or buttoned in place at the sides and bottom.

§ 16.48 Open vessels. (a) In ascertaining the tonnage of open vessels the upper edge of the upper strake shall form the boundary line of measurement, and a tonnage depth shall be taken from a line athwart the upper edge of said strake, at each point of division and each end of the tonnage length.

(b) An open vessel is one without a deck, or with a partial deck, or partial decks, the total length of which is less than one-half her tonnage length.

(c) Further, a vessel having a partial deck of any length, or one with a single full length deck which, in either case, lies more than one-sixth of the midship depth below the line of the upper edge of the upper strake to the usual point in the hold for taking the register depth, shall, for admeasurement purposes, be deemed an open vessel.

§ 16.49 Deductions from gross tonnage. (a) To ascertain the net tonnage, the tonnage of the following spaces meeting certain requirements shall be deducted from the gross tonnage.

(b) Requirements prior to deduction. No space shall be deducted unless it has previously been included in the gross tonnage; is reasonable in extent for the purpose appropriated and that the certification showing the exclusive use for such purpose is permanently cut in a beam, over the doorway, within the space, with these words: "Certified to accommodate ---- seamen," "Certified for the accommodation of master," "Certified mess room," "Certified W. C.," "Certified for boatswain's stores," "Certified chart house," "Certified for steering gear," etc., as the case may be.

(c) Permanently cut. Permanently cut is construed to mean that the certification must be center punched or otherwise cut where the material over the doorway is metal, whether a beam or plating, or carved when it is of wood. When the beam is not visible, the certification may be cut in the door frame or other fitting over the doorway on the inside of the room.

(d) Crew spaces. The tonnages of the spaces or compartments exclusively occupied by and appropriated to the use of the officers and crew of the vessel including:

Bathrooms. A bathroom is a compartment or a room containing (1) a bath tub, or (2) a bath tub and a water closet, or (3) a shower bath or showers without a water closet, regardless of its location.

Clothes drying room.

Drinking water filtration or distilling plant below deck.

Hospital.

Crew mess rooms.

Officers' mess rooms.

Office of chief engineer.

Oil skin locker.

Pantry.

Recreation room.

Shower baths.

Sleeping rooms.

Smoking room.

Water closets, private. A private water closet is defined as one intended to serve not more than one member of the crew, whose stateroom or bedroom affords the only means of entrance thereto and is treated as part of the room served by it. Other water closets are considered to be public water closets for admeasurement purposes.

Water closets (public—below the upper deck).

Passageways and companionways serving the above spaces.

But none of these spaces when used by the passengers on a passenger vessel are to be deducted nor is the clerk's, purser's or paymaster's office deductible.

(e) Nondeductible spaces on deductible passageway. Lockers of less than two tons each, containing medicine, linen, mops, etc., for the free use of the crew; the ship's office, also spare rooms, not exceeding 2 in number and used as required by a pilot, customs officer, reserve engineer, a company official or employee shall not invalidate the deduction of a passageway serving as sole access to their location.

(f) Master's cabin. Any space exclusively for the use of the master. This space includes sleeping room, dressing room, bathroom, office and passageways serving the master's accommodations.

(g) Measuring deductible spaces. Deducted spaces, rectangular in shape, are to be measured by taking the product of the three dimensions, but when bounded by curved surfaces conforming to the sides of the vessel below the tonnage deck exceeding 15 feet in length, they are to be measured according to the formula on the back of Form 1410 for measuring peak tanks. When the space is less than 15 feet in length it may be measured by any practical method.

(h) When there is a platform, not more than 1 foot above the top of the bottom frames, to give a flat surface at the bottom of deductible spaces, and the space between the platform and said frames is not used for the stowage of gear, stores, etc., or for any other purpose, take depths of transverse sections to the top of the bottom frames and find areas as in the case of transverse sections for finding the tonnage below the tonnage deck. See Figure 47 (Sec. 16.65). P represents the platform 1 foot above the top of the bottom frames. A, B and C are the positions of the sections. The forward section A, being sharp, yields no area.

When the platform is more than a foot above the bottom frames, then find the areas only of the portion of the sections above the platform. See Figure 48 (Sec. 16.65).

The depth of deducted spaces extending from top to bottom of a deck erection may be taken between the same points as the depths used in finding the tonnage of the erection. In other words, if the erection was measured before the deck covering, if any, was laid and the ceiling or paneling, if any, overhead was fitted, and depths were taken from the underside of the covering planks or plating of the deck over as required by the law and regulations to the deck beneath, the deck covering and overhead ceiling are to be disregarded in obtaining depths of the various deducted spaces. In determining the number of men that may be berthed in a space the Act of March 4, 1915 (Sec. 6, 38 Stat. 1165; 46 U.S.C. 80) is to govern.

(i) Deducted spaces in the between decks, or erections on or above the upper deck having curved sides are to be measured according to Sec. 16.40.

§ 16.50 Navigation spaces. (a) Spaces used exclusively for maneuvering or navigating the ship shall be deducted from the gross tonnage to the extent of what is considered reasonable. When the steering gear, anchor gear, helm, etc., are situated within a room unnecessarily large for the purpose, or are not partitioned off at all, a 2 foot allowance on every side of the apparatus may be made for working space. The height to be allowed should, as a rule, be the mean height of the 'tween deck space.

(b) Anchor gear. The spaces below, occupied by anchor gear, include the capstan, windlass, and chain locker. When the fore peak is used exclusively as the chain locker, it is to be measured in the manner prescribed for measuring fore peak tanks when used for water ballast.

(c) Boatswain's stores. Subject to the restrictions stated below, any space exclusively appropriated to and used for keeping the boatswain's stores may be deducted.

The allowance for boatswain's stores shall be 1 per cent of the gross tonnage in vessels of 100 gross tons and over, but this allowance shall in no case exceed 100 tons. In the case of vessels of less than 100 gross tons this deduction shall not exceed one ton.

(d) Chart room. The space for keeping the charts, nautical instruments and for plotting the course. When the space is a combined wheel and chart room, such part as is not exempted as wheelhouse shall be deducted.

In small vessels requiring the use of navigation charts, and where the cabin or saloon is the only space available for filing or use of such charts, one-half of the cabin or saloon, may be allowed for this purpose provided the allowance does not exceed 1½-tons.

(e) Donkey engine and boiler. The space occupied by a donkey engine and boiler, if situated within the boundary of the engine room or the casing above it, and if the donkey engine is used as an auxiliary in connection with the main machinery for propelling the vessel and this space forms part of the actual engine room it shall not be subject to a separate allowance.

When the donkey engine and/or boiler is in a house above the upper deck and not used in connection with the main propelling machinery as described above, the space thus occupied is an exemption and therefore must not be included in the gross tonnage of the vessel.

In all other cases the space occupied by the donkey engine and boiler, if same are connected with the main pumps (except cargo pumps) of the vessel, is to be allowed as a deduction from the gross tonnage, if reasonable in extent. It must be certified in the same manner as other deductible spaces.

(f) Dynamo spaces. The space or spaces when reasonable in extent, occupied by dynamos, switchboards and apparatus necessary for the operation of same, when located below the upper deck shall be deducted regardless of the service for which the dynamo or dynamos are used.

(g) Pump room. A pump room or space below the upper deck containing the pumps of the vessel which are used solely for handling ballast, feed water, water for cleansing purposes, and for freeing the ship of water entering her hold, etc., shall be deducted as pump room. A pump room or space below the upper deck containing pumps primarily used for handling cargo, as in the case of bulk-oil carriers, shall not be deducted. The portion of either of the above pump spaces above the upper deck is exemptible as machinery space.

(h) Radio house. The space set apart for sending and receiving wireless messages.

(i) Storage of sails. In the case of a vessel propelled wholly by sails, any space not exceeding 2½ per cent of the gross tonnage of the vessel when such space is used exclusively for storage of sails.

§ 16.51 Propelling machinery space—(a) Engine room must be measured. Notwithstanding the ratable allowance for propelling power for which the act of March 2, 1895 (Sec. 1, 28 Stat. 741; 46 U.S.C. 77) provides, it is necessary to measure the engine room, regardless of size, in order to ascertain whether the allowance to be deducted for propelling power shall be regulated by a percentage of the gross tonnage or by the actual tonnage of the engine room ascertained by measurement.

(b) Spaces included in engine room must be in gross tonnage. No space shall be included in the tonnage of the engine room unless it has first been included in the vessel's gross tonnage.

(c) Deductions from engine room. Conversely the spaces occupied by cabins, storerooms, etc., and any space not used in connection with propelling the vessel but included in the tonnage of the engine room through process of measurement must be substracted therefrom.

§ 16.52 Spaces included in engine room. The space occupied by the engine room is to be understood to include not only that occupied by the engine room itself but also the space occupied by the boiler room, together with the spaces strictly required for the working of the engines and boilers, and consisting of the following items:

(a) Space below the crown. The crown or top of the main space of the actual engine room, from which the depths of the main space are to be taken, will either be at the under side of a deck, or, if the side bulkheads are sloping, at the point or height at which the slope terminates. See Figures 49 and 50 (Sec. 16.65).

(b) Space between the crown and the upper deck framed in for the machinery or for admission of light and air thereto.

(c) Space similarly framed in above the upper deck when permitted under paragraph (i), Act of March 2, 1895 (Sec. 1, 28 Stat. 741; 46 U.S.C. 77).

(d) The shaft tunnel or tunnels and the thrust block recess.

(e) The escape shaft. The trunked ladderway leading from the after end of the shaft tunnel to the deck, provided that it is no larger than is necessary for the purpose of access to and escape from the shaft tunnel. The part of an escape shaft above the upper deck line, also the companion sheltering the escape shaft is accorded the treatment of light and air space.

(f) When the fuel oil transfer pump is located in a separate space, this space, if reasonable in size, may be considered propelling machinery space provided said pump is not used for bunkering the vessel.

Should such pump perform the dual service of handling both ballast and transferring fuel oil to the settling tanks, one-half the space may be credited to propelling machinery space.

(g) Settling tanks. Fuel oil settling tanks used solely for rendering crude oil fit for consumption in the main boilers are considered as part of the propelling machinery space provided such tanks are within the confines of same. If such tanks are situated elsewhere, the case must be referred to the Director for his decision.

The permissible allowance for settling tanks is based on a four days' supply under full steam, which allowance must not exceed one per cent of the vessel's gross tonnage.

(h) Engineers' stores and workshops. The engineers' stores, and/or workshops are regarded as part of the engine room, up to three-quarters of one per cent of the gross tonnage, if in the engine room, open to same, or separated therefrom only by a screen bulkhead and located below the upper deck.

§ 16.53 Length of engine room. As a rule, the length of the engine room extends from the bulkhead forward of the boilers to the one aft of the engines; but if these bulkheads limit a space considered excessive in length for the proper working of the boilers and engines, then that length only which is requisite for containing and operating the boilers and machinery, is to be allowed, with the addition of such length as is necessary for the stoking or working of the fires when the furnaces are in a fore-and-aft direction.

No such additional length is, however, required when the boilers are placed with the furnaces athwartship. The clear central space allowed between the boilers when the stoking is athwartship should be sufficient for this purpose. The point to which the after boundary of the length of the engine room is to be measured should be such as to provide sufficient space for the safe operation of the engine.

The measurer should allow such length between the engines and boilers as may appear to him necessary for the safe working of the machinery.

§16.54 Boilers and engine in same compartment. The boilers and engine are considered to be in the same compartment when there is a transverse bulkhead, screen or otherwise, through which the boilers project into the engine space, and where there is only sufficient space between the boilers and engine for the safe working of the machinery.

§16.55 Engine room measured in parts. If the boilers and engine are entirely in separate rooms, or if there is a break or breaks in the bottom or side lines of the propelling machinery space resulting from a break or breaks in the double bottom or varying height of floors thereunder, or from side bunkers or other spaces not considered propelling machinery spaces, measure each room separately as a whole or in parts, according to the number of breaks in its bottom or side lines, and the sum of the several results shall be deemed to be the tonnage of the said spaces.

§ 16.56 Rule for measuring engine room. (a) When the propelling machinery (boilers and engine) space is in the hold amidship, and without a break in its bottom or side lines, measure its length between the foremost and aftermost bulkheads or limits of its length, excluding such parts, if any, not actually occupied by or required for the proper working of the machinery. Divide the length by 2 and measure 3 depths of the space, one at each end and one at the middle of the length, taking the depths from the crown, or line of same, to the ceiling on the bottom frames or floor timbers, or to the inner plating (tank top) of the double bottom in the case of a steel vessel. Measure also a breadth at each end and at the middle of the length, the said breadths to be taken at one-half their respective heights. Find the product of the length, mean breadth and mean depth, which product divide by 100 and the result shall be deemed the tonnage of the main space below the crown:

(b) Spaces between the crown and upper deck. Find the cubical contents of the space or spaces, if any, between the crown aforesaid and the upper deck, or line of same, which are framed in for the propelling machinery or admission of light and air thereto, by multiplying together the length, breadth and depth thereof. Divide the product by 100; add the quotient to the tonnage of the space below the crown and the result shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, be deemed the tonnage of the space.

(c) Engine room in after end. When the propelling machinery space is located in the after end of the hold of a vessel and extends from side to side of same and has a continuous bottom line, divide its length into such an even number of parts as will give a common interval most nearly equal to that used in finding the tonnage of the hold in that part of the vessel; then proceed to find its contents by the use of areas of transverse sections taken at each end and at each point of division of its length. In other words, measure it by the same method as was used for finding the tonnage of that part of the hold in which it lies.

(d) Shaft tunnel and thrust recess. In the case of screw propelling vessels in which the top of the shaft tunnel is flat, the tonnage of such tunnel shall be ascertained by dividing the product of its length, breadth and depth by 100.

In like manner find the tonnage of the thrust recess or entrance to the shaft tunnel.

If the space abaft the shaft tunnel extends from side to side of the vessel, find its tonnage by using the formula for measuring peak tanks. See Figures 47 and 48 (Sec. 16.65).

(e) Round top shaft tunnel. When the top of the tunnel is practically semicircular in shape, find the area of a transverse section in two parts; first the lower part from the bottom of the trunk up to where the curve begins by multiplying the breadth by the applicable height, and then the semicircular part by taking half the area of a circle whose diameter equals the breadth of the tunnel. Multiply the sum of the two areas by the length and divide the product by 100. See Figure 51 (Sec. 16.65) wherein B and H equal the breadth and height respectively of the lower part, and R equals the radius of the semicircular top.

(f) Shaft space and thrust recess not cased. When the shaft is not enclosed by a tunnel, the following rules should be observed in the case of a vessel with a single screw. The thrust-block space should be of such length and breadth as will permit of the proper care of the thrust-block and the height should not exceed 7 feet. The shaft space allowed should be of the dimensions of the usual tunnel suitable for the vessel and the height of this space should not exceed 6 feet.

When the vessel is a twin screw and the space aft of the engines is open from side to side, the space should not be included in the engine room measurement for a greater height than 6 feet mean, and any space therein appropriated for stores or for any purposes other than the propelling machinery should be subtracted from the space to be included in the engine room.

§ 16.57 Engine room in small boats. (a) In the case of a motorboat not having an engine room bulkheaded off from the rest of the hold, allow as engine space the space occupied by the engine and sufficient space on each side and end of it—say, about 2 feet—to permit the operator to handle it safely and efficiently; if sufficient space does not exist for such allowance then allow whatever space there is. Fuel tanks are not to be included in the said engine space.

(b) If the engine room is bulkheaded off from the rest of the hold and is larger than is strictly required for safe and efficient handling of the engine, limit the engine space according to the said requirements and as indicated in (a) above.

(c) Engine on a bed. If the engine sets on a bed located on the vessel's bottom timbers, take depths when measuring the propelling machinery space from the under side of the deck, or line of same down to the top of the bottom frames or floor timbers as the case may be, or to the ceiling thereon when fitted.

(d) Boxed-in engine. When the portion of the engine extending above a cockpit platform is boxed-in such boxed-in portion is considered to be all of the space available for the installation and operation of the engine above the line of said platform in that part of the vessel.

In the case of a wholly-boxed-in engine in the hold of a motorboat, the tonnage of the boxed-in space, plus the shaft, engine auxiliaries, etc., that may be outside the boxing is considered the propelling machinery space.

The above restrictions may invalidate light and air exemption when the boxing does not extend above the line of the upper deck. However, when such boxing does extend above said deck line, the height of light and air exemption is from the upper deck line to the under side of the top of the boxing.

§ 16.58 Deduction for propelling power. In the case of a vessel propelled by steam or other power, a deduction for the actual propelling machinery space shall be as follows, according to its percentage of the vessel's gross tonnage:

In screw propelled vessels:

|---|---|
| 13% or less | deduct 175% of the propelling machinery space. |
| 20% or more | deduct 32% of the gross tonnage; or, at owner's option deduct 175% of the propelling machinery space. |

In paddle propelled vessels:

|---|---|
| 20% or less | deduct 150% of the propelling machinery space. |
| 30% or more | deduct 37% of the gross tonnage; or, at owner's option deduct 150% of the propelling machinery space. |

§16.59 Light and air spaces. (a) On a request in writing to the Director by the owner of a vessel, the tonnage of such portion of the space or spaces above the crown of the engine room and above the line of the upper deck as is framed in for the machinery, or for the admission of light and air, and not required to be included in the gross tonnage, shall, for the purpose of ascertaining the tonnage of the space occupied by the propelling machinery be added to the said machinery space; but it shall then be included in the gross tonnage. Such space or spaces must be reasonable in extent, safe, and seaworthy and cannot be used for any purpose other than the machinery or for the admission of light and air to the propelling machinery space of the vessel. To get this benefit the request must be accompanied with a description and sketch or tracing of the spaces, the measurement thereof, and the collector's certificate that such space or spaces conform to the requirements stated above.

(b) Reasonable in extent. In construing the words "reasonable in extent" the measurer should note that the length should not exceed the length of the propelling machinery space, and if any portion is plated over, the length of such part must be deducted from the full length and whatever the breadth of the casing may be, the breadth allowed must not exceed one-half the extreme inside midship breadth of the vessel.

(c) Purpose for including light and air spaces. The purpose of adding a part of the framed-in light and air spaces (above the crown of the boiler and engine room and above the upper deck) of a vessel to her machinery space below the upper deck is to entitle the vessel to a greater deduction for propelling power, and consequently obtain a smaller net tonnage than would otherwise result. To get this benefit, it does not always require the addition of the total of such light and air spaces. In such cases only such portion need be added as hereinafter explained.

(d) Rule for computing addible light and air space. Below is given a simple rule for finding the amount of light and air space or spaces required to be added to the gross tonnage and also to the propelling machinery space of a mechanically propelled vessel to entitle her to 32 percent of her gross tonnage for propelling-power deduction when granted by the Director upon request of her owner or owners:

Find 13.1 per cent of the gross tonnage inclusive of excess hatchways. Find the difference between this per cent and the tonnage of the propelling machinery space below the upper deck to the hull. Increase this difference by 15 per cent of itself, which gives approximately the amount of light and air space or spaces to be added to the gross tonnage defined above, and also to the propelling machinery space below said upper deck. The gross register tonnage in such a case is the gross tonnage as defined above, plus light and air addition, less one-half of 1 per cent of said light and air addition, which one-half per cent is additional allowance for excess hatchways due to addition of light and air to gross tonnage.

|---|---|
| Gross tonnage, exclusive of light and air and hatchways | 5,675.95 |
| Excess of hatchways (based on the above) | 67.37 |
| Gross tonnage, inclusive of excess hatchways and exclusive of light and air | 5,743.32 |
| 13.1 per cent of 5,743.32 | 752.37 |
| Machinery space below the upper deck to the hull | 680.55 |
| Difference | 71.82 |
| 15 per cent of difference | 10.77 |
| Difference plus 15 per cent of itself (amount of light and air to be added to gross tonnage and machinery space) | 82.59 |
| Gross tonnage inclusive of light and air and excess of hatchways | 5,825.91 |
| Additional exemption for hatchways; account of light and air addition equals one-half 1 per cent of 82.59—82.59/200 | .41 |
| Gross registered tonnage | 5,825.50 |
| Proof: | |
| 13.1 per cent of 5,825.50 | 763.14 |
| 680.55 plus 82.59 | 763.14 |

§ 16.60 Calculations to be verified and diagram of areas made. Calculations must be verified at least twice and a diagram of half breadths for areas made. See Figures 52 and 53 (Sec. 16.65).

(b) The deductions having been made from the gross tonnage and the remainder or net tonnage having been properly marked on the main beam, the surveyor or measuring officer will certify the result to the collector on Form 1322.

(c) Marking net tonnage and official number on vessel. The net tonnage (omitting fractions), together with the official number, must be marked on the face of the beam under the forward side of the main hatch on seagoing vessels and on great lakes vessels, and on the face of the beam under the after side of the forward hatch of western river steamers. On river steamers whose route may also be on bays and/or sounds and which do not have a cargo hatch on the main deck, the net tonnage and official number shall be properly inscribed in a conspicuous place on one of the main deck beams located as near as possible to the middle of the vessel.

The markings should be in plain Arabic numerals not less than 3 inches high and not less than three-eighths inch deep in vessels whose main beam is wood, and plainly cut or punched on vessels whose main beam is of steel or iron.

§ 16.61 Appendix to certificate of registry. When a vessel of the United States carries passengers to a foreign port or ports the collector of customs will issue to each such vessel admeasured in his district a "Special Appendix to Certificate of Registry of American Passenger Vessels" (Form 1265–A), showing the tonnage of passenger spaces on a deck not a deck to the hull and exempted from inclusion in tonnage by these regulations.

The same requirement applies to vessels operating from his district not previously furnished such an appendix.

At the end of each quarter, the Collector must report to this Bureau the official number and name of every vessel in his district to which such appendix has been issued during that period.

§ 16.62 Measurement of government vessels. When the tonnage of Government colliers, transports, supply ships, repair ships, etc., is requested, this tonnage shall be ascertained in accordance with these rules, but the following requirement will be waived: The marking of the vessel's name and home port, official number (none required), and net tonnage; the requirements as to size and conditions of crew space, and the certifications of deducted spaces on the beam over the doorway. The plate over the door designating its use is sufficient for such certifications.

§ 16.63 Foreign vessels. A similar mode of measurement having been adopted by Belgium, Denmark, Esthonia, Finland, France, Free City of Danzig, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Latvia, the Netherlands, Norway, Panama, Poland, Portugal, Russia, Spain and Sweden, and the like courtesy having been extended to vessels of the United States, it is directed that merchant vessels of these countries, the registers of which indicate their gross and net tonnage under their present laws, shall be taken in the ports of the United States to be of the tonnage so expressed in their documents. Vessels of foreign countries other than the aforesaid are to be measured according to the laws of the United States.

§ 16.64 Change of tonnage. The tonnage of any documented vessel of the United States expressed in her marine papers in pursuance of a measurement purporting to be in conformity to the provisions of this Part can be changed or set aside only by permission of the Director. Accordingly, when changes in structure or use of spaces that affect the tonnage of such a vessel have been made since her former admeasurement, and when for any reason the owner requests a change of tonnage, application must be made to the Director for permission to change her tonnage.

With each of such applications a precise statement of the proposed change of tonnage, whether it grows out of changes in the hull, deck erections, rig, use of spaces, deductions, etc., or errors in her former admeasurement, or changes in the regulations for the admeasurement of vessels subsequent thereto, must be submitted. This statement must be accompanied by a tonnage admeasurement for approval, with a detailed statement of the existing tonnage and appropriate blueprints or sketches for checking the proposed changes.

The figures of her former admeasurement as recorded on Form 1410 will be accepted for the unaltered spaces and used as far as they are applicable in amending the tonnage of the altered spaces unless obvious errors are found in the same. If the vessel was originally admeasured at a port other than where the admeasurement for change of tonnage is to be made, her former figures may be obtained from that port, and to which they must be returned without alteration after having served their purpose.

Whereas the South Coast Corporation has filed application for the exemption of that portion of the cane sugar processing and milling branch of the cane sugar industry which is located in Louisiana from the maximum hours provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as a branch of an industry of a seasonal nature within the meaning of Section 7 (b) (3) and Part 526 of the Regulations issued thereunder, and

Whereas Harry L. Laws and Company, Inc. and the Celotex Corporation have filed applications for the exemption of that portion of the cane sugar processing and milling branch of the cane sugar industry which is located in Louisiana, as is engaged in the removing, conveying, burning, baling, piling and storing of bagasse from the maximum hours provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as a branch of an industry of a seasonal nature within the meaning of Section 7 (b) (3) and Part 526 of the Regulations issued thereunder, and

Whereas it appears from the said applications that:

1. Sugarcane matures and is and must be harvested in Louisiana in order to avoid severe frosts or freezes during the regularly recurring season, October through early January, and

2. Such sugarcane enters into sugar mills located in Louisiana for processing and is processed during the regularly recurring season, October through early January, running nearly concurrently with, but lagging somewhat after, the harvest, and

3. The mills wherein the processing operations are performed do not engage in any other operations and close at the end of the operating season each year except for maintenance, repair, clerical and sales work, and

4. Sugarcane, being the material used by the sugar mills, is available, for natural reasons, only during the regularly recurring season, October through early January,

Now, therefore, upon consideration of the facts stated in the said applications, the Administrator hereby determines, pursuant to Section 526.5 (c), that a prima facie case has been shown for the granting of an exemption pursuant to Section 7 (b) (3) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and Part 526 of the Regulations issued thereunder to that portion of the cane sugar processing and milling branch of the cane sugar industry which is located in Louisiana.

In the above:

The term "that portion of the cane sugar processing and milling branch of the cane sugar industry which is located in Louisiana" includes that branch of the industry engaged in the unloading of sugarcane from wagons and railroad cars onto conveyors; the processing of sugarcane into sugar, syrup and molasses, but not the refining of such sugar, syrup and molasses; the removal, handling and conveying of raw sugar, syrup and molasses to storage and placing them in storage on or in the vicinity of the sugar mill site; the removal, conveying, burning, baling, and piling and storing in baled form on or in the vicinity of the sugar mill site of bagasse resulting from the processing of sugarcane into raw sugar, syrup or molasses; and the operations or services necessary or incident to the foregoing.

In accordance with the procedure established by Section 526.5 (c) of the Regulations, the Administrator, for fifteen days following the publication of this determination, will receive objection to the granting of the exemption and request for hearing from any interested person. Upon receipt of objection and request for hearing, the Administrator will set the application for hearing before himself or an authorized representative.

If no objection and request for hearing is received within fifteen days, the Administrator will make a finding upon the prima facie case shown upon the applications.

These applications may be examined at Room 313, 939 D Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

TITLE 24—HOUSING CREDIT

HOME OWNERS' LOAN CORPORATION

PART 402—LOAN SERVICE

POLICY AND PURPOSE; ITEMS INCLUDED; RATE OF INTEREST; CO-MAKER AND ENDORSERS LIABILITY; APPLICATION FORM; APPLICATION PREPARATION, INSURANCE

Amending Part 402 of Chapter IV, Title 24 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Sections 402.13–1, 402.13–2, 402.13–4 and 402.13–5 are deleted, and the following sections substituted:

§ 402.13–1 It is the policy of the Corporation to grant extensions of time for the payment of indebtedness as provided in Section 402.13 on an individual case basis where the circumstances of the home owner, condition of the security, and the best interests of the Corporation justify it. Every effort shall be made to place the home owner in position to maintain his taxes, insurance premiums and loan or vendee account on a current basis. Extensions may be granted in order to provide further opportunity for rehabilitation or realization of the equity in the property through transfer even though the home owner may not be able to maintain a current status under the terms of such extension if there is, in the opinion of the Regional Manager, a reasonable prospect of his being able to do so.

§ 402.13–2 In connection with the granting of an extension the Regional Manager may authorize advances for the payment of taxes, assessments, other levies or charges, or ground rents. Any extension granted shall embrace all present indebtedness including delinquent principal, interest and all advances previously made or made in connection therewith whether due or not. Payments shall be required in equal monthly installments over a period commensurate with the home owner's circumstances and requirements, but in no event shall the term of payment exceed the period authorized in Section 402.13. While the advantages of liquidating the indebtedness in as short a period as possible should be made known to home owners applying for an extension, no effort shall be made to arbitrarily shorten the time for payment within the limitations of Section 402.13 where the home owner can make a reasonable showing that there is necessity for the maximum period.

In no case shall an extension or change in the payment plan be granted unless the home owner in connection therewith agrees to accumulate with the Corporation, in addition to his regular payments, funds to provide for the payment of taxes, assessments, other levies or charges, or ground rents upon the security property or the property sold, and for the renewal of existing insurance upon such property, or the purchase of such additional insurance as the home owner is required to furnish upon the property. It is not a requirement that precedent to the granting of an extension the home owner be delinquent in any of his obligations to the Corporation.

§ 402.13–5 The instruments used in granting an extension shall provide for interest at the rate applicable to the original obligation. However, in computing the monthly payment to be billed, the amortization shall be based on the rate provided in Section 402.17.

§ 402.13–6 The signatures of co-makers, endorsers and other persons liable with the maker of the obligation, though ordinarily required, may be dispensed with if the Regional Counsel has advised that they will not thereby be released from liability or the Regional Manager has determined that their release from liability will not seriously impair the Corporation's position.

§ 402.13–8 All applications for extensions shall be made by the home owner on "Application for Extension", Form 193, which contains the agreement of the applicant to accumulate with the Corporation, in addition to his regular payments, funds to provide for the payment of taxes, assessments, other levies and charges, ground rents and insurance premiums. The home owner shall execute Form 193 in triplicate.

§ 402.13–9 The Service Representative shall complete Block I on the reverse side of Form 193 in order to determine the monthly allocation to the Tax and Insurance Account.

It is expected that home owners generally will desire to continue in effect the insurance now held by the Corporation and provision therefor is made on the face of the application Form 193. While the Corporation will only purchase additional insurance when required for its own protection, the home owner may forward any additional policies he may have or purchase to be included with the policies held by the Corporation. If accepted, the Insurance Section will provide for an adjustment to the Tax and Insurance Account to take care of the renewal of the additional insurance. The Service Representative is not authorized to arrange for any reduction in the amount of insurance. If the home owner desires to reduce the amount of insurance, he may make application therefor, in writing, directly to the Regional Office Insurance Section. If such reduction is made, the Insurance Section will provide for an adjustment in the allocation to the Tax and Insurance Account.

(Effective October 1, 1939)

(Above procedure promulgated by General Manager with the approval of the General Counsel pursuant to authority vested in them by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board acting pursuant to Secs. 4 (a), 4 (k) of Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, 48 Stat. 129, 132, as amended by Section 13 of the Act of April 27, 1934, 48 Stat. 647; 12 U.S.C. 1463 (a), (k))

Necessary information with respect to insurance will be obtained from the Insurance Section, and in those cases where the tax information is not readily available such information shall be obtained from the Tax Section.

PART 403—PROPERTY MANAGEMENT

PREPARATION OF FORM PM 412 AND OF AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF REAL ESTATE; EXECUTION OF AGREEMENT IN STATE OFFICE; EXECUTION OF AGREEMENT IN REGIONAL OFFICE; PREPARATION FOR CLOSING

Amending Part 403 of Chapter IV, Title 24 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Sections 403.10–12, 403.10–13, 403.10–15 and 403.10–16 are amended, and Section 403.10–15, as amended, is renumbered 403.10–14 so that the said sections shall read as follows:

§ 403.10–12 The prospective purchaser shall be required to submit a credit statement on Form PM 412 on which the Contract Sales Broker shall endorse his recommendation. The Corporation's approved form of agreement for the sale of real estate will then be prepared. This agreement may be prepared in the Regional, State or District Office, or the Contract Sales Broker may cause such agreement to be prepared. It shall be prepared in quintuplicate and shall be signed by the purchaser in triplicate. When the amount of the purchaser's offer is substantially less than the listing price of the property, the broker may advise the State or District Manager by the quickest means of communication of the amount and terms of the offer, and thereupon the State or District Manager shall promptly advise the broker whether or not the Corporation will consider such amount and terms, but if the amount of the offer is less than the minimum sales price of the property, the State or District Manager shall communicate with the Regional Office to ascertain whether the Corporation will consider such price and terms before so advising the broker. Form PM 412, the original and four copies of the agreement for the sale of real estate, and the prospective purchaser's deposit shall then be transmitted by the broker to the Property Management Division in the State or District Office. Upon receipt of these papers, a credit report shall be obtained by the Property Management Division in the State or District Office from an established credit reporting agency unless such report has previously been ordered. The representations made by the prospective purchaser on Form PM 412 shall be checked by the State or District Manager who shall endorse thereon his decision or recommendation as to the acceptability of the prospective purchaser as a credit risk. In all cases where the cash payment offered by the prospective purchaser is equal to or in excess of 25% of the purchase price, the credit report may be waived.

§ 403.10–13 Any agreement for the sale of real estate, signed by a purchaser whose credit standing is satisfactory to the Regional, State or District Manager, may be executed in triplicate on behalf of the Corporation in the State Office when the amount of the offer is not less than the minimum sales price and the terms thereof conform to the regulations. Any agreement for sale which is signed by the prospective purchaser and which may be executed hereunder on behalf of the Corporation in the State Office shall, when received in the District Office, be promptly transmitted to the State Property Management Division, together with Form PM 412 and all other pertinent instruments in the case; all other agreements for sale which the District Manager recommends for acceptance by the Corporation, together with said form and instruments, shall be promptly transmitted by the District Office direct to the Regional Property Management Division. Prior to its execution in the State Office, the agreement may be referred to the State Counsel for advice as to its legal sufficiency and the time therein provided for closing. Upon the execution of such agreement on behalf of the Corporation in the State Office, an executed copy thereof shall be promptly transmitted to the Regional Sales Supervisor. At the same time, one executed copy of such agreement shall be transmitted to the purchaser, and the District Property Management Division and the Contract Sales Broker shall be notified of the execution of the agreement by the Corporation. When the executed agreement for sale provides that the Corporation shall furnish title evidence in addition to that then held by it, the State Sales Supervisor shall at the same time transmit to the State Counsel all title evidence in the case which is available in the State Office and the original executed agreement for sale.

§ 403.10–14 If an agreement for the sale of real estate has been signed by the prospective purchaser but cannot under the regulations be executed on behalf of the Corporation in the State Office, the State or District Property Management Division shall transmit the original and all copies of such agreement, together with Form PM 412 and all other pertinent instruments in the case, to the Regional Property Management Division. Such agreement may be referred to the Regional Counsel for advice as to its legal sufficiency and the time therein provided for closing. If the credit standing of the prospective purchaser is satisfactory to the Regional, State or District Manager and the amount and terms of the offer are in the judgment of the Regional Manager acceptable to the Corporation, such agreement may be executed in triplicate on behalf of the Corporation in the Regional Office. Upon the execution of such agreement on behalf of the Corporation in the Regional Office, the original and all copies thereof shall be promptly transmitted to the Regional Sales Supervisor, who shall promptly transmit one executed copy thereof to the purchaser and advise the State and District Property Management Divisions and the Contract Sales Broker of the execution of the agreement by the Corporation. When the executed agreement for sale provides that the Corporation shall furnish title evidence in addition to that then held by it, the Regional Sales Supervisor shall at the same time transmit or cause to be transmitted direct to the State Counsel all title evidence in the case which is available in the Regional Office and the original executed agreement for sale.

§ 403.10–16 Promptly upon its receipt of an executed copy of the agreement for the sale of real estate, whether the same has been executed on behalf of the Corporation in the State or Regional Office, or upon the request of the State Property Management Division, the Regional Property Management Division shall obtain and transmit to the State Property Management Division all title evidence, instruments and insurance, tax and other information which are available in the Regional Office in pursuance of the general advices of the Regional Counsel. If the agreement was executed on behalf of the Corporation in the Regional Office, both unexecuted copies of such agreement shall also be transmitted to the State Property Management Division, together with the original agreement, unless such original has theretofore been furnished to the State Counsel for the purpose of obtaining additional title evidence as is provided in Section 403.10–14.

The Regional Counsel will advise the Regional Manager generally of the title evidence, instruments and insurance, and other information which the Property Management Division shall assemble in order to enable the Legal Department to close sales in each jurisdiction within the Region.

Promptly upon its receipt of the title evidence, instruments and information available in the Regional Office, the State Property Management Division shall supply any missing material which the Property Management Division is required to assemble pursuant to the general advices of the Regional Counsel. Other necessary title evidence, tax information and other missing items required by the regulations to be furnished by the Legal Department shall be obtained or caused to be obtained by the State Counsel.

The former Section 403.10–14 is renumbered 403.10–15.

Section 403.10–14 was amended to read as follows:

Deposits of prospective purchasers received by the State Property Management Division shall be properly identified and retained in safekeeping by the State Manager who shall maintain an adequate register of them. Such deposit items shall be so retained by the State Manager until he has reached a decision as to the disposition to be made of the offer of the prospective purchaser. If the amount and terms of the offer permit the State Manager to accept the offer and he determines to accept it, he shall, promptly after the execution of the agreement for sale on behalf of the Corporation, transmit such deposit item to the Collection Cage for deposit and receive from the Collection Cage a receipt of such deposit on original of Form 107 or duplicate of Form 716, which receipt will accompany the sale file when it is transmitted to the Regional Office. If no such deposit facilities are available in the State Office, the deposit item will be transmitted to the Regional Office for deposit. If the State Manager under the regulations is not authorized to accept the particular offer, but he recommends acceptance to the Regional Office, such deposit item together with the sale file shall immediately be transmitted to the Regional Office for safekeeping of the item by the Regional Treasurer: Provided, That if the State Manager submits the amount and terms of the offer to the Regional Office by wire or other expeditious means without transmitting the sales file, the deposit shall remain in safekeeping in the State Office until the Regional Office authorizes acceptance or rejection of the offer. If the Regional Office authorizes acceptance, the deposit item shall be handled as above for accepted offers. If the Regional Office directs rejection of the offer or if the offer is rejected by the State Manager, he shall promptly return such deposit item to the party or parties entitled thereto and advise the broker and all interested parties of such rejection.

Such deposit items as are received by the State or District Manager in cash, shall be transmitted to the Collection Cage for deposit as provided for accepted offers where such facilities are available. Where such deposit facilities are not available, the cash shall, prior to mailing, be converted by the State or District Manager into a cashier's check and the expense, if any, of such conversion shall be paid as Corporation Expense from the Incidental Expense Account. Refunds for such cash deposits may be made immediately upon rejection of the offer by the State Manager in accordance with established procedure.

Deposits of prospective purchasers transmitted to the Regional Office for safekeeping and received by the Regional Treasurer will be retained in safekeeping by him. ## INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

CANCELATION OF PARTICIPATION IN AGENCY TARIFFS

OCTOBER 30, 1939.

To All Motor Carriers Subject to Section 217 of the Motor Carrier Act, 1935:

So many tariff complications and possibly unwitting violations of the law result from the cancelation of the participation of motor carriers in agency tariffs, including classification publications, that it is necessary to call the attention of all interstate common carriers by motor vehicle and their publishing agents to their obligations in this respect.

The law requires that all common carriers shall file with the Commission, and keep open to public inspection tariffs containing all their rates, fares, and charges for transportation and all services in connection therewith. Many carriers have complied with this obligation by participating in agency tariffs filed by agents who act in accordance with the by-laws of bureaus, conferences, or other organizations of motor carriers. Upon failure of a carrier to pay the established dues of such organization, or to comply with the by-laws, in many instances the agent proceeds to cancel the carrier's participation in the agency issues. Such cancelation makes the use of rates in such tariffs by that carrier unlawful. It is likewise unlawful for common carriers to perform interstate transportation without lawful rates on file covering the services performed. Therefore, the carrier must arrange to establish, effective on the same date that its participation in the agency issue is canceled, rates for the transportation services which it may lawfully perform and for which it does not otherwise have rates filed.

An individual carrier may publish its own tariffs to take the place of those formerly published by its agent, or it may arrange to have its rates published by another agent, or republished by the agent who canceled them.

A tariff containing a classification of commodities is actually a part of any class rate tariff which is made subject to such classification tariff. Therefore, a carrier that is a party to a rate tariff which refers to a classification tariff must also be a party to the classification tariff.

If a carrier's participation in a classification tariff is canceled, that carrier's class rate tariff then becomes incomplete because there is no proper method of determining the commodities upon which the various class rates apply. Therefore, if a carrier's participation in the classification tariff is canceled, it is necessary that the carrier publish an individual classification of commodities, or arrange for participation in some other classification tariff, or be reinstated in the tariff from which it has been canceled. In instances where a carrier elects to use a different classification, it will be necessary for the carrier to correct each of its class rate tariffs to provide reference to the new classification tariff to which the rate tariffs are made subject.

It should not be assumed that the Commission will grant special permission for the reestablishment of canceled carrier rates or reinstatement of canceled carrier participation in agency issues on short notice when the carrier's participation has been canceled because of a controversy between a carrier and its agent, bureau, or association. Therefore, any agent who proposes to cancel the participation of a carrier in his class tariff or classification should notify the carrier of such proposed cancelation sufficiently in advance of the effective date thereof to permit the carrier to file an individual tariff or arrange with another agent for the publication of its rates on full statutory notice, effective on the same date as that of cancelation. The agent should also furnish the carrier with a sufficient number of copies of the canceling publication to permit proper posting.

Portland Gas & Coke Company, a subsidiary company of American Power & Light Company, a registered holding company, and an indirect subsidiary company of Electric Bond and Share Company, a registered holding company, having duly filed with this Commission an amended application pursuant to Section 6 (b) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 for exemption from the provisions of Section 6 (a) of the Act with respect to (1) the extension for ten years of the maturity of $9,674,000 principal amount of its First and Refunding Mortgage Five Per Cent Gold Bonds, due January 1, 1940 (including $3,000,000 principal amount pledged as collateral under the company's First Lien and General Mortgage) and $3,000,000 principal amount of its First Lien and General Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series of "4½s Due 1940", and (2) the issuance and sale of 6,000 additional shares of common stock to American Power & Light Company for a cash consideration of $600,000; and

A hearing on said amended application having been duly held after appropriate notice; the record in this matter having been duly examined; and the Commission having made and filed its findings herein:

It is ordered, That the extension of maturity of the aforesaid bonds and the issue and sale of the aforesaid common stock be, and the same hereby are, exempted from the provisions of Section 6 (a) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, subject, however, to the following conditions:

(1) That the transactions shall be executed in compliance with the terms and conditions of, and for the purposes represented by, the amended application; and

(2) That the exemption shall immediately terminate without further order of this Commission if, at any time, the authorization by the Public Utilities Commissioner of Oregon or by the Department of Public Service of Washington shall be revoked or shall otherwise terminate; and

(3) That any modification of the deposit agreement or extension plan or of the soliciting literature shall be submitted to the Commission in advance, and the Commission reserves jurisdiction to consider the terms thereof; and

(4) That any supplemental indentures to be executed in connection with the extension plan shall be submitted to the Commission prior to execution thereof, and the Commission reserves jurisdiction to consider the terms thereof; and

(5) That except as the Commission may by order or orders from time to time permit, so long as any of the First and Refunding Mortgage bonds or First Lien and General Mortgage bonds are outstanding, the applicant shall not, nor shall any successor or successors of applicant, declare or pay any dividends (other than dividends payable solely in shares of its stock) or make any other distribution on any shares of its preferred or common stock, or make any disbursement for the purchase or retirement of any of its stock, unless the amount expended or accrued by applicant (or any such successor or successors) for maintenance and repairs plus provisions for retirements out of income earned during the period from the close of business on December 31, 1939, to the date of the proposed payment of such dividend or making of such distribution or disbursement shall equal fifteen per cent. (15%) of the gross operating revenues of applicant (or any such successor or successors) during such period derived from the sale of gas after the deduction therefrom of an amount equal to the cost to applicant of gas purchased and resold, and rentals paid for gas generating, transmission or distribution properties leased by applicant, and payments by applicant for the use of similar properties operated and maintained by others during such period: Provided, however, That any transfers to the earned surplus of applicant from net income earned after December 31, 1939, over and above all such dividends, distributions, and disbursements (including the dividends then to be paid, or the distributions or disbursements then to be made) may be used as a credit to offset any deficiency in the amount expended or accrued for maintenance and repairs plus provisions for retirements out of income earned after December 31, 1939, in satisfying the aforementioned fifteen per cent. (15%) requirement; and

(6) That a copy of the findings and opinion of this Commission shall be furnished concurrently with each initial letter of solicitation transmitted to any bondholder.

The President

THANKSGIVING DAY—1939

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

I, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-third of November 1939, as a day of general thanksgiving.

More than three centuries ago, at the season of the gathering in of the harvest, the Pilgrims humbly paused in their work and gave thanks to God for the preservation of their community and for the abundant yield of the soil. A century and a half later, after the new Nation had been formed, and the charter of government, the Constitution of the Republic, had received the assent of the States, President Washington and his successors invited the people of the Nation to lay down their tasks one day in the year and give thanks for the blessings that had been granted them by Divine Providence. It is fitting that we should continue this hallowed custom and select a day in 1939 to be dedicated to reverent thoughts of thanksgiving.

Our Nation has gone steadily forward in the application of democratic processes to economic and social problems. We have faced the specters of business depression, of unemployment, and of widespread agricultural distress, and our positive efforts to alleviate these conditions have met with heartening results. We have also been permitted to see the fruition of measures which we have undertaken in the realms of health, social welfare, and the conservation of resources. As a Nation we are deeply grateful that in a world of turmoil we are at peace with all countries, and we especially rejoice in the strengthened bonds of our friendship with the other peoples of the Western Hemisphere.

Let us, on the day set aside for this purpose, give thanks to the Ruler of the Universe for the strength which He has vouchsafed us to carry on our daily labors and for the hope that lives within us of the coming of a day when peace and the productive activities of peace shall reign on every continent.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this 31st day of October, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and [SEAL] thirty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and sixty-fourth.

Prior to being so admitted, the seed shall be kept intact and not tampered with in any way, or removed from the containers except under Government supervision. The bond shall be filed with the collector of customs, who, in case of default, shall take appropriate action to effect the collection of liquidated damages equal to the invoice value of the entire shipment, plus the estimated duties thereon, if any. Paragraph 770 (c) [Sec. 12.2 (c)] is amended by deleting the second sentence and substituting therefor the following:

The form of added bond conditions prescribed by T.D. 49206 is hereby amended to read as follows:

There are hereby incorporated in and made a part of the bond No. ----, dated ----------, in the penal sum of ------, executed by ----------, as principal, and ----------, as surety, the following added conditions:

Whereas, the principal named in the said bond has requested that the merchandise covered by entry No. ----, dated ----------, in connection with which the above bond was given, be examined elsewhere than at the public stores, wharf, or other place in charge of a customs officer, in accordance with article 770, Customs Regulations of 1937, the obligors named in the above bond stipulate and agree that the said merchandise shall be held at the place to which it will be removed for examination, until such merchandise shall have been released from customs custody by the completion of final examination for purposes of appraisement; that, if the merchandise has been corded and sealed, the cords and seals shall be kept intact until removed by customs officers; that the merchandise shall be transferred, at any time before such release, to such place as the collector of customs may direct; and that after such release it shall be redelivered to customs custody if demand for redelivery is made by the collector in accordance with the law and regulations; or in the event of failure to comply with any or all of the conditions contained in this stipulation, there shall be paid to the collector of customs an amount equal to the value of the merchandise as set forth in the entry, plus the estimated duty thereon.

Article 812 [Sec. 13.9] is amended by inserting a period after the word "entry" in the last sentence and deleting the words "when the shortage is one for which the bonded carrier is responsible under its bond." (Sec. 552, 46 Stat. 742; 19 U.S.C. 1552)

Paragraph (a) of article 1258 [Sec. 23.8 (a)] is amended by changing the period at the end of the first sentence to a comma and adding the following: "except as provided in article 1256 (b) [Sec. 23.6 (b)]. (Sec. 623, 46 Stat. 759, sec. 30, 52 Stat. 1089; 19 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 1623. Sec. 624, 46 Stat. 759; 19 U.S.C. 1624)"

Paragraph (d) of article 1262 [Sec. 23.12 (d)] is amended to read as follows:

"(d) [Sec. 23.12 (d)] Whenever a bond is executed in a customs district other than the one in which it is to be filed, the bond may be approved as to surety by the collector of customs in the district in which it was executed if evidence of the authority of the officers or agents executing the bond on behalf of the surety is on file in his office. If the bond is not to be approved by the collector in whose district it is executed, the authority of the person or persons executing the bond on behalf of the company must be completed, as provided in the preceding paragraph of this section, and attached to the bond, unless such evidence has been submitted to the collector at the port where the bond is to be approved and filed. (Sec. 623, 46 Stat. 759, sec. 30, 52 Stat. 1089; 19 U.S.C. Sup. IV, 1623. Sec. 624, 46 Stat. 759; 19 U.S.C. 1624)"

"Cheese known as Pecorino Romano Sardo and Pecorino Genuino Romano: Allow 2½ per centum from net weight of cheese for inedible protective covering in computing dutiable weight. Cheese known as Italian Reggiano: Allow 1 per centum from net weight of cheese for inedible protective covering in computing dutiable weight. (Sec. 507, 46 Stat. 732; 19 U.S.C. 1507)"

REGULATIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS GOVERNING THE ISSUANCE OF DUPLICATE CHECKS[1]

OCTOBER 27, 1939.

The following Regulations and Instructions[2] governing the issuance of duplicates of checks drawn by a duly authorized officer or agent of the United States, the District of Columbia, or the District Unemployment Compensation Board, on their behalf against an account or funds of the United States, the District of Columbia, or the District Unemployment Compensation Board, including instruments issued by any corporation or other entity owned or controlled by the United States, the funds of which are deposited and covered into the Treasury of the United States or deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, are hereby established pursuant to the provisions of Section 3646 of the Revised Statutes of 1873 as amended by Section 9 of the Government Losses in Shipment Act approved July 8, 1937, 50 Stat. 482 (U.S.C., Sup. IV, title 31, sec. 528), and by the Act approved August 10, 1939 (Pub. No. 378, 76th Cong., 1st Sess.), and Section 3647 of the Revised Statutes of 1873, as amended (U.S.C. title 31, sec. 119). The requirements contained herein must be strictly observed except as the Secretary of the Treasury, being satisfied that observance thereof is not necessary to carry out the purposes of the law and these regulations may waive or modify any such requirement.

GENERAL REGULATIONS

1. Advice of nonreceipt or loss. In the event of the nonreceipt or loss of such a check, the owner, better to protect his interest, should immediately notify the Treasurer of the United States or other drawee, describing the check, stating the name of the officer or agent of the United States, the District of Columbia, the District Unemployment Compensation Board, or the corporation or entity, by whom the check was drawn, giving, if possible, its date, number, and amount, and requesting that payment be stopped.

Upon receipt of such request, if the check is found to be outstanding, a bond of indemnity (Form No. 2244 or 2244a), or in appropriate cases an application (Form 2244b or 2244c) will be prepared in the Treasurer's office and transmitted for execution by the claimant. The bond of indemnity or application, when duly executed according to instructions, must be transmitted to the drawer of the original check.

2. Affidavit of nonreceipt or loss. An affidavit in substantially the form prescribed, Form 2244, 2244a, 2244b, or 2244c,[3] as the case may be, must be executed by the claimant and submitted to the drawer of the original check, together with the bond of indemnity (Form 2244 or 2244a), or application (Form 2244b or 2244c), giving the claimant's name and residence in full, describing the check, and all endorsements thereon, showing the claimant's interest therein and detailing the circumstances attending its nonreceipt or loss. The affidavit must be made and signed before a notary public or other officer authorized by law to administer oaths for general purposes, who must certify that he administered the oath. If executed in a foreign country, the affidavit must be made before a notary public or before a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States.

If a corporation, joint stock company, business trust, or association is the claimant, an officer thereof must make and sign the affidavit individually, but on behalf of such corporation, joint stock company, business trust, or association.

If a partnership is the claimant, the instruction in the last sentence of paragraph 13 should be followed.

If the check is owned jointly, any joint owner having personal knowledge of the facts may execute the affidavit.

3. Issuance of duplicate. After the expiration of thirty days from the date of the original check, except in the case of certain mutilated checks mentioned hereinafter, and before the close of the fiscal year following the fiscal year in which it was issued, the drawer will prepare a duplicate, which must be an exact transcript of the original, special care being taken that the number, date and name of the payee correspond to those of the original. In the case of checks issued on account of public-debt obligations and transactions regarding the administration of banking and currency laws, duplicates may be issued without limitation of time. The drawer will then, without delay, forward the bond (Form 2244 or 2244a) or application (Form 2244b or 2244c) and the duplicate check to the Secretary of the Treasury (Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants). The bond or application and the information obtained shall be examined by the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants, and if satisfactory, shall be approved and the duplicate check certified, by direction of the Secretary, by the Chief or the Assistant Chief, Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants. In the event the claimant is someone other than the payee of the original check, he should present clear and satisfactory evidence of his ownership to the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants. Upon a finding by the Chief or the Assistant Chief of the Division that the claimant is the lawful owner of the original check, a duplicate may be issued to the claimant, payable to such claimant through an endorsement on behalf of the Secretary to that effect.

Certification of approval shall be made in writing on the application or bond as well as on the duplicate check. Any duplicate issued pursuant to these Regulations and Instructions, and certified as provided above, may, if properly endorsed, be paid subject to the same rules and regulations as apply to payment of original checks; but no duplicate shall be paid if the original has already been paid.

No bond of indemnity shall be required in any of the following classes of cases except as hereinafter provided:

(a) If the Secretary of the Treasury is satisfied that the loss, theft, destruction, mutilation, or defacement, as the case may be, occurred without fault of the owner or holder and while the check was in the custody or control of the United States including the Postal Service when carrying mail for any officer, employee, agent, or agency of the United States when performing services in connection with an official function of the United States, but not including the Postal Service when otherwise acting solely in its capacity as a public carrier of the mail, or of a person thereunto duly authorized as lawful agent of the United States; or while it was in the course of shipment effected pursuant to and in accordance with the regulations issued under the provisions of the Government Losses in Shipment Act, as amended;

(b) If substantially the entire check is presented and surrendered by the owner or holder and the Secretary of the Treasury is satisfied as to the identity of the check presented and that any missing portions are not sufficient to form the basis of a valid claim against the United States; and in such cases the 30-day waiting period provided herein is waived, and in cases where the circumstances justify such action a letter of application or submitted affidavit may be accepted in lieu of Form 2244b or 2244c;

(c) If the Secretary of the Treasury is satisfied that the original check is not negotiable and cannot be made the basis of a valid claim against the United States;

(d) If the amount of the check is less than $50, and the Secretary of the Treasury is satisfied that the giving of a bond of indemnity would be an undue hardship to the owner or holder; where the amount of the check is not more than $25, and the check has not been endorsed by the payee, it will ordinarily be presumed that the giving of a bond of indemnity would be an undue hardship to the owner;

IV, title 31, sec. 528), as amended by the Act approved August 10, 1939, (Pub., No. 378, 76th Cong., 1st Sess.).

(e) If the owner or holder is the United States or an officer or employee thereof in his official capacity, a State, the District of Columbia, a Territory or possession of the United States, including the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands, a municipal corporation or political subdivision of any of the foregoing, a corporation the whole of whose capital is owned by the United States, a foreign government, or a Federal Reserve bank;

Provided, however, That in any of the foregoing classes of cases the Secretary of the Treasury may require a bond of indemnity if he deems it essential to the public interest.

In cases falling within the provisions of subsection (a), (b), except as hereinbefore provided, (c), (d), and (e) of this Section, application for the issuance of a duplicate check without a bond of indemnity shall be made on Form 2244b or 2244c. Additional affidavits and evidence may be required.

4. In case the officer or agent of the United States is dead or no longer in the service of the United States. In case of the loss of a check issued by an officer or agent, other than the Treasurer of the United States or the Secretary of the Treasury, who is dead or no longer in the service of the United States, the affidavit and bond required to be furnished by the owner of said check to an officer or agent in the service of the United States, prior to the issuance of a duplicate check, should be forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury, who will refer them to the General Accounting Office for examination and the statement of an account in favor of the owner of said check, as provided in section 3647 of the Revised Statutes of 1873, as amended, and section 307 of the Act approved June 10, 1921, 42 Stat. 25 (U.S.C. title 31, sec. 47). Payment will then be made by a check issued pursuant to such statement of account.

5. Recovery of original. In the event of the recovery of the original check, after the issuance of the duplicate, it must be surrendered to the Secretary of the Treasury for cancellation. If the check has been recovered before the issuance of a duplicate, the Treasurer of the United States of other drawee should be immediately notified and removal of the stoppage requested.

6. Errors, erasures, etc. Care should be exercised in the execution of the bond to avoid erasures and corrections. If, however, a correction should be necessary, and it is impracticable to obtain another form, a separate notation should be made on the margin of the bond, setting forth the change or correction, which statement should be signed by principal and sureties. For example: "The change in the date, line 13, to August 18, 1937 (or recite other change) was made with full knowledge and consent of the undersigned ---------- (Principal) ---------- (Surety) ---------- (Surety)."

There shall be no deviation from the printed bond form, except as may be authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury.

7. Penalty. The penalty of the bond should be in multiples of five dollars, and shall be at least equal to the amount of the check, plus 10 percent, but in no case shall the bond be in an amount less than $10.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR EXECUTING BOND OF INDEMNITY

8. Names and residence. The name, including first name, middle initial, if any, and last name of the principal and each surety, together with their addresses, by number, street, city and State, must be given in the first paragraph of bond. The names and addresses should be printed or typewritten, or otherwise clearly written.

9. Signature and seal. The principal and each surety must sign the bond at the foot thereof, by first name, middle initial, if any, and last name, to correspond with his name as shown in the first paragraph of bond. A corporate principal or surety must affix its corporate seal.

10. Witnesses. The signature of a witness must appear in the appropriate place, with his full address, with a showing as to whose signature he has witnessed. Signatures of corporations may be attested. If the signature of a witness is illegible the name should be indicated by printing or typewriting. Married women should not witness the signatures of their husbands when forbidden by state statute to testify against their husbands in a civil suit.

11. Corporation as principal. If the principal is a corporation, the first and second lines of bond must be filled in thus: "(Name of corporation) ----------, by ---------- (an officer duly authorized)." The bond must be signed: "(Name of corporation) ----------, by ---------- (name and title of authorised officer)." Seal of the corporation must be affixed to its signature. If the corporation has no impression seal, the fact shall be stated, in which case a scroll or adhesive seal shall appear following the corporate signature.

The official character and authority of the person or persons executing the bond in the name of the principal shall be certified by the secretary or other officer (who shall be an officer other than the officer executing the bond) on the form at bottom of bond. In lieu of such certificate there may be attached to the bond copies of so much of the records of the principal as will show the official character and authority of the officer signing, duly certified as correct under the corporate seal by the secretary or other authorized officer as aforesaid. If the corporation has no seal, such records of authority must be sworn to by the certifying officer before a person authorized to administer oaths for general purposes, and such person must affix his seal.

12. Unincorporated companies, joint stock companies, business trusts, societies, lodges, etc. as principal. The instructions pertaining to corporations govern. See paragraph No. 11 of the Regulations and Instructions.

13. Partnerships. If the principals are partners, their individual names shall appear on lines one and two of bond, followed by the recital that they are all the partners composing a firm, naming it, and all the members of the firm shall sign the bond as individuals. (If it is inconvenient or impossible to obtain the signature of all members of the firm, consideration will be given to accepting a bond executed by one general partner on behalf of the firm, upon the production of satisfactory proof of the authority of such partner to bind the firm.) The affidavit may be executed by any general partner having personal knowledge of the facts.

14. Assumed business title. If the principal is doing business under an assumed business title, his individual name shall appear on line one of the bond, followed by the recital that he is the sole owner of the firm, naming it, and he shall sign the bond as an individual. He must also execute the affidavit as an individual, showing that he is the sole owner of the firm.

15. Joint ownership. If the check is owned jointly by two or more persons, all such joint owners must execute the bond as principal and execute the affidavit.

16. Sureties. The surety on the bond may be a corporation authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury, or two responsible individuals, unless the amount of the original check is less than $50, in which case one responsible surety may be accepted. The sureties, if individuals, must be citizens and residents of the United States, except that sureties on bonds executed in the Canal Zone, the Philippine Islands, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Alaska, or any possession of the United States need not be citizens of the United States, but if not citizens of the United States they shall be domiciled in the place where the principal resides.

When the principal resides in a foreign country and it is impracticable to obtain citizens and residents of the United States as sureties, or a duly qualified corporate surety, other sureties may be accepted, provided their sufficiency as such is certified by a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States.

A firm, as such, will not be accepted as surety, nor a partner for co-partners.

When approved corporate surety or responsible individual sureties cannot be obtained, the Secretary of the Treasury will give consideration to the acceptance of other security.

17. Sufficiency of sureties. The sufficiency of individual sureties must be certified by one of the following-named officers: An executive officer of an incorporated bank or trust company, or manager of a branch thereof, over his official designation and seal of the bank or trust company; postmaster; judge or clerk of court; collector or deputy collector of internal revenue; collector or deputy collector of customs; United States commissioner; United States district attorney; assistant United States district attorney; United States marshal; notary public; justice of the peace; a commissioned officer of the Army, Navy or Marine Corps, or Coast Guard for sureties in the military, naval or coast guard service, respectively; an Army reserve officer in command at Civilian Conservation camps for sureties in the Civilian Conservation Corps; or a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States in case of sureties resident in foreign countries. This certificate must be made by a disinterested person.

Affidavits as to the financial qualifications of individual sureties may be required when deemed advisable.

18. This circular supersedes Treasury Department Circular No. 327,[1] dated October 16, 1937, and subsequent amendments thereto, and all previous regulations governing the issuance of duplicate checks. The Secretary of the Treasury may withdraw or amend at any time or from time to time any or all of the foregoing rules and regulations.

The amount of the offering is $250,000,000, or thereabouts.

II. DESCRIPTION OF NOTES

1. The notes will be dated November 10, 1939, and will bear interest from that date at the rate of 1 percent per annum, payable on a semiannual basis on January 1 and July 1 in each year until the principal amount becomes payable. They will mature July 1, 1942, and will not be subject to call for redemption prior to maturity.

2. The notes will be issued under authority of an act of Congress (known as "Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act") approved January 22, 1932, as amended and supplemented, which provides that the notes shall be fully and unconditionally guaranteed both as to interest and principal by the United States and such guaranty shall be expressed on the face thereof; and that they shall be exempt both as to principal and interest from all taxation (except surtaxes, estate, inheritance, and gift taxes) now or hereafter imposed by the United States, by any Territory, dependency, or possession thereof, or by any State, county, municipality, or local taxing authority. These notes shall be lawful investments, and may be accepted as security, for all fiduciary, trust, and public funds the investment or deposit of which shall be under the authority or control of the United States or any officer or officers thereof.

3. The authorizing act further provides that in the event the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall be unable to pay upon demand, when due, the principal of or interest on notes issued by it, the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay the amount thereof, which is authorized to be appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and thereupon to the extent of the amounts so paid the Secretary of the Treasury shall succeed to all the rights of the holders of such notes.

4. Bearer notes with interest coupons attached will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000. The notes will not be issued in registered form.

III. SUBSCRIPTION AND ALLOTMENT

1. Subscriptions will be received at the Federal Reserve banks and branches and at the Treasury Department, Washington. Banking institutions generally may submit subscriptions for account of customers, but only the Federal Reserve banks and the Treasury Department are authorized to act as official agencies. Others than banking institutions will not be permitted to enter subscriptions except for their own account. Subscriptions from banks and trust companies for their own account will be received without deposit but will be restricted in each case to an amount not exceeding one-half of the combined capital and surplus of the subscribing bank or trust company. Subscriptions from all others must be accompanied by payment of 10 percent of the amount of notes applied for. The Secretary of the Treasury reserves the right to close the books as to any or all subscriptions or classes of subscriptions at any time without notice.

2. The Secretary of the Treasury reserves the right to reject any subscription, in whole or in part, to allot less than the amount of notes applied for, to make allotments in full upon applications for smaller amounts and to make reduced allotments upon, or to reject, applications for larger amounts, or to adopt any or all of said methods or such other methods of allotment and classification of allotments as shall be deemed by him to be in the public interest; and his action in any or all of these respects shall be final. Allotment notices will be sent out promptly upon allotment, and the basis of the allotment will be publicly announced.

IV. PAYMENT

1. Payment at par and accrued interest, if any, for notes allotted hereunder must be made or completed on or before November 10, 1939, or on later allotment. In every case where payment is not so completed, the payment with application up to 10 percent of the amount of notes applied for shall, upon declaration made by the Secretary of the Treasury in his discretion, be forfeited to the United States.

V. GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. As fiscal agents of the United States, Federal Reserve banks are authorized and requested to receive subscriptions, to make allotments on the basis and up to the amounts indicated by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Federal Reserve banks of the respective districts, to issue allotment notices, to receive payment for notes allotted, to make delivery of notes on full-paid subscriptions allotted, and they may issue interim receipts pending delivery of the definitive notes.

2. The Secretary of the Treasury may at any time, or from time to time, prescribe supplemental or amendatory rules and regulations governing the offering, which will be communicated promptly to the Federal Reserve banks.

No. 1733, of March 3, 1913, and the President's Reorganization Plan No. II, promulgated May 9, 1939, pursuant to the provisions of the Reorganization Act of 1939, approved April 3, 1939 (Public, No. 19—76th Congress), and otherwise, the following regulations are hereby prescribed, effective immediately, for the administration of the Aleutian Islands Reservation, Alaska, hereinafter referred to as the "reservation":

Regulation 1

§ 30.1 Regulations for the Aleutian Islands Reservation, Alaska—(a) Protection of animals and birds and entry upon the reservation. Entry upon any of the islands of the reservation and use thereof for purposes not inconsistent with the objects for which it was established, and not inconsistent with any outstanding permit issued hereunder, may be made, without permit, except that no person shall hunt, take, capture, kill, or wilfully disturb, at any time or in any manner, any wild animal or bird or any nest or egg of any bird within the reservation; utilize lands therein for fur farming or stock grazing; erect a building or other permanent structure on Unimak Island; own, possess, maintain, or harbor a dog on Unimak Island, or allow any dog owned, possessed, maintained, or harbored to run loose within the reservation at a distance of more than 1 mile from the center of any village therein, without a permit as herein provided from the Regional Director, Bureau of Biological Survey, Juneau, Alaska; and then with respect to the taking of game animals, land fur-bearing animals, and birds only in accordance with the Alaska Game Law of January 13, 1925, as amended: Provided, That no sheep or other livestock shall be introduced within the reservation under a grazing permit unless such stock is free of external parasites, including lice, scab mites, true ticks, and sheep ticks (Melophagus ovinus): And provided further, That no permit will be granted to engage in stock raising or fur farming to an alien individual or to a corporation or company more than 50 percent of which is owned by an alien or aliens.

Regulation 2

(b) Permits. Subject to existing law and to such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, revocable permits may be granted by said regional director when in his opinion the operations thereunder will not endanger the object for which the reservation was established, for such duration and subject to such limitations and conditions as he may prescribe, to take or capture wild animals or birds, or to utilize lands within the reservation for fur farming or stock grazing, or to erect a building or other permanent structure on Unimak Island, or to own or possess a dog on said island.

Regulation 3

(c) Exemption. No permit will be required of natives resident within the reservation to take or capture game animals, game birds, or land fur-bearing animals in the reservation in accordance with the Alaska Game Law, except that such natives other than the permittee may not take such animals or birds on islands held by any person under valid permit for fur farming, or except under permit on Unimak Island; and nothing herein shall be deemed to prevent a permittee who is raising sheep within the reservation from using dogs for herding, or a person who is legally on the reservation from using dogs as pack animals or for pulling sleds; but no person shall own, possess, maintain, or harbor a dog for any purpose on Unimak Island except under permit as herein provided.

Regulation 4

(d) Applications for permits; fees. Application for permits should be addressed to the Regional Director, Bureau of Biological Survey, Juneau, Alaska, and should contain the name (legibly written or printed), the post-office address, and the citizenship of the applicant, together with references as to his character, reliability, and resources; and if applicant is a corporation or company, the home address and the place and date of incorporation or organization, together with the names and addresses of its principal officers, and a sworn statement by a responsible officer of the percentage of alien ownership; and

If wild animals or birds are to be taken, the number of each species desired and whether for scientific, propagation, exhibition, or other purposes; or,

If it is desired to possess or maintain a dog or dogs on Unimak Island, the number, sex, name, and distinguishing characters or marks, if any, of each and the use to be made of such animal or animals; or,

If it is desired to construct a building, shed, or other structure on Unimak Island, information regarding the nature of the operations to be conducted; or,

If it is desired to use or occupy any island or part thereof, within the reservation for fur farming or livestock grazing, the name of the island, its location by approximate latitude and longitude, a description of its character, whether there are any native or aboriginal improvements on the island, or part thereof, applied for and, if so, to whom they belong and when last used; and the applicant should include also any information he has concerning the suitability of the island, or part thereof, for the purpose intended, stating his source of information regarding it and whether he has personally examined it, and should give the number of animals he proposes to place thereon and the date he expects or is prepared to begin operations; and,

Any other details or information necessary to give a clear understanding of the privileges the applicant desires to obtain.

For each permit to use an island in the reservation for fur-farming purposes, a fee of $25 per annum is prescribed, plus a fee of $1 for each fox pelt removed from the island; and within the discretion of the regional director, fees commensurate with the value of the concession will be charged for stock grazing on any island in the reservation, or for trapping, use, or occupancy of areas on Unimak Island, plus the fee of $1 for each fox pelt removed from Unimak Island.

All skins of foxes of any kind taken on or within the reservation shall be sealed with a metal seal of a type to be prescribed by the Chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey, which seal shall be attached to each skin by the refuge manager or the regional director before such pelt may be sold, transported, or removed from the reservation, or exported by any means from the Territory. No person shall detach any such seal from an Aleutian Island fox skin within the Territory of Alaska, and no seal shall be reused to authenticate an Aleutian Island fox skin. Any fox skin sold, transported, or removed from the reservation without being properly sealed as herein prescribed shall be seized by any officer or agent of the Federal Government or of the Alaska Game Commission authorized to enforce the provisions of the Alaska Game Law, the Lacey Act regulating interstate commerce in wild animals and birds, or parts thereof, or the laws and regulations governing this reservation or national wildlife refuges, and shall be forfeited under applicable laws and procedure.

(e) Remittance of fees. Any fees accruing to the Department by virtue of uses under these regulations or from outstanding permits under previous regulations affecting the reservation shall be remitted to the Regional Director, Bureau of Biological Survey, Juneau, Alaska, by postal money order or bank draft made payable to said regional director. Remittance hereunder in form other than by postal money order or bank draft may be accepted by the said regional director at his discretion and upon his own responsibility, except that remittance in cash must not be accepted unless no other form of remittance is practicable.

(f) Transfer of permits. No permit issued under the authority of the Department of the Interior or of these regulations for any area, use, purpose, or privilege in or concerning the reservation, or any island, or part thereof, shall be sold, bartered, exchanged, or transferred by the permittee to another, and no agreement to do so shall be entered into by the permittee, without first furnishing the said regional director with the full details of any such proposed transaction and obtaining his consent thereto, and no such arrangement shall become effective until the old permit has been surrendered for cancelation and a new permit subject to such conditions as he shall prescribe has been issued.

Nothing in these regulations and no permit issued hereunder shall be construed to forbid or interfere with official operations within the reservation or on any island covered by a permit hereunder by employees or agents of the Bureau of Biological Survey, the Department of the Interior, or any other department, bureau, or agency of the Federal Government, and no charge, rental, fee, or compensation for such governmental activities or claim for damages shall lie or be made, or allowed any permittee hereunder, for or on account of such governmental use or activity.

(g) Revocation and renewal of permits. All outstanding permits for fur or fox farming or other use or privilege on any island, or part thereof, of the reservation are hereby canceled and revoked, effective immediately. The regional director shall renew or reissue permits affecting only such islands and areas as shall have been determined by him with the approval of the Chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey to be more suitable for fox or fur farming or other uses than for wildlife conservation purposes, and in reassigning islands for fur and fox farming and other uses, primary consideration shall be given to the welfare of native villages and communities of the Aleutian Chain. Permits involving a native or native interest shall be issued or reissued only for the benefit of the community or village of which he is a member. The community or village to which any island heretofore under permit to a native for fox or fur farming or other interest is assigned shall make an equitable adjustment with such former permit holder for the stock, buildings, or improvements privately owned by such native and former permittee and taken over by said village or community; or such former permittee may make private sale of such private property, but no value shall be attached to his former status as a permittee either in such private sale or when such property is taken over by the village or community to which the island is assigned. In case of failure of a former permittee and the native village or community to which the island is assigned to arrive at a mutually satisfactory agreement on the value of such private property, the matter shall be referred to the regional director for decision. Any sale or agreement involving the transfer of fur animals, stock, improvements, or private property on or in connection with any island formerly under permit to an individual or organization other than a native or native village or community that has been turned over and reassigned to a native village or community shall be submitted to the regional director and shall be approved by him only after he has fully satisfied himself that the terms and conditions of such agreement or sale are not to the disadvantage of the native village and are not beyond its ability to fulfill.

Regulation 8

(h) Cancelation of permits. Any and every outstanding permit affecting the reservation or any permit issued or reissued hereunder is subject at all times to discretionary revocation and termination by the Secretary of the Interior.

The regional director may cancel any outstanding permit issued by, or under authority of, this Department for any use or privilege concerning the reservation upon the request of, or under mutual agreement with, the permittee; for failure of the permittee to report as required by the permit; for failure to stock an island under permit with the number of foxes or other animals as required by and within the terms of the permit; for abandonment of the area, purpose, use, or privilege covered by such permit; for the molesting by the permittee of native burying grounds or improvements or interfering with natives cultivating accustomed lands; or for any other good and sufficient reason.

An appeal may be taken from any administrative action or decision of the regional director upon filing with him a written request for reconsideration thereof or notice of appeal. The decision of said officer shall be final unless appeal is taken therefrom within 60 days. The decision of the regional director upon such an appeal shall be reviewed by the Chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey, and his decision reviewed by the Secretary of the Interior. In cases where delay would be prejudicial, the Secretary of the Interior will consider a direct appeal from any action of the regional director.

Unless the written notice of appeal contains an acceptable reason for allowing a longer time for the preparation of the case, the appellant shall file immediately a statement or brief setting forth in detail the particulars in which the action or decision from which appeal is taken is contrary to, or in conflict with, the law, the regulations of the Secretary of the Interior, or the determined facts. Upon receipt of such statement or brief, the regional director shall prepare a statement or brief reviewing the case and presenting the facts and considerations upon which his action or decision is based. The two statements or briefs, together with all papers comprising the record in the case, shall then be transmitted to the Chief, Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington, D. C., who will thereupon review the case and with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior advise both the appellant and the subordinate officer of the decision.

(i) Removal of property. Upon the termination of any permit affecting the reservation by expiration or by forfeiture or cancelation thereof, pursuant to sections 30.1g and 30.1h (regulations 7 and 8), in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, if all fees due the Federal Government have been paid, the permittee may, within 90 days, remove all property, including foxes or fur-bearing animals, belonging to him, together with any buildings or improvements of any kind that may have been erected by him, provided that the regional director may, in his discretion, allow additional time necessary to complete any removal operation; but if not removed within 90 days or within the additional period specified by the regional director, such animals, buildings, and/or improvements shall become the property of the United States.

The regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture for the Aleutian Islands Reservation, Alaska, promulgated October 31, 1930 (S. R. A.—B. S. 74) are hereby revoked, effective immediately.

Approved October 20, 1939.

EXECUTIVE ORDER

AMENDMENT OF PARAGRAPH 4, SUBDIVISION IV, SCHEDULE B OF THE CIVIL SERVICE RULES

By virtue of and pursuant to the authority vested in me by paragraph Eighth, subdivision SECOND, section 2 of the Civil Service Act (22 Stat. 403, 404), it is ordered that paragraph 4, Subdivision IV, Schedule B of the Civil Service Rules be, and it is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"4. Classified positions in the field service of the War Department when filled by the promotion of unclassified laborers appointed under the Labor Regulations, subject to the approval of the Commission."

This Order is recommended by the Civil Service Commission in view of the agreement by the War Department that hereafter unclassified laborer positions in the field service of the War Department at places where Labor Regulations are in effect will be filled through appointment from appropriate classified registers as provided in section 3 of Civil Service Rule II. The procedure will permit unskilled laborers having a status under the Labor Regulations to advance upon noncompetitive examination to classified positions, but will not accord to such promoted employees a classified status nor render them eligible for transfer to classified positions in other branches of the Federal service.

PART 202—MATERNAL AND CHILD HEALTH SERVICES

§ 202.1 Allotments. The Secretary shall allot funds to the States for maternal and child health services pursuant to subsections (a) and (b) of section 502 of the Act. Allotments from Fund MCH–A shall be available for payment when and to the extent that equal sums are provided (matched) by the States. Allotments from Fund MCH–B shall be made upon the basis of the financial need of each State for assistance in carrying out its approved plan for such services, as determined by the Secretary, and shall not be required to be matched by the States. (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302; Sec. 502, 49 Stat. 629, as amended by Sec. 502, 53 Stat. 1380, 42 U.S.C. 702; Sec. 504, 49 Stat. 630, 42 U.S.C. 704)

§ 202.2 Periods allotments remain available. The unpaid balance of an allotment to a State from Fund MCH–A in the Federal Treasury at the end of the fiscal year shall be available for payment to the State until the end of the second succeeding fiscal year. The amount of funds available to a State as an adjustment of prior expenditures, described in Sec. 202.11, shall be taken into consideration in determining the amount of an allotment to such State from Fund MCH–B. (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302; Sec. 502, 49 Stat. 629, as amended by Sec. 502, 53 Stat. 1380, 42 U.S.C. 702)

The plan shall include a budget, prepared on official forms, which shall show the source or sources of all funds to be expended under the plan, and the items, in detail, for which such expenditures are to be made. No plan or budget may be amended without the approval of the Chief of the Bureau. (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302; Sec. 503, 49 Stat. 630, as amended by Sec. 503, 53 Stat. 1380, 42 U.S.C. 703)

But this shall not apply to funds provided by private agencies or institutions whose facilities are to be used in carrying out the State plan under arrangements involving compensation for such use from Federal, State, or other funds brought within the plan. Private funds shall be placed on deposit in accordance with the State law, but if there is no State law applicable to this procedure, the funds shall be deposited with the State treasurer, the treasurer of a political subdivision, or in a private depository, in a special account to the credit of the State health agency. The amount to be certified shall be reduced or increased, as the case may be, by the extent to which the Secretary finds it necessary to make adjustment to equalize expenditures, in a prior quarter or quarters, of funds paid to the State by the Federal Government from the allotment from Fund MCH–A, and expenditures of State and other funds used for matching purposes.

(a) The Secretary shall certify funds for payment to a State from its allotment from Fund MCH–B in accordance with its approved plan and quarterly estimates of expenditures. (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302; Sec. 504, 49 Stat. 630, 42 U.S.C. 704)

State laws and regulations governing the custody and disbursement of State and other funds used for matching shall control the custody and disbursement of funds paid by the Federal Government to the State in accordance with its approved plan, subject to such amplification or modification as the Chief of the Bureau may find to be necessary under Federal laws, regulations, orders, and decisions. (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302; Sec. 501, 49 Stat. 629, as amended by Sec. 501, 53 Stat. 1380, 42 U.S.C. 701; Sec. 503, 49 Stat. 630, as amended by Sec. 503, 53 Stat. 1380, 42 U.S.C. 703)

§ 202.11 Quarterly financial reports; adjustments. Financial reports on official forms shall be submitted to the Bureau at the end of each quarter. The Bureau shall determine the amounts of adjustments necessary to equalize expenditures of funds paid to the State by the Federal Government from Fund MCH–A allotments and expenditures of State and other matching funds, and shall notify the State of the amounts of such adjustments. Adjustment of the amounts to be certified for payment to the State each quarter from its allotments for maternal and child health services shall be made in accordance with such determinations and notifications, and after taking into consideration any overpayment or underpayment to the State in prior quarters. (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302; Sec. 503, 49 Stat. 630, as amended by Sec. 503, 53 Stat. 1380, 42 U.S.C. 703; Sec. 504, 49 Stat. 630, 42 U.S.C. 704)

§ 202.12 Disposition of balances of funds paid to the State. A State may retain funds paid to it in accordance with its approved plan not expended or obligated upon the termination of such plan. It may charge such funds as a prepayment against payments to it authorized in accordance with its approved plan for an ensuing period. In the event no new plan is submitted for approval within sixty days after the termination of its prior plan, the balance of unexpended or unobligated funds paid to the State in accordance with that plan shall be returned to the Treasury of the United States through the Bureau. (Sec. 1102, 49 Stat. 647, 42 U.S.C. 1302; Sec. 502, 49 Stat. 629, as amended by Sec. 502, 53 Stat. 1380, 42 U.S.C. 702.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DETERMINATION OF THE PREVAILING MINIMUM WAGES IN THE CAST IRON PRESSURE PIPE INDUSTRY

NOTICE OF HEARING

The Public Contracts Board will hold a hearing in Room 3229, Department of Labor Building, Washington, D. C., at 10 a. m. on Friday, November 10, 1939, to take testimony upon which findings of fact will be made to assist the Secretary of Labor in determining, pursuant to Section 1 (b) of the Public Contracts Act (49 Stat. 2036; 41 U.S.C. Sup. III 35) the prevailing minimum wages in the Cast Iron Pressure Pipe Industry. The Cast Iron Pressure Pipe Industry is that industry which manufactures cast iron pressure pipe and fittings for such pipe, excluding separate couplings. The term fittings includes such products as Y's, T's, reducers and increasers, sleeves, curves, crosses, plugs, offsets, blowoff branches and manhole caps for such branches (manhole covers which are not subject to pressure are not considered to be part of the industry). Specifically excluded are malleable fittings, and separate couplings consisting essentially of a band of iron or steel (not cast) which serve to join plain end pipe.

At the hearing an opportunity to be heard, either in person or by duly appointed representatives will be given to persons engaged in the above-named industry, either as employers or as employees, to groups of such persons, and to others within the discretion of the Board. Briefs or telegraphic communications may be filed, but they should be received by the Board on or before the hearing date. Employers appearing in person, or by representatives, or presenting briefs, should furnish the Board with the following essential data:

(1) Name of firm.
(2) Plant address.
(3) Total number of employees in plant.
(4) Number of male employees.
(5) Number of female employees.
(6) Classification of employees by occupations, including number engaged in each operation.

(7) Hourly wages in each operation with designation of applicable time period.

(8) If paid on piece work basis, weekly earnings in each class of employees.

(9) Hours worked per week.

This outline of suggested data is not meant to exclude the submission of any other pertinent information which an employer may desire to submit.

Employees appearing at the hearing, either in person or by their representatives, or submitting briefs, should acquaint the Board with facts as to the wages now being paid in the industry.

Dated, October 30, 1939.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

DIVISION OF MARKETING AND MARKETING AGREEMENTS

ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE TERMINATING CERTAIN PROVISIONS OF ORDER NO. 27 REGULATING THE HANDLING OF MILK IN THE NEW YORK METROPOLITAN MARKETING AREA

Whereas, section 6 of article VII, paragraphs 1 and 2 of Order No. 27[1] regulating the handling of milk in the New York Metropolitan Marketing Area provides that:

The market administrator shall pay out of the producer settlement fund to any handler immediately after audit of claim for such payment made on forms supplied by the market administrator:

1. With respect to milk received from producers at a plant operated by such handler equipped only for the receiving and shipping of milk to the marketing area, which was, during any month except November or December, moved to a plant where it was utilized in Classes II-A, II-B, III-A, III-B, III-C, III-D, or, during the month of October, IV-A, and from which, if operated by such handler, no Class I milk was shipped to the marketing area during such month, 23 cents per hundredweight of milk so moved, plus 4 cents per hundredweight for the first five miles or fraction thereof, plus ¼ cent per hundredweight per mile for the next 20 miles, and plus 1/10th of 1 cent per hundredweight per additional mile, of the shortest highway distance between the two plants; and

2. Thirty cents per hundredweight of Class I milk sold during the months of November and December in the marketing area which was received from producers at a plant which is equipped for condensing or drying milk and from which, during the months of May and June preceding, in terms of equivalent of milk received at such plant, no milk in excess of 10 percent and no cream in excess of 50 percent was shipped to the marketing area; and

Whereas, pursuant to the provisions of section 8c (16) (A) of Public Act No. 10, 73d Congress, as amended and as reenacted and amended by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, the Secretary finds that the exception from the provisions of paragraph 1 of section 6 of article VII, as set forth in the phrase "except during November or December", and the provisions of paragraph 2 of section 6 of article VII do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act:

Now, therefore, H. A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture of the United States of America, pursuant to the powers conferred upon him by said act and said Order No. 27, hereby terminates the exception from the provisions of paragraph 1 of section 6 of article VII of said Order No. 27 by deleting therefrom the phrase "except during November or December" and hereby terminates the provisions of paragraph 2 of section 6 of article VII of said order.

This termination shall be effective as of 11:59 p. m., e. s. t., October 31, 1939.

In witness whereof, H. A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, has executed this order in duplicate and has hereunto set his hand and caused the official seal of the Department of Agriculture to be affixed hereto in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, this 1st day of November 1939.

CIVILIAN CONSERVATION CORPS

PART 203—ENROLLMENT, DISCHARGE, HOSPITALIZATION, DEATH AND BURIAL OF ENROLLEES[1]

§ 203.7 Enrollment

* * * * *

(c) Action in case of fraudulent and erroneous enrollment. (1) Upon discovering that a former enrollee who previously had received an administrative, a dishonorable, or an honorable discharge with the notation "Not considered worthy of reenrollment" has been reselected and enrolled, the company commander will immediately discharge the enrollee administratively for "erroneous enrollment."

(2) Except in the case of reselection and enrollment as provided in subparagraph (1) above, it will be the duty of the company commander upon discovering that an enrollee has become a member of the Civilian Conservation Corps through error or through falsification of qualifications for selection to report the facts to the corps area commander, who will report them to the appropriate State selecting agency whose agents certified the individual for enrollment.

(3) When the report of the State selecting agency reveals that the enrollee, as an applicant, did not falsify or conceal information affecting his eligibility for selection and enrollment but was selected through error, the recommendation of the State selecting agency will be considered in making disposition of the case. In cases which come under the provisions of this subparagraph, discharge is not mandatory except when—

(i) Continued service in the Civilian Conservation Corps is in violation of legal provisions governing citizenship, age, marital status, and maximum service of junior enrollees. (See par. (a) (2), section 203.3.)

(ii) An enrollee has been convicted by a civil or a military court of an offense which may be punished by death or imprisonment for a term exceeding one year.

(iii) An enrollee is on probation or parole at the time of the discovery of the error.

(iv) Enrollees who are members of the National Guard or civil law enforcement officers refuse to sever their connections immediately with the National Guard or civil law enforcement authority.

In all other cases, after considering the recommendation received from the State selecting agency, corps area commanders will determine the final disposition of each case, and such discharges as are awarded will be honorable discharges for "erroneous enrollment."

(4) When the report of the State selecting agency reveals that the enrollee, as an applicant, actively and knowingly falsified or concealed information affecting his eligibility for selection and enrollment (see par. (a) (2), section 203.3), the enrollee will be administratively discharged for "fraudulent enrollment."

(5) Except in the case of those listed in paragraphs (a) (2) and (b), section 203.3, persons discharged under the provisions of (1), (3), and (4) above will be paid full accumulated pay and allowances to date of discharge and provided with the usual subsistence allowance and transportation. See paragraph (c), section 203.18.

(6) Those listed in paragraphs (a) (2) and (b), section 203.3 and discharged under the provisions of (3) and (4) above will not be paid for any period subsequent to the last payment made to them prior to the discovery of the error or fraud, but will be provided with the usual subsistence allowance and transportation. See paragraph (c), section 203.18. (50 Stat. 319) [Par. 25c, C. C. C. Regs., W. D., December 1, 1937; as amended by C 40, Oct. 28, 1939]

It appearing to the Commission that:

(a) In Docket No. G-114, on November 28, 1938, the Public Service Commission of the State of New York, a State commission within the meaning of the Natural Gas Act, filed with the Commission a formal complaint, alleging that the price charged by the New York State Natural Gas Corporation to the Central New York Power Corporation for natural gas for resale is unjust and unreasonable; in its answer to said formal complaint, filed with the Commission on December 28, 1938, the New York State Natural Gas Corporation denies that the price charged the Central New York Power Corporation for natural gas for resale is unjust or unreasonable;

(c) On March 17, 1939, the Commission instituted an investigation of the New York State Natural Gas Corporation for the purpose of enabling the Commission (1) to determine with respect to said company, whether, in connection with any transportation or sale of natural gas subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, any rates, charges, or classifications demanded, observed, charged or collected, or any rules, regulations, practices or contracts affecting such rates, charges, or classifications, are unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory, or preferential; and (2) if the Commission shall find that any such rates, charges, classifications, rules, regulations, practices, or contracts are unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory, or preferential, to determine and fix by appropriate order or orders just, reasonable and nondiscriminatory rates, charges, classifications, rules, regulations, practices, or contracts to be thereafter observed and in force;

IN THE MATTER OF COLUMBIAN CARBON COMPANY

ORDER FIXING DATE OF HEARING AND SUSPENDING RATE SCHEDULE

Commissioners: Clyde L. Seavey, Chairman; Claude L. Draper, Basil Manly, John W. Scott, Leland Olds.

OCTOBER 31, 1939.

It appearing to the Commission that:

(a) On October 17, 1938, the Columbian Carbon Company filed with the Federal Power Commission its agreement, dated October 17, 1935, with the United Fuel Gas Company, designated in the files of the Commission as Columbian Carbon Company Rate Schedule F.P.C. No. 12, providing for the sale of all natural gas produced by the Columbian Carbon Company in the Chapmanville District of Logan County, West Virginia, to the United Fuel Gas Company for resale;

(b) Said agreement of October 17, 1935, provides for an increase in the rates or charges to be paid by the United Fuel Gas Company, which proposed increase is to take effect as of November 1, 1939;

(c) On September 20, 1939, the Columbian Carbon Company filed with the Commission a document, dated September 19, 1939, designated in the files of the Commission as Supplement No. 1 to Columbian Carbon Company Rate Schedule F.P.C. No. 12, providing that in accordance with the terms of said agreement designated as Columbian Carbon Company Rate Schedule F.P.C. No. 12, increased rates or charges for natural gas sold to the United Fuel Gas Company would take effect on November 1, 1939;

The Commission finds that:

It is necessary, desirable and in the public interest that the Commission enter upon a hearing concerning the lawfulness of the proposed increased rates or charges and that said proposed increased rates or charges be suspended pending such hearing and the decision thereon, but not for a longer period than five months beyond November 1, 1939;

The Commission, upon its own motion, orders that:

C., concerning the lawfulness of the rates or charges contained in said Columbian Carbon Company Rate Schedule F.P.C. No. 12, and referred to in said Supplement No. 1 thereto, which are proposed to be made effective on November 1, 1939;

(B) Pending such hearing, the schedule of increased rates or charges for the sale of natural gas for resale for ultimate domestic or commercial consumption contained in said Columbian Carbon Company Rate Schedule F.P.C. No. 12, and referred to in said Supplement No. 1, which is proposed to be made effective on November 1, 1939, be and the same is hereby suspended for a period of five months beyond November 1, 1939, unless the Commission shall hereafter otherwise order;

(C) During the said period of suspension the rates or charges now being collected and received by the Columbian Carbon Company from the United Fuel Gas Company, as provided in the said Columbian Carbon Company Rate Schedule F.P.C. No. 12, shall remain and continue in full force and effect;

(D) This order does not suspend or otherwise effect the rates to be collected and received for natural gas sold to the United Fuel Gas Company for resale for ultimate industrial consumption only;

(E) At such hearing, the burden of proof to show that the proposed increased rates or charges are just and reasonable shall be upon the Columbian Carbon Company.

§ 53.41 Curriculum changes. No change shall be made in any approved curriculum prior to approval of the change by the Authority. Unless the school is notified to the contrary within 60 days after submission of the proposed change to the Authority, such change will be deemed to have been approved.

On such day the Commission on or before November 10, 1939.

The matter concerned herewith is in regard to the proposed employment by Clarence A. Southerland and Jay Samuel Hartt, Trustees of the Estate of Midland Utilities Company, a registered holding company, of Day & Zimmermann, Inc. for the purpose of preparing, as requested by applicants, findings and reports, formulating and submitting, as applicants may direct, and as witnesses at the hearings on the amended claims filed by applicants against the Estate of Midland United Company, expert opinion as to the value of certain public utility property and related matters based on said findings and reports, in connection with the anticipated hearing with respect to the claims asserted by the applicants against the Estate of Midland United Company in the aggregate amount of approximately $80,000,000.

It is stated that Day & Zimmermann, Inc. had in prior years been employed to do work in connection with many matters involving transactions between Midland United Company and Midland Utilities Company, some of which transactions are covered by several of the amended proofs of claim filed by applicants against the Estate of Midland United Company. Consequently, it is believed these engineers have acquired a knowledge of facts and circumstances which will be available for the work now desired by applicants to be done by them. It is stated that the maximum charges to be made by Day & Zimmermann, Inc. in connection with such employment will be $6,000 plus $100 per day for each principal of its organization for testimony presented at hearings.

By the Commission.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

CONDITION OF THE APPORTIONMENT AT CLOSE OF BUSINESS TUESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1939

Important. Although the apportioned classified civil service is by law located only in Washington, D. C., it nevertheless includes only about half of the Federal Civilian positions in the District of Columbia. Positions in local post offices, customs districts and other field services outside of the District of Columbia which are subject to the Civil Service Act are filled almost wholly by persons who are local residents of the general community in which the vacancies exist. It should be noted and understood that so long as a person occupies, by original appointment, a position in the apportioned service, the charge for his appointment continues to run against his State of original residence. Certifications of eligibles are first made from States which are in arrears:

Bituminous Coal Division.

[General Docket No. 15]

ESTABLISHMENT OF MINIMUM PRICES AND MARKETING RULES AND REGULATIONS; MINIMUM PRICES AS COORDINATED FOR DISTRICTS Nos. 1 TO 20, INCLUSIVE, 22 AND 23

AN ORDER SUBMITTING PRICE CLASSIFICATIONS PROPOSED BY DISTRICT BOARDS FOR COALS OF CODE MEMBERS NOT INCLUDED IN THE PROPOSED COORDINATED PRICE SCHEDULES ISSUED PRIOR TO THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE FINAL HEARING IN THE ABOVE MATTER ON JULY 24, 1939; SUBMITTING COORDINATED MINIMUM PRICES PROPOSED BY THE DIVISION FOR SUCH COALS; AND PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF SUCH PROPOSED PRICE CLASSIFICATIONS AND PROPOSED COORDINATED MINIMUM PRICES AT SAID FINAL HEARING

The National Bituminous Coal Commission, by Orders No. 245 of July 30, 1938, No. 247 of August 11, 1938, No. 249 and No. 251 of August 20, 1938,[1] having directed each District Board within Minimum Price Areas 1 to 7, inclusive, 9 and 10, to consider and propose to the Commission minimum prices f. o. b. transportation facilities at the mines for kinds, qualities and sizes of coal produced in each district by code members, to propose classifications of coal and price variations therefor, and to submit to the Commission a schedule of such proposed minimum prices, together with the data upon which they are computed; and

The Commission, by Order No. 270 of March 20, 1939,[2] having directed each District Board in Minimum Price Area 1 through 7, 9 and 10, to consider and propose the price classification of each kind, quality and size of coal produced by each code member within the respective district, for which coal no classification had theretofore been proposed by the District Board, and to submit to the Commission a schedule of such price classifications, together with the data upon which they were predicated; and

The District Boards having duly submitted to the Commission, pursuant to the foregoing Orders or upon their own motion, proposed minimum prices and proposed price classifications for the various kinds, qualities and sizes of coal produced in their respective districts; and

The proposed minimum prices and proposed price classifications for the various kinds, qualities and sizes of coal produced in each of the districts, as approved or modified by the Commission to serve as a basis for coordination, having been coordinated by the District Boards or by the Commission in lieu of the District Boards, and schedules of such proposed coordinated minimum prices having duly been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER and made known and available to all interested persons; and

Pursuant to Orders of the Commission duly issued in the above-entitled matter on May 1, May 4, May 8, June 23 and June 28, 1939, thereafter adopted, ratified and continued in effect as Orders of the Bituminous Coal Division of the United States Department of the Interior by Order of said Division dated July 8, 1939, and supplemented by Orders of said Division duly issued in the above-entitled matter on July 15 and July 19, 1939,[3] a final hearing in the matter of the establishment of minimum prices for the coals produced in Districts No. 1 through 20, 22 and 23 having duly been begun, which hearing is now pending in the hearing room at the Auditorium, North Interior Building, 18th and F Streets NW., Washington, D. C.; and

Additional price classifications, copies of which are annexed hereto and made a part hereof as Schedule A, having been proposed by various District Boards for coals of code members, in the terms and symbols of the price classifications contained in the schedule of minimum prices for the respective district heretofore approved by the Commission to serve as a basis for coordination, which additional proposed price classifications have not been included in the proposed coordinated minimum price schedules issued by the Commission prior to the commencement of the abovementioned final hearing; and

The Division, subject to the provisions of this Order, having proposed coordinated minimum prices for coals of code members classified in Schedule A, which proposed coordinated minimum prices are embodied in a schedule annexed hereto and made a part hereof as Schedule B and which are expressed in terms of the symbols, groups and categories of the proposed coordinated minimum prices for the respective districts as contained in the schedules issued by the Commission prior to the commencement of the said final hearing; and

The Director having determined that the proposed price classifications embodied in Schedule A, and the proposed coordinated minimum prices embodied in Schedule B, should be considered as a part of the subject matter of the said final hearing now in progress, pursuant to the Orders of the Commission and the Division hereinabove referred to;

It is ordered, That on November 20, 1939, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day or as soon thereafter as the matter may conveniently be reached, as a part of the subject matter of the hearing now in progress in the Auditorium of the North Interior Building, 18th and F Streets NW., Washington, D. C., pursuant to the Orders of May 1, May 4, May 8, June 23, June 28, July 8, July 15 and July 19, 1939, hereinabove referred to, evidence and other data will be received pertaining to the proposed price classifications and proposed coordinated minimum prices embodied in Schedules A and B, including such evidence, data and coordination agreements as any District Boards or other interested party may desire to submit to support a coordinated minimum price different from that which is proposed herein, to the end that effective minimum prices may be established for the coals for which classifications and coordinated minimum prices are proposed in Schedules A and B, as well as for coals heretofore classified; and

It is further ordered, That any code member named in Schedule A or B, any District Board, and any other interested party, may appear at the said hearing at the time and place aforesaid and be heard with respect to any pertinent item in said schedules, at such time and to such extent as the Presiding Examiner at such hearing may determine: Provided, That any interested party who desires to protest against any price classification or coordinated minimum price contained in said schedules shall file with the Director, on or before November 15, 1939, a written protest setting forth the grounds for his objection; and

It is further ordered, That, except where inconsistent with any provision in this Order, the provisions of all Orders heretofore issued by the Commission or the Division, applicable to the conduct and procedure of the aforesaid final hearing, are hereby made applicable to that portion of the hearing pertaining to the items in Schedules A and B; and

It is further ordered, That copies of Schedules A and B, copies of schedules of minimum prices heretofore approved by the Commission to serve as a basis for coordination, copies of the schedules of proposed coordinated minimum prices issued by the Commission prior to the commencement of the said final hearing, and copies of the errata sheets relating thereto and changes therein introduced or recommended in behalf of the Division at the said hearing, shall be made available by the District Boards and the Statistical Bureaus of the Division for inspection by any interested party at the offices of the District Board or Statistical Bureau. Any interested party who finds it impracticable to inspect copies of such schedules at the said offices may, within ten (10) days from the receipt of this Order, make written request upon the Division, in Washington, D. C., for a copy of the schedule desired.

Dated, October 31, 1939.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS section 1 of the joint resolution of Congress approved November 4, 1939, provides in part as follows:

"That whenever the President, or the Congress by concurrent resolution, shall find that there exists a state of war between foreign states, and that it is necessary to promote the security or preserve the peace of the United States or to protect the lives of citizens of the United States, the President shall issue a proclamation naming the states involved; and he shall, from time to time, by proclamation, name other states as and when they may become involved in the war."

AND WHEREAS it is further provided by section 13 of the said joint resolution that

"The President may, from time to time, promulgate such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this joint resolution; and he may exercise any power or authority conferred on him by this joint resolution through such officer or officers, or agency or agencies, as he shall direct."

And I do hereby enjoin upon all officers of the United States, charged with the execution of the laws thereof, the utmost diligence in preventing violations of the said joint resolution and in bringing to trial and punishment any offenders against the same.

And I do hereby delegate to the Secretary of State the power to exercise any power or authority conferred on me by the said joint resolution, as made effective by this my proclamation issued thereunder, which is not specifically delegated by Executive order to some other officer or agency of this Government, and the power to promulgate such rules and regulations not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of its provisions.

And I do hereby revoke my proclamations nos. 2349, 2354 and 2360 issued on September 5, 8, and 10, 1939, respectively,[1] in regard to the export of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to France; Germany; Poland; and the United Kingdom, India, Australia, and New Zealand; to the Union of South Africa; and to Canada.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

USE OF PORTS OR TERRITORIAL WATERS OF THE UNITED STATES BY SUBMARINES OF FOREIGN BELLIGERENT STATES

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS section 11 of the Joint Resolution approved November 4, 1939, provides:

"Whenever, during any war in which the United States is neutral, the President shall find that special restrictions placed on the use of the ports and territorial waters of the United States by the submarines or armed merchant vessels of a foreign state, will serve to maintain peace between the United States and foreign states, or to protect the commercial interests of the United States and its citizens, or to promote the security of the United States, and shall make proclamation thereof, it shall thereafter be unlawful for any such submarine or armed merchant vessel to enter a port or the territorial waters of the United States or to depart therefrom, except under such conditions and subject to such limitations as the President may prescribe. Whenever, in his judgment, the conditions which have caused him to issue his proclamation have ceased to exist, he shall revoke his proclamation and the provisions of this section shall thereupon cease to apply, except as to offenses committed prior to such revocation."

WHEREAS there exists a state of war between Germany and France; Poland; and the United Kingdom, India, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa;

WHEREAS the United States of America is neutral in such war;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, President of the United States of America, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the foregoing provision of section 11 of the Joint Resolution approved November 4, 1939, do by this proclamation find that special restrictions placed on the use of the ports and territorial waters of the United States, exclusive of the Canal Zone, by the submarines of a foreign belligerent state, both commercial submarines and submarines which are ships of war, will serve to maintain peace between the United States and foreign states, to protect the commercial interests of the United States and its citizens, and to promote the security of the United States;

AND I do further declare and proclaim that it shall hereafter be unlawful for any submarine of France; Germany; Poland; or the United Kingdom, India, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, or the Union of South Africa, to enter ports or territorial waters of the United States, exclusive of the Canal Zone, except submarines of the said belligerent states which are forced into such ports or territorial waters of the United States by force majeure; and in such cases of force majeure, only when such submarines enter ports or territorial waters of the United States while running on the surface with conning tower and superstructure above water and flying the flags of the foreign belligerent states of which they are vessels. Such submarines may depart from ports or territorial waters of the United States only while running on the surface with conning tower and superstructure above water and flying the flags of the foreign belligerent states of which they are vessels.

AND I do hereby enjoin upon all officers of the United States, charged with the execution of the laws thereof, the utmost diligence in preventing violations of the said joint resolution, and this my proclamation issued thereunder, and in bringing to trial and punishment any offenders against the same.

AND I do hereby revoke my Proclamation No. 2371 issued by me on October 18, 1939,[1] in regard to the use of ports or territorial waters of the United States by submarines of foreign belligerent states.

This proclamation shall continue in full force and effect unless and until modified, revoked or otherwise terminated, pursuant to law.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DEFINITION OF COMBAT AREAS

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS section 3 of the joint resolution of Congress approved November 4, 1939, provides as follows:

"(a) Whenever the President shall have issued a proclamation under the authority of section 1 (a), and he shall thereafter find that the protection of citizens of the United States so requires, he shall, by proclamation, define combat areas, and thereafter it shall be unlawful, except under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed, for any citizen of the United States or any American vessel to proceed into or through any such combat area. The combat areas so defined may be made to apply to surface vessels or aircraft, or both.

"(b) In case of the violation of any of the provisions of this section by any American vessel, or any owner or officer thereof, such vessel, owner, or officer shall be fined not more than $50,000 or imprisoned for not more than than five years, or both. Should the owner of such vessel be a corporation, organization, or association, each officer or director participating in the violation shall be liable to the penalty hereinabove prescribed. In case of the violation of this section by any citizen traveling as a passenger, such passenger may be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

"(c) The President may from time to time modify or extend any proclamation issued under the authority of this section, and when the conditions which shall have caused him to issue any such proclamation shall have ceased to exist he shall revoke such proclamation and the provisions of this section shall thereupon cease to apply, except as to offenses committed prior to such revocation."

AND WHEREAS it is further provided by section 13 of the said joint resolution that

"The President may, from time to time, promulgate such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this joint resolution; and he may exercise any power or authority conferred on him by this joint resolution through such officer or officers, or agency or agencies, as he shall direct."

NOW, THEREFORE, I, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, President of the United States of America, acting under and by virtue of the authority conferred on me by the said joint resolution, do hereby find that the protection of citizens of the United States requires that there be defined a combat area through or into which it shall be unlawful, except under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed, for any citizen of the United States or any American vessel, whether a surface vessel or an aircraft, to proceed.

AND I do hereby define such combat area as follows:

All the navigable waters within the limits set forth hereafter.

Beginning at the intersection of the North Coast of Spain with the meridian of 2°45' longitude west of Greenwich;

Thence due north to a point in 43°54' north latitude;

Thence due east to the mainland of Norway;

Thence along the coastline of Norway, Sweden, the Baltic Sea and dependent waters thereof, Germany, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, France and Spain to the point of beginning.

AND I do hereby enjoin upon all officers of the United States, charged with the execution of the laws thereof, the utmost diligence in preventing violations of the said joint resolution and in bringing to trial and punishment any offenders against the same.

AND I do hereby delegate to the Secretary of State the power to exercise any power or authority conferred on me by the said joint resolution as made effective by this my proclamation issued thereunder, which is not specifically delegated by Executive order to some other officer or agency of this Government, and the power to promulgate such rules and regulations not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of its provisions.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

[B.E.P.Q. 499 (Supplement No. 1)]

ADMINISTRATIVE INSTRUCTIONS TO INSPECTORS ON THE TREATMENT OF NURSERY PRODUCTS, FRUITS, VEGETABLES, AND SOIL, FOR THE JAPANESE BEETLE

Experiments recently completed with methyl bromide have shown that all living larvae of the Japanese beetle will be killed in 12-inch pots or soil balls when the treatment, dosage, and temperature required in circular B.E.P.Q. 499[1] [(1) (5) (i)], issued June 9, 1939, are applied.

The paragraph headed "Preparation of plants" on page 14 of the above circular (mimeographed) is hereby amended to read as follows:

Preparation of plants. The treatment is to be applied only to plants with bare roots or in 12-inch pots, or smaller, or in soil balls not larger than 12 inches in diameter or thicker than 12 inches when not spherical. The soil should not be puddled or saturated. With wet material, drying for a period of 12 hours is advisable before treatment. The plants should be stacked on racks or separated so that the gas can have access to both top and bottom surfaces of pots or soil balls. While not essential that the balls be completely separated from each other, they should not be jammed tightly together.

The first paragraph of Section 701.9 is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Payments computed for any farm under the provisions of section 701.8 shall be subject to all of the following deductions which are applicable to the farm: Provided, That in any case where, through error in a county or State office, the producer was officially notified in writing, prior to completion of planting, of an acreage allotment for a commodity larger than the finally approved acreage allotment for that commodity and was not notified of the finally approved acreage allotment until after planting was completed, and the county committee finds that the producer, acting solely upon information contained in the erroneous notice, planted an acreage to the commodity in excess of the finally approved acreage allotment, the producer will not be considered to have exceeded the acreage allotment for such commodity unless he planted an acreage to the commodity in excess of the allotment erroneously issued, and the deduction for excess acreage will be made only with respect to the acreage in excess of the allotment erroneously issued."

GENERAL

§ 724.211 Definitions. As used in this procedure and in all instructions, forms, and documents in connection therewith, the words and phrases defined in this section shall have the meanings herein assigned to them, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires:

(a) Burley allotment procedure for 1940 means this Form 40-Tob-12.

(b) Local committee means the county and community committee utilized under the Act. "County Committee" or "Community Committee" shall have corresponding meanings in the connection in which they are used.

(c) New farm means a farm on which tobacco was not produced in any of the five years 1935 to 1939 but on which tobacco will be produced in 1940.

(d) Old farm means a farm on which tobacco was produced in one or more of the five years 1935 to 1939.

(e) Operator means the person who, as owner, landlord, or tenant, is in charge of the supervision and the conduct of the farming operations on the entire farm.

(f) State committee means the group of persons so designated within any State to assist in the administration in the State of the Act.

(g) Tobacco means tobacco classified in Service and Regulatory Announcement Numbered 118 of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, as type 31 and known as Burley tobacco.

§ 724.212 Extent of calculations and rule of fractions. (a) All percentages shall be calculated to the nearest whole per cent. Fractions of more than fifty-hundredths of one per cent shall be rounded upward, and fractions of fifty-hundredths of one per cent or less shall be dropped. For example, 87.51% would become 88% and 87.50% would become 87%. (b) All acreage shall be calculated to the nearest one-tenth of an acre. Fractions of more than fifty-thousandths of an acre shall be rounded upward, and fifty-thousandths of an acre or less shall be dropped. For example, 1.051 would become 1.1 and 1.050 would become 1.0.

§ 724.213 Instructions and forms. The Administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture shall cause to be prepared and issued with his approval such instructions and such forms as may be necessary or expedient for carrying out this procedure.

§ 724.214 Applicability of procedure. This Burley Allotment Procedure for 1940 shall relate to, and be effective for, the establishment of farm acreage allotments for Burley tobacco for the year 1940.

ESTABLISHMENT OF ALLOTMENTS FOR OLD FARMS

§ 724.215 Acreage allotments for old farms. The farm acreage allotment for an old farm shall be that percentage of the normal acreage for the farm which the State acreage allotment is of the normal acreages for all old farms in the State; Provided, That if the acreage allotment so determined for any farm (except a farm operated, controlled, or directed by a person who also operates, controls, or directs another farm on which tobacco is produced) is less than that acreage which, with the normal yield for the farm, would produce 2,400 pounds of tobacco, then such acreage allotment shall be increased to the smaller of (a) 120 per cent thereof, or (b) that acreage which, with the normal yield for the farm, would produce 2,400 pounds of tobacco.

§ 724.216 Determination of normal acreages for an old tobacco farm. The normal acreage for an old tobacco farm shall be the adjusted 1939 normal acreage for the farm subject to such adjustment as the local committee determines is necessary to obtain a normal acreage for the farm which is fair and reasonable in relation to the adjusted 1939 normal acreage for other farms in the county which are similar with respect to the following factors: (1) The total acreage of crop land in the farm suitable for tobacco production, (2) the number of farm workers regularly engaged in the production of tobacco on the farm in 1939, (3) the acreage capacity of barns which are located on the farm and which are in usable condition and available for the curing of tobacco for the farm, (4) the customary crop rotation practices carried out on the farm, and (5) the adaptability of the soil to the growing of tobacco. Such adjustment shall be subject to the following limitations:

(a) The adjusted 1939 normal acreage for a farm shall not be adjusted upward to more than the larger of twice the adjusted 1939 normal acreage for the farm or two acres;

(b) The adjusted 1939 normal acreage for a farm shall not be adjusted downward to less than 75 per cent thereof, except that, in cases where the harvested acreage of tobacco on a farm in 1939 was more than 50 per cent above the 1939 usual acreage, the adjusted 1939 normal acreage for the farm may be adjusted downward to the usual acreage.

(c) The total upward adjustments shall not exceed the downward adjustments, except as otherwise approved by the State committee;

(d) All adjustments shall be subject to approval by the State committee.

§ 724.217 Determination of the adjusted 1939 normal acreage. The adjusted 1939 normal acreage shall be the 1939 usual acreage decreased if larger and increased if smaller than the 1939 harvested and diverted acreage by one-fifth (⅕) the difference between such acreages.

(a) Usual acreage. The 1939 usual acreage for any farm shall be computed as follows:

| Size of 1939 tobacco acreage allotment: | 1939 usual acreage |
|---|---|
| 2.1 acres or less | 125% of allotment |
| 2.2 acres or less | 2.9 acres |
| 2.3 acres or less | 3.1 acres |
| 2.4 acres or less | 3.3 acres |
| 2.5 acres or less | 3.7 acres |
| 2.6 acres and over | 150% of allotment |

(b) 1939 harvested acreage. The 1939 harvested acreage shall be the number of acres actually harvested on the farm in 1939; except, that if the local committee determines that because of flood, drought, hail, bluemold or other tobacco plant diseases, such number of acres was less than the acreage which could have been produced with maximum payments under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program, the 1939 harvested acreage shall be adjusted upward to the 1939 tobacco acreage allotment.

(c) 1939 diverted acreage. The 1939 diverted acreage shall be the number of acres obtained by subtracting the 1939 harvested acreage from the 1939 usual acreage; provided, that the diverted acreage shall not exceed the number of acres by which the 1939 tobacco acreage allotment is less than the 1939 usual acreage.

(d) Subdivided farm. If land operated as a single farm in 1939 has since been subdivided into two or more tracts, the usual acreage, harvested acreage, and diverted acreage of tobacco for the farm shall be apportioned among the tracts in the proportion which the acres of cropland suitable for the production of tobacco on each such tract bore to the total number of acres of cropland suitable for the production of tobacco on the entire farm in 1939: Provided, That if the local committee finds that such apportionment would not be equitable in view of the intended production on the farms which include such tracts, it shall make such other apportionment as it determines to be fair and equitable.

§ 724.218 Determination of normal yields. The normal yield for any farm shall be that yield which the local committee determines is normal for the farm taking into consideration (a) the yields obtained on the farm during the five years 1935-39, making due allowance for abnormal conditions of production; (b) the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco on the farm; and (c) the yields obtained on other farms in the locality which are similar with respect to such factors. The weighted average of the normal yields for all farms in each county shall not exceed the yield established for the county by the Secretary on the basis of county yields during the years 1935 to 1939, adjusted for abnormal conditions.

ESTABLISHMENT OF ALLOTMENTS FOR NEW FARMS

§ 724.219 Determination of farm acreage allotment. The acreage allotment for a new farm shall be that percentage of the normal acreage for the farm which the acreage available for allotments to all such farms in the United States is of the normal acreages of all such farms.

§ 724.220 Determination of normal acreages for new farms. The normal acreage for a new farm shall be that acreage which the local committee determines is fair and reasonable for the farm, taking into consideration each of the following factors:

(a) the average acreage of tobacco grown by the farm operator in the five years 1935 to 1939;

(b) the total acreage of crop land in the farm suitable for tobacco production;

(c) the number of farm workers on the farm available for tobacco production;

(d) the acreage capacity of barns which are located on the farm and which are in usable condition and available for the curing of tobacco for the farm;

(e) the customary crop rotation practices carried out on the farm; and

(f) the adaptability of the soil to the growing of tobacco: Provided, That the normal acreage so determined shall be subject to approval by the State committee and shall not exceed the smallest of—

(1) the acreage capacity of the barns which are located on the farm and which are in usable condition and available for the curing of tobacco for the farm;

(2) the average normal acreage for old farms in the county; or

(3) the average of

(i) the average normal acreage for old farms in the county and

(ii) the average acreage of tobacco grown by the farm operator in the five years 1935 to 1939.

§ 724.221 Determination of normal yields. The normal yield for a new farm shall be that yield-per acre which the local committee determines is reasonable for the farm as compared with yields for other farms in the locality on which the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco are similar.

§ 724.222 Time for filing application. In order to obtain an allotment for a new tobacco farm in 1940, the operator of the farm shall file an application therefor on 40-Tob-15, prior to February 1, 1940.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 6th day of November 1939. Witness my hand and seal of the Department of Agriculture.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.

Bituminous Coal Division.

[Docket No. 12]

IN THE MATTER OF PRESCRIBING DUE AND REASONABLE MAXIMUM DISCOUNTS OR PRICE ALLOWANCES BY CODE MEMBERS TO "DISTRIBUTORS" UNDER SECTION 4, PART II (h) OF THE BITUMINOUS COAL ACT OF 1937, AND ESTABLISHING RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE MAINTENANCE AND OBSERVANCE BY DISTRIBUTORS IN THE RESALE OF COAL, OF THE PRICES AND MARKETING RULES AND REGULATIONS PROVIDED BY SECTION 4 OF THE ACT

ORDER FOR AND NOTICE OF HEARING

The National Bituminous Coal Commission, pursuant to notice dated March 12, 1938, having held a hearing in the above-entitled matters, and having continued that phase of the hearing relating to the prescribing of due and reasonable maximum discounts or price allowances that may be made by code members to "distributors", to be resumed upon further notice, and

Said Commission, on March 24, 1939, June 6, 1939 and June 20, 1939 having promulgated rules and regulations for the maintenance and observance by distributors in the resale of coal, of the prices and marketing rules and regulations prescribed pursuant to Section 4 of the Act, and the Bituminous Coal Producers Board for District No. 23, having filed a petition for rehearing, reargument, and reconsideration of the order promulgating such rules and regulations relating, among other things, to the inclusion of the phrase "without physically handling such coal" in the definition of "distributors" as prescribed by the Commission:

It is ordered, That a hearing be held on November 27, 1939 at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that date at a hearing room of the Bituminous Coal Division, the Rose Room, Washington Hotel, Washington, D. C. for the purposes hereinafter stated.

It is further ordered, That W. A. Shipman or any other officer or officers of the Bituminous Coal Division designated by the Director thereof for that purpose shall preside at the hearing in such matters. The officer so designated to preside at such hearing is hereby authorized to conduct said hearing, to administer oaths and affirmations, examine witnesses, subpoena witnesses, compel their attendance, take evidence, require the production of any books, papers, correspondence, memoranda or other records deemed relevant or material to the inquiries, to continue said hearing from time to time and to prepare and submit to the Director proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions and the recommendation of an appropriate order in the premises, and to perform all other duties in connection therewith authorized by law.

Notice of such hearing is hereby given to any person who may have an interest in such proceeding. All interested persons will be afforded an opportunity to be heard at such hearing as to any matters properly within the scope of such hearing, as hereinafter set forth, provided, however, that any person desiring to offer affirmative evidence at such hearing shall file a notice to that effect with the Bituminous Coal Division on or before November 25, 1939, setting forth therein the nature of his interest and a concise statement of the matter or matters which he intends to present.

Notice is further given that at that phase of the hearing relating to the establishment of rules and regulations for the maintenance and observance by distributors in the resale of coal, of the prices and marketing rules and regulations provided for by Section 4 of the Bituminous Coal Act of 1937, the reception of evidence shall be limited to evidence in support of or in opposition to amendments to the definitions of the terms "distributor" and "carload lot", in Subsections 1 and 2, respectively, of Section I of the "Rules and Regulations for Registration of Distributors", as amended June 20, 1939, in Docket No. 12.

It is proposed that said subsections be amended to read as follows:

1. A "Distributor" is a person who purchases coal f. o. b. the mine for resale and resells it in not less than cargo or railroad carload lots, without physically handling such coal: Provided, however, That where a dock or inland storage yard is used by such person as a facility in the delivery of coal to his vendee, and such transaction is recognized by custom to be definitely wholesale in character, the fact that he physically handles such coal shall not preclude such person from being a distributor. [New proposed matter italics.]

2. "Carload lot" is a quantity of coal equivalent in tonnage to not less than the minimum carload weight specified for the loading of bituminous coal, at carload rates, in the official effective tariffs of rail carriers at the point of origin or at the rail shipping point nearest the mine where the coal is produced, and shipped to a single vendee to one unloading point; Provided, however, That on coal reshipped overland from docks or inland storage yards the minimum weight per carload lot shall be not less than the minimum carload as prescribed in effective tariffs of railroads applicable from such reshipping points: Provided, further, That when coal is delivered in such lots in vehicles of insufficient capacity to transport an entire carload-lot quantity in one transaction, the distributor's vendee must accept delivery of an entire carload-lot quantity, as if the delivery were to be made in a single vehicle, but in no event shall delivery be continued over a period longer than is actually necessary to accomplish such delivery in a continuous flow. [New proposed matter italics.]

Notice is further given that at that phase of the hearing relating to the prescribing of due and reasonable maximum discounts or price allowances that may be made by code members to distributors evidence will be received in conformity with the terms of the Orders and Notices entered herein on March 12, 1938 and March 22, 1939, except that in lieu of the proposals set forth in Schedule "A" of said Order and Notice dated March 22, 1939, the tentative proposals attached hereto as "Schedule B" will be considered.

Dated, November 3, 1939.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION.

United States of America—Before the Securities and Exchange Commission

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the City of Washington, D. C., on the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1939.

[File No. 32-150]

IN THE MATTER OF NATIONAL GAS & ELECTRIC CORPORATION, PUBLIC GAS & COKE COMPANY, NATIONAL UTILITIES COMPANY OF MICHIGAN, MICHIGAN FUEL AND LIGHT COMPANY

NOTICE OF AND ORDER FOR HEARING

Applications and declarations pursuant to sections 6 (b), 7 and 10 and Rules U-12C-1, U-12D-1 and U-12F-1 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, having been duly filed with this Commission by the above-named parties;

It is ordered, That a hearing on such matter be held on December 7, 1939, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Securities and Exchange Building, 1778 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW., Washington, D. C. On such day the hearing-room clerk in room 1102 will advise as to the room where such hearing will be held. At such hearing, if in respect of any declaration, cause shall be shown why such declaration shall become effective.

It is further ordered, That Robert P. Reeder or any other officer or officers of the Commission designated by it for that purpose shall preside at the hearings in such matter. The officer so designated to preside at any such hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of said Act and to a trial examiner under the Commission's Rules of Practice to continue or postpone said hearing from time to time.

Notice of such hearing is hereby given to such declarant or applicant and to any other person whose participation in such proceeding may be in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers. It is requested that any person desiring to be heard or to be admitted as a party to such proceeding shall file a notice to that effect with the Commission on or before December 1, 1939.

The matter concerned herewith is in regard to applications and declarations to effectuate a plan of reorganization of Public Gas & Coke Company, a registered holding company, and Michigan Fuel and Light Company, a subsidiary thereof. Under the terms of the plan the publicly held securities of these two companies would be exchanged for $808,530 principal amount of First Lien Collateral Trust Bonds of National Gas & Electric Corporation (a registered holding company), with interest thereon from February 1, 1936; not more than 139,708.63 shares of the common stock of said company; and $18,996 in cash; except that the holders of certain of said publicly held securities may elect to receive cash in place of common stock of National Gas & Electric Corporation.

The plan also provides for a merger of Michigan Fuel and Light Company and National Utilities Company of Michigan, a subsidiary of National Gas & Electric Corporation. National Utilities Company of Michigan would assume the first mortgage indebtedness of Michigan Fuel and Light Company in the principal amount of $2,402,500, as well as the unsecured indebtedness of Michigan Fuel and Light Company (all of which would then be owned by National Gas & Electric Corporation). The lien on said first mortgage bonds of Michigan Fuel and Light Company would be lifted, and $800,000 principal amount thereof would be refunded with a like principal amount of National Utilities Company of Michigan First Mortgage 5% Bonds.

The merger of National Utilities Company of Michigan and Michigan Fuel and Light Company is subject to the approval of the Public Utilities Commission of Michigan, which approval has not yet been obtained. The reorganization plan of Public Gas & Coke Company and Michigan Fuel and Light Company in its present form has not yet been approved by the United States District Court for the Western District of Michigan, the Court in which the reorganization proceedings are pending. In the event that the Public Utilities Commission of Michigan has not approved the merger, or the District Court the plan, by December 2, 1939, the hearing will be adjourned.

By the Commission.

The President's Proclamation of November 4, 1939, issued pursuant to the provisions of section 3 of the joint resolution of Congress approved November 4, 1939, provides as follows:

[Here follows, in the original document, the text of Proclamation No. 2376, which appears on Page 4495 of the "Federal Register" for Tuesday, November 7, 1939.]

By virtue of the authority vested in him by the President's proclamation quoted above to promulgate such rules and regulations not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out the provisions of section 3 of the joint resolution of Congress approved November 4, 1939, as made effective by this proclamation, the Secretary of State prescribes the following regulations:

(1) Holders of American passports issued or validated subsequent to September 4, 1939 for travel in Europe are hereby permitted to proceed, in accordance with the authorizations and subject to the restrictions noted on such passports, into and through any such combat area, whether by surface vessels or aircraft, or both, until further regulation. Holders of American passports, whether or not so issued or validated, presently in the combat areas defined by the proclamation of the President of the United States dated November 4, 1939, are hereby permitted to proceed into and through such combat areas in connection with travel in accordance with the authorizations and subject to the restrictions noted on such passports, until further regulation.

(2) The provisions of the President's Proclamation of November 4, 1939, do not apply to the current voyage of any American vessel which cleared for a foreign port in the combat area defined in that proclamation and which departed from a port or from the jurisdiction of the United States in advance of the date of the President's proclamation.

(3) The provisions of the proclamation do not apply to vessels of the United States Navy or the United States Coast Guard proceeding through or into this area under orders or in the course of duty.

(4) The provisions of the proclamation do not apply to any American vessel which, by arrangement with the appropriate authorities of the United States Government, is commissioned to proceed into or through this combat area in order to evacuate citizens of the United States who are in imminent danger to their lives as a result of combat operations incident to the present war, or to any American vessel proceeding into or through this area under charter or other direction and control of the American Red Cross and under safe conduct granted by belligerent states named in the President's proclamation of November 4, 1939.

PART 40—RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE SOLICITATION AND COLLECTION OF CONTRIBUTIONS FOR USE IN FRANCE; GERMANY; POLAND; AND THE UNITED KINGDOM, INDIA, AUSTRALIA, CANADA, NEW ZEALAND, AND THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

Section 8 of the joint resolution of Congress approved November 4, 1939 (Public Res. 54, 76th Cong., 2d sess.) provides as follows:

SEC. 8. (a) Whenever the President shall have issued a proclamation under the authority of section 1 (a), it shall thereafter be unlawful for any person within the United States to solicit or receive any contribution for or on behalf of the government of any state named in such proclamation or for or on behalf of any agent or instrumentality of any such state.

(b) Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the solicitation or collection of funds and contributions to be used for medical aid and assistance, or for food and clothing to relieve human suffering, when such solicitation or collection of funds and contributions is made on behalf of and for use by any person or organization which is not acting for or on behalf of any such government, but all such solicitations and collections of funds and contributions shall be in accordance with and subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed.

(c) Whenever any proclamation issued under the authority of section 1 (a) shall have been revoked with respect to any state the provisions of this section shall thereupon cease to apply with respect to such state, except as to offenses committed prior to such revocation.

Section 15 of the said joint resolution provides as follows:

SEC. 15. In every case of the violation of any of the provisions of this joint resolution or of any rule or regulation issued pursuant thereto where a specific penalty is not herein provided, such violator or violators, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $10,000, or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.

On November 4, 1939, the President issued a proclamation[1] in respect to France; Germany; Poland; and the United Kingdom, India, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa under the authority of section 1 of the said joint resolution, thereby making effective in respect to those countries the provisions of section 8 of the said joint resolution quoted above.

Section 13 of the said joint resolution provides as follows:

SEC. 13. The President may, from time to time, promulgate such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this joint resolution; and he may exercise any power or authority conferred on him by this joint resolution through such officer or officers, or agency or agencies, as he shall direct.

[1] 4 F.R. 4493 DI.

The President's proclamation of November 4, 1939, referred to above, issued pursuant to the provisions of section 1 of the above-mentioned joint resolution provides in part as follows:

And I do hereby delegate to the Secretary of State the power to exercise any power or authority conferred on me by the said joint resolution, as made effective by this my proclamation issued thereunder, which is not specifically delegated by Executive order to some other officer or agency of this Government, and the power to promulgate such rules and regulations not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of its provisions.

In pursuance of those provisions of the law and of the President's proclamation of November 4, 1939, referred to above, the Secretary of State promulgates the following regulations:

§ 40.1 Definition. The term "person" as used herein and in the act of November 4, 1939, includes a partnership, company, association, organization, or corporation, as well as a natural person.*

§ 40.2 Application for registration. Any person within the United States, its territories, insular possessions (including the Philippine Islands), the Canal Zone, and the District of Columbia who desires to engage in the solicitation or collection of contributions to be used for medical aid and assistance in France; Germany; Poland; or the United Kingdom, India, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa, or for food and clothing to relieve human suffering in any of those countries, and who is not acting for or on behalf of the Governments of France; Germany, Poland; or the United Kingdom, India, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa, or for any agent or instrumentality of such countries, shall register with the Secretary of State. To this end, such person shall make application in duplicate to the Secretary of State upon the form provided therefor.*

§ 40.3 Chapters or affiliates of registrants. Organizations or associations having chapters or affiliates shall list them in their application for registration and shall set forth therein the addresses of such chapters or affiliates. In case chapters or affiliates are formed after the registration of the parent organization, the parent should immediately inform the Secretary of State in order that its registration may be amended to name the new chapters or affiliates.*

§ 40.4 Notices of acceptance of registration. No person shall solicit or collect contributions without having in his possession a notice from the Secretary of State of acceptance of registration which has not been revoked; Provided, however, That nothing in this regulation shall be construed as requiring a duly authorized agent of a registrant to have in his possession a notice of acceptance of registration. Chapters or affiliates named in the parent organization's registration may, of course, operate under this registration. Notices of acceptance of registration shall not be exhibited, used, or referred to in any manner which might be construed as implying official endorsement of the persons engaged in the solicitation or collection of contributions.*

§ 40.6 Submission of forms. Persons receiving notification of acceptance of registration shall submit to the Secretary of State not later than the tenth day of every month following the receipt of such notification sworn statements, in duplicate, on the form provided therefor setting forth fully the information called for therein.*

§ 40.7 Rejection and revocation. The Secretary of State reserves the right to reject applications or to revoke registrations for failure on the part of the registrant to comply with the provisions or purposes of the law or of the regulations in this part.*

§ 40.8 Transmittal of funds. A registrant may act as an agent for the transmittal abroad of funds received by another registrant, but such funds shall not be accountable as contributions received by the transmitting registrant.*

§ 40.9 Supplemental application. Any changes in the facts set forth in the registrant's application for registration, such as change of address, of officers, or of means of distribution abroad, should be reported promptly to the Secretary of State in the form of a supplemental application, in duplicate, properly sworn to.*

§ 40.10 American National Red Cross. In view of the purposes and special status of "the American National Red Cross" as set forth in the act of Congress approved January 5, 1905, entitled "An Act to incorporate the American National Red Cross" (33 Stat. 599), and particularly in view of the fact that it is required by law to submit to the Secretary of War for audit "a full, complete, and itemized report of receipts and expenditures of whatever kind," so that the submission to the Secretary of State of reports of funds received and expended would constitute an unnecessary duplication, the American National Red Cross is not required to conform to the provisions of the regulations in this part.*

§ 40.11 Administrative control. No registration will be accepted until satisfactory evidence is presented to the Secretary of State that the applicant for registration has organized an active and responsible governing body which will serve without compensation and which will exercise a satisfactory administrative control, and that the funds collected by the registrant will be handled by a competent and trustworthy treasurer.*

§ 40.12 Methods of soliciting contributions. No registration will be accepted if the means proposed to be used to solicit or collect contributions include the employment of solicitors on commission or any other commission method of raising money; the use of the "remit or return" method of raising money by the sale of merchandise or tickets; the giving of entertainments for money-raising purposes if the estimated costs of such entertainments, including compensation, exceed 30 percent of the gross proceeds, or any other wasteful or unethical method of soliciting contributions.*

§ 40.13 Reading of regulations. No registration will be accepted until the Secretary of State has been informed in writing by a responsible officer of the applicant for registration that he has read the regulations.*

§ 40.14 Causes for revocation. The Secretary will exercise the right reserved under § 40.7 to revoke any registration upon receipt of evidence which leads him to believe that the registrant has failed to maintain such a governing body as that described under § 40.11, has failed to employ such a treasurer as that described under § 40.11, has employed any of the methods for soliciting contributions set forth under § 40.12, has employed unethical methods of publicity, or has failed to attain a reasonable degree of efficiency in the conduct of operations.*

§ 40.15 Sworn statement to be supplemented. The sworn statement to be submitted by registrants in accordance with § 40.6 shall be supplemented by such further information as the Secretary of State may deem necessary.*

§ 40.16 Valid registrations. Valid registrations under the rules and regulations governing the solicitation and collection of contributions for use in belligerent countries promulgated September 5, 9, and 11, and October 4, 1939, pursuant to section 3 of the Neutrality Act of May 1, 1937, remain valid under the regulations in this part.*

The Board shall consist of the Secretary of State, who shall be chairman and executive officer of the Board, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Commerce. Except as otherwise provided in this section, or by other law, the administration of this section is vested in the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State shall promulgate such rules and regulations with regard to the enforcement of this section as he may deem necessary to carry out its provisions. The Board shall be convened by the chairman and shall hold at least one meeting a year.

(b) Every person who engages in the business of manufacturing, exporting, or importing any arms, ammunition, or implements of war listed in a proclamation referred to in or issued under the authority of subsection (i) of this section, whether as an exporter, importer, manufacturer, or dealer, shall register with the Secretary of State his name, or business name, principal place of business, and places of business in the United States, and a list of the arms, ammunition, and implements of war which he manufactures, imports, or exports.

(c) Every person required to register under this section shall notify the Secretary of State of any change in the arms, ammunition, or implements of war which he exports, imports, or manufactures; and upon such notification the Secretary of State shall issue to such person an amended certificate of registration, free of charge, which shall remain valid until the date of expiration of the original certificate. Every person required to register under the provisions of this section shall pay a registration fee of $100. Upon receipt of the required registration fee, the Secretary of State shall issue a registration certificate valid for five years, which shall be renewable for further periods of five years upon the payment for each renewal of a fee of $100; but valid certificates of registration (including amended certificates) issued under the authority of section 2 of the joint resolution of August 31, 1935, or section 5 of the joint resolution of August 31, 1935, as amended, shall, without payment of any additional registration fee, be considered to be valid certificates of registration issued under this subsection, and shall remain valid for the same period as if this joint resolution had not been enacted.

(d) It shall be unlawful for any person to export, or attempt to export, from the United States to any other state, any arms, ammunition, or implements of war listed in a proclamation referred to in or issued under the authority of subsection (i) of this section, or to import, or attempt to import, to the United States from any other state, any of the arms, ammunition, or implements of war listed in any such proclamation, without first having submitted to the Secretary of State the name of the purchaser and the terms of sale and having obtained a license therefor.

(e) All persons required to register under this section shall maintain, subject to the inspection of the Secretary of State, or any person or persons designated by him, such permanent records of manufacture for export, importation, and exportation of arms, ammunition, and implements of war as the Secretary of State shall prescribe.

(f) Licenses shall be issued by the Secretary of State to persons who have registered as herein provided for, except in cases of export or import licenses where the export of arms, ammunition, or implements of war would be in violation of this joint resolution or any other law of the United States, or of a treaty to which the United States is a party, in which cases such licenses shall not be issued; but a valid license issued under the authority of section 2 of the joint resolution of August 31, 1935, or section 5 of the joint resolution of August 31, 1935, as amended, shall be considered to be a valid license issued under this subsection, and shall remain valid for the same period as if this joint resolution had not been enacted.

(g) No purchase of arms, ammunition, or implements of war shall be made on behalf of the United States by any officer, executive department, or independent establishment of the Government from any person who shall have failed to register under the provisions of this joint resolution.

(h) The Board shall make a report to Congress on January 3 and July 3 of each year, copies of which shall be distributed as are other reports transmitted to Congress. Such reports shall contain such information and data collected by the Board as may be considered of value in the determination of questions connected with the control of trade in arms, ammunition, and implements of war, including the name of the purchaser and the terms of sale made under any such license. The Board shall include in such reports a list of all persons required to register under the provisions of this joint resolution, and full information concerning the licenses issued hereunder, including the name of the purchaser and the terms of sale made under any such license.

FOR THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

By ----------

[SEAL]

(2) Applications for registration transmitted to the Secretary of State must be accompanied by a registration fee of $100 in the form of a money order or a certified check.

(3) Upon receipt of an application for registration and the appended certificate of registration duly filled out and accompanied by a registration fee of $100, the Secretary of State will return to the applicant, as a receipt, the certificate of registration, duly signed and sealed. This certificate of registration must be conspicuously displayed at the principal place of business of the person registered.

(4) Every person registered shall notify the Secretary of State of any change in the information set forth in his certificate of registration. If the change involves a revision of the list of arms, ammunition, and implements of war which he manufactures, exports or imports, or a change of name, such registered person shall submit, on the form described in paragraph (1) above, an application for an amended certificate of registration, including this information. Upon the receipt of a duly executed application therefor, the Secretary of State will issue to such person, free of charge, an amended certificate of registration which will remain valid until the date of the expiration of his original certificate.

(5) Manufacturers, exporters, and importers of component parts of the articles or units enumerated in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937, but not of a complete article or unit listed in that proclamation, are not required to register under the joint resolution. Aircraft wheels and aircraft propeller blades are, however, considered as constituting to such an unusual degree the main body of aircraft under-carriage units and aircraft propellers that the manufacture, export, or import of such wheels or blades alone is held to subject the manufacturer, exporter, or importer to the requirement of registration.

(6) Forgings, castings, and machined bodies for any of the arms, ammunition, or implements of war enumerated in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937, which have reached such a stage in manufacture that they are clearly identifiable as forgings, castings, or machined bodies for arms, ammunition, and implements of war, are considered as constituting arms, ammunition, and implements of war for the purposes of section 12 of the joint resolution.

(7) Club propellers, cut away models of aircraft engines and mock-ups or models of arms, ammunition, and implements of war which by reason of design or construction are incapable of being used or of being adapted for use in flight or for military or naval purposes will not be considered as arms, ammunition, or implements of war within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution.

(8) The production for experimental or scientific purposes, when such production is not followed by sale, of the appliances and substances included in category VI, or of single units of other arms, ammunition, and implements of war, is not considered as manufacture for the purposes of section 12 of the joint resolution.

(9) Persons who are not engaged in the business of exporting or importing arms, ammunition, or implements of war, but who, either for their own personal use or as forwarding agents for persons who are engaged in this business, or, in exceptional circumstances, in other capacities, may make or receive occasional shipments of such articles, will not be considered as exporters or importers of arms, ammunition, and implements of war within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution. Licenses for such shipments may be obtained in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (24) below.

(10) The provisions of these regulations shall be considered as binding in addition to, and not in lieu of, those established under the act known as the National Firearms Act (26 U. S. C. (1934) 1132–1132q incl.; Supp. IV 1132–1132b incl.), approved by the President June 26, 1934, as amended; and under the Federal Firearms Act (15 U. S. C. Supp. IV 901–909 incl.), approved by the President June 30, 1938. The National Firearms Act imposes certain taxes upon manufacturers, importers, and dealers in certain firearms and taxes upon transfers of certain firearms. The term "firearm" as used in this act includes "a shotgun or rifle having a barrel of less than eighteen inches in length, or any other weapon, except a pistol or revolver, from which a shot is discharged by an explosive if such weapon is capable of being concealed on the person, or a machine gun, and includes a muffler or silencer for any firearm whether or not such firearm is included within the foregoing definition, but does not include any rifle which is within the foregoing provisions solely by réason of the length of its barrel if the caliber of such rifle is .22 or smaller and if its barrel is sixteen inches or more in length." The Federal Firearms Act applies to manufacturers and dealers who are engaged in interstate or foreign commerce in firearms and ammunition. The term "firearm" as used in this act means "any weapon, by whatever name known, which is designed to expel a projectile or projectiles by the action of an explosive and a firearm muffler or firearm silencer, or any part or parts of such weapon," and the term "ammunition" includes "all pistol or revolver ammunition except .22-caliber rim-fire ammunition." Rules and regulations for the enforcement of these acts are prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

(11) No person not registered under section 12 of the joint resolution shall engage in the business of exporting or importing any of the arms, ammunition, or implements of war listed in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937. All persons registered shall obtain from the Secretary of State a license to cover each shipment exported or imported. Blank forms of application for license similar to those printed below will be furnished by the Secretary of State upon request.

(12) The Secretary of State will issue import licenses to all registered applicants who have duly filled out an application for license, provided that, in case the articles to be imported are firearms as enumerated in the National Firearms Act of June 26, 1934, as amended, or firearms or ammunition as enumerated in the Federal Firearms Act of June 30, 1938, both of which acts are referred to under (10) above, the importer has conformed to the pertinent regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

(13) The Secretary of State will issue export licenses to all registered applicants who have duly filled out an application for license, unless the exportation of arms, ammunition, or implements of war for which a license is applied for would be in violation of a law of the United States or of a treaty to which the United States is a party. (See parts V and VI below.)

(14) Export and import licenses are not transferable and are subject to revocation without notice, if the exportation or the importation authorized by the license becomes illegal before the shipment is made. If not revoked, licenses are valid for 1 year from the date of issuance, and shipments thereunder may be made through any port of exit or entry in the United States. The naming of the proposed port of exit under paragraph (12) of the application for export license or the proposed port of entry under paragraph (13) of the application for import license does not preclude shipment through another port if the arrangements made by the exporter or importer are altered subsequent to the issuance of the license.

(15) No alterations may be made except by the Department of State, or by collectors of customs or postmasters acting under the specific instructions of the Department of State, in export or import licenses which have been issued under the seal of the Secretary of State.

(16) Export or import licenses which have been revoked or which have expired must be returned immediately to the Secretary of State.

(17) The country designated on the application for license to export as the country of destination should, in each case, be the country of ultimate destination. If the goods to be exported are consigned to one country, with the intention that they be transhipped thence to another country, the latter country should be named as the country of destination. If the country of ultimate destination cannot be ascertained at the time the application for export license is made, the country of initial destination may be named on the application as the country of destination. In such a case, however, the facts must be clearly explained and the Secretary of State must be informed of the ultimate destination by the exporter as soon as the latter has learned the country of ultimate destination of the shipment. The Secretary of State may refuse to grant an application for an export license until he is informed of the country of ultimate destination in order that he may assure himself that the license may be legally issued.

(18) The shipper's export declaration (customs form 7525) covering arms, ammunition, or implements of war for which an export license is required must contain the same information in regard to the nature and the value of the articles to be exported as that which appears on the application for license. If the person designated on the export declaration as the actual shipper of the goods is not the person to whom the export license has been issued by the Secretary of State, the name of this shipper should appear on the export license as that of the consignor in the United States.

(19) Applications for license to export arms, ammunition, and implements of war should state, whenever possible, the type and model designation of the article to be exported in order that the Secretary of State may determine, before issuing the license, that the provisions of Part V of these regulations would not be violated by the exportation of the article in question. If an application is submitted in which the articles to be exported are inadequately designated, it will be returned to the applicant for completion in this respect.

(20) The originals of licenses for the export and the import of arms, ammunition, and implements of war must be presented to the collector of customs at the port through which the shipment authorized by the license is being made. Export licenses and export declarations covering arms, ammunition, and implements of war must be filed with the appropriate collector of customs at least 24 hours before the proposed departure of the shipment from the United States, and, in the case of a shipment by a seagoing vessel, 24 hours before the lading of the vessel.

(21) Arms, ammunition, and implements of war covered by an export license must, when exported, be packed separately from all other goods, except when the shipment is too small to make this segregation practical, in which case the exporter should list separately in the application for an export license those other articles which do not require a license but which are being included in the package.

(22) Export and import licenses for arms, ammunition, and implements of war which are shipped by parcel post must be presented to the postmaster at the post office at which the parcel is mailed or received.

(23) Articles entering or leaving a port of the United States, in transit through the territory of the United States to a foreign country will not be considered as imported or exported within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution.

(24) Persons who are registered as exporters or importers of arms, ammunition, or implements of war under section 12 of the joint resolution may make application for export or import licenses on behalf of persons who are not required to register under the joint resolution but who may, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (9) above, desire to make or receive occasional shipments of arms, ammunition, or implements of war.

(25) Arms, ammunition, and implements of war which are more than 100 years old will not be considered as arms, ammunition, or implements of war within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution. Evidence in support of exemptions claimed hereunder should be submitted to the collector of customs at the port of entry or exit, as the case may be.

(26) Rifles, carbines, revolvers, and pistols entering the United States in single units for the individual use of the person to whom consigned will not be considered as imported within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution. (This does not relieve the consignee from the obligation to comply with such of the regulations prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, under the National Firearms Act of June 26, 1934, as amended, and the Federal Firearms Act of June 30, 1938, referred to in (10) above, as may be applicable in the premises.)

(27) Arms and ammunition intended exclusively for sporting or scientific purposes or for personal protection, when entering or leaving the United States carried on the person of an individual or in his baggage, will not be considered as imported or exported within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution.

(28) The Government of the United States and its agencies are not "persons" within the meaning of that term as used in section 12 of the joint resolution and therefore no license is required for arms, ammunition, or implements of war imported or exported by them.

(29) Arms and implements of war which have been legally exported from the United States, and which are returned to the United States worn or damaged for repair and reexport, will not be considered as imported within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution. An export license must be obtained, however, before such articles are reexported. Evidence in support of exemptions claimed hereunder should be submitted to the collector of customs at the port of entry.

(30) Licenses are required under the provisions of section 12 of the joint resolution for the export or the import of those articles only which are specifically mentioned in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937. No license is required for the export or the import of the component parts of the articles or units enumerated in that proclamation, except in cases where the export or import of such parts may reasonably be considered as involving, in fact, the export or import of a substantially complete article or unit in unassembled form. Aircraft wheels and aircraft propeller blades are, however, considered as constituting to such an unusual degree the main body of aircraft undercarriage units and aircraft propellers that a license is required for the export or the import of wheels and propeller blades, even when they are shipped alone.

(31) A license is required for the export of all articles listed in subsection (5) of category I of the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937, which are intended or adapted for war purposes. The fact that such an article, when exported, is filled with a nonlethal gas or fluid having a common nonmilitary use will be considered as prima-facie evidence that the article is not intended for war purposes. No license is required for the export of articles listed under subsection (5), even if exported empty, which are adapted and intended solely for nonmilitary use. Articles listed in subsection (5) will be considered ipso facto as intended or adapted for war purposes, unless when exported they either contain a nonlethal gas or fluid or can be proven to be adapted and intended solely for a specific non-military use.

(32) The terms "propellant-powders," as used in paragraph (1) of category VII of the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937, and "potassium nitrate powders" and "sodium nitrate powders," as used in paragraph (2) of that category, apply to those powders in bulk form. They do not apply to such powders when enclosed in cartridges of types not enumerated in the proclamation, in pyrotechnics, in safety fuse, or in other similar devices. Licenses will not, therefore, be required for the export or import of such cartridges or devices, even though they may contain one of these powders.

(33) Aircraft flown or shipped from the United States for a temporary sojourn abroad, of not to exceed six months' duration, will not be considered as exported within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution when it is the intention of their owners that they shall remain under United States registry and shall be operated by a United States licensed pilot during the entire period of their sojourn abroad, and, further, when there is no intention on the part of their owners to dispose of them or of any of their essential parts listed in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937, in any foreign country. It should be noted that the United States registry of an aircraft which is sold to an alien either in the United States or abroad is cancelled automatically at the time of the sale under the Civil Air Regulations of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Should the owners, after the departure of an aircraft flown or shipped from the United States without an export license, propose to place the aircraft under foreign registry or to have it operated by a pilot not holding a United States license, or to dispose of the aircraft or any of the essential parts referred to in any foreign country, the aircraft, or the part in question, must be returned to the United States and a license obtained for its export to the country concerned. Aircraft of United States registry returning to the United States from foreign countries will not be considered as imported within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution. Aircraft of foreign registry entering the United States for a temporary sojourn or leaving the United States after such a sojourn will not be considered as imported or exported within the meaning of section 12 of the joint resolution.

(34) Aircraft flown or shipped for temporary sojourn under the provisions of paragraph (33) above shall not be so flown or shipped until customs clearance has been obtained. Evidence in support of claim for exemption from the requirement of an import or export license should be submitted to the appropriate collector of customs. Aircraft flown into the United States should be cleared through the customs authorities at the airport of entry where first landing is made or at such other airport or base where advance permission to land has been obtained from the Commissioner of Customs. In case of forced landings of aircraft arriving in the United States clearance should be obtained at the port of entry or custom house nearest to the place where such forced landing is made. Aircraft flown out of the United States should be cleared through the customs authorities at the customs port of entry nearest to the place of departure, or at the airport of departure if such airport has been designated as an airport of entry. Before an aircraft of United States registry leaves the United States for a temporary sojourn abroad, the customs authorities at the port of exit through which the aircraft is cleared should be informed of the approximate date of return of the aircraft and the port of entry through which it is proposed to return the aircraft to the United States. Persons planning to make flights outside the United States are advised, moreover, to communicate with the Civil Aeronautics Authority with regard to its requirements. The requirements set forth herein have no application to civil aircraft operated by commercial air lines on regular schedules between the United States and foreign countries under certificates of public convenience and necessity or foreign air carrier permits issued by the Civil Aeronautics Authority. The provisions of this paragraph shall be considered as binding in addition to, and not in lieu of, the customs regulations.

PART IV—RECORDS OF MANUFACTURE, EXPORT, AND IMPORT

The Secretary of State prescribes that all persons required to register under section 12 of the joint resolution approved November 4, 1939, shall maintain, subject to the inspection of the duly authorized agents of the Secretary of State or of any other enforcement agency of the Government of the United States, and distinct from all other records, special permanent records in which shall be recorded the amounts and estimated values of the arms, ammunition, and implements of war manufactured by them for export, and similar records of all arms, ammunition, and implements of war imported or exported by them. The records of articles imported shall, in addition, contain information as to the consignors of articles imported and the port of origin of each shipment. The records of articles exported shall, in addition, contain information as to the consignees and the destination of each shipment.

PART V—SPECIAL PROVISIONS IN REGARD TO MILITARY SECRETS

Title I of the Espionage Act, approved June 15, 1917, reads in part as follows:

Whoever, with intent or reason to believe that it is to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign nation, communicates, delivers, or transmits, or attempts to, or aids or induces another to, communicate, deliver, or transmit, to any foreign government, or to any faction or party or military or naval force within a foreign country, whether recognized or unrecognized by the United States, or to any representative, officer, agent, employee, subject, or citizen thereof, either directly or indirectly, any document, writing, code book, signal book, sketch, photograph, photographic negative, blue print, plan, map, model, note, instrument, appliance, or information relating to the national defense, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than twenty years . . .

The Secretary of State will not issue a license authorizing the exportation of any arms, ammunition, or implements of war considered by the Secretary of War or by the Secretary of the Navy as instruments or appliances included among the articles covered by those terms as used in this act if, in their opinion, they involve military secrets of interest to the national defense. The articles which may be so considered are articles falling within one of the following categories:

(a) Articles, the whole or any features of which have been or are being developed or manufactured by or for the War Department or the Navy Department or with the participation of either of those Departments; and

(b) Articles, the whole or any features of which have been used or are being used by the War Department or the Navy Department or which either Department has contracted to procure.

Included among articles developed by or for the War Department or the Navy Department are articles the development of which has been contracted for by either of those departments, or which have been developed in accordance with Army or Navy specifications and submitted to either department for evaluation for procurement.

Prospective exporters of articles falling within the above categories which may possibly involve military secrets of interest to the national defense, or persons desirous of transmitting abroad information concerning such articles, should communicate with the Secretary of State in advance of the proposed transaction in order that he may be in a position to ascertain for the interested person whether or not military secrets are, in fact, involved therein. The articles upon which a determination is requested should be designated clearly and specifically, the type and model designations being included. Where applicable, Army or Navy drawing numbers should be given, or detailed plans and specifications submitted.

PART VI—SPECIAL PROVISIONS IN REGARD TO EXPORTATION TO CHINA, CUBA, HONDURAS AND NICARAGUA

A joint resolution of Congress approved January 31, 1922, reads in part as follows:

* * * That whenever the President finds that in any American country, or in any country in which the United States exercises extraterritorial jurisdiction, conditions of domestic violence exist, which are or may be promoted by the use of arms or munitions of war procured from the United States, and makes proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to export, except under such limitations and exceptions as the President prescribes, any arms or munitions of war from any place in the United States to such country until otherwise ordered by the President or by Congress.

SEC. 2. Whoever exports any arms or munitions of war in violation of section 1 shall, on conviction, be punished by fine not exceeding $10,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both.

A convention between the United States of America and other American republics in regard to the duties and rights of states in the event of civil strife, signed at Habana, February 20, 1928, and ratified by the United States on May 21, 1930, reads in part as follows:

ARTICLE 1

The contracting states bind themselves to observe the following rules with regard to civil strife in another one of them:

* * * * * * *

3. To forbid the traffic in arms and war material, except when intended for the government, while the belligerency of the rebels has not been recognized, in which latter case the rules of neutrality shall be applied.

Pursuant to the authority conferred by the joint resolution of January 31, 1922, a Presidential proclamation, which is still in effect, was issued on March 4, 1922, in respect to China, as follows:

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, Section I of a Joint Resolution of Congress, entitled a "Joint Resolution To prohibit the exportation of arms or munitions of war from the United States to certain countries, and for other purposes," approved January 31, 1922, provides as follows:

"That whenever the President finds that in any American country, or in any country in which the United States exercises extraterritorial jurisdiction, conditions of domestic violence exist, which are or may be promoted by the use of arms or munitions of war procured from the United States, and makes proclamation thereof it shall be unlawful to export, except under such limitations and exceptions as the President prescribes, any arms or munitions of war from any place in the United States to such country until otherwise ordered by the President or by Congress."

And whereas, it is provided by Section II of the said Joint Resolutions that "Whoever exports any arms or munitions of war in violation of section 1 shall on conviction, be punished by fine not exceeding $10,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both."

Now, therefore, I, Warren G. Harding, President of the United States of America, acting under and by virtue of the authority conferred in me by the said Joint Resolution of Congress, do hereby declare and proclaim that I have found that there exist in China such conditions of domestic violence which are or may be promoted by the use of arms or munitions of war procured from the United States as contemplated by the said Joint Resolution; and I do hereby admonish all citizens of the United States and every person to abstain from every violation of the provisions of the Joint Resolution above set forth, hereby made applicable to China, and I do hereby warn them that all violations of such provisions will be rigorously prosecuted.

And I do hereby enjoin upon all officers of the United States, charged with the execution of the laws thereof, the utmost diligence in preventing violations of the said Joint Resolution and this my Proclamation issued thereunder, and in bringing to trial and punishment any offenders against the same.

And I do hereby delegate to the Secretary of State the Power of prescribing exceptions and limitations to the application of the said Joint Resolution of January 31, 1922, as made effective by this my Proclamation issued thereunder.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this fourth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and [SEAL] twenty-two and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-sixth.

WARREN G HARDING

By the President:

HENRY P. FLETCHER
Acting Secretary of State

Similar Presidential proclamations, which are still in effect, were issued on March 22, 1924, in respect of Honduras; on September 15, 1926, in respect of Nicaragua; and on June 29, 1934, in respect of Cuba.

In accordance with the authority conferred upon him in these proclamations, the Secretary of State will permit the exportation to China, Cuba, Honduras, and Nicaragua of the arms, ammunition, and implements of war listed in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937, only when the Department of State has been informed by the Chinese Embassy in Washington, the Cuban Embassy in Washington, the Honduran Legation in Washington, or the Nicaraguan Legation in Washington, as the case may be, that it is the desire of the government of the country into which the arms, ammunition, or implements of war are to be imported, that the exportation of the shipment be authorized.

The bringing about of notification to the Department of State through the appropriate embassy or legation that the government of an importing state desires that the exportation of a shipment be authorized is a matter with regard to which the initiative and responsibility lie with the importing government and the potential shipper.

In compliance with article II of the convention between the United States and Cuba to suppress smuggling, signed at Habana March 11, 1926, which reads in part as follows:

The High Contracting Parties agree that clearance of shipments of merchandise by water, air, or land, from any of the ports of either country to a port of entry of the other country, shall be denied when such shipment comprises articles the importation of which is prohibited or restricted in the country to which such shipment is destined, unless in this last case there has been a compliance with the requisites demanded by the laws of both countries.

and in compliance with the laws of Cuba which restrict the importation of arms, ammunition, and implements of war of all kinds by requiring an import permit for each shipment, export licenses for shipments of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to Cuba are required for the articles enumerated below in addition to the articles enumerated in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937:

(1) Arms and small arms using ammunition of caliber .22 or less, other than those classed as toys.

(2) Spare parts of arms and small arms of all kinds and calibers, other than those classed as toys, and of guns and machine guns.

(3) Ammunition for the arms and small arms under (1) above.

(4) Sabers, swords, and military machetes with cross-guard hilts.

(5) Explosives as follows: explosive powders of all kinds for all purposes; nitrocellulose having a nitrogen content of 12 percent or less; diphenylamine; dynamite of all kinds; nitroglycerine; alkaline nitrates (ammonium, potassium, and sodium nitrate); nitric acid; nitrobenzene (essence or oil of mirbane); sulphur; sulphuric acid; chlorate of potash; and acetones.

(6) Tear gas ($C_6H_5COCH_2Cl$) and other similar nontoxic gases and apparatus designed for the storage or the projection of such gases.

The Secretary of State will permit the exportation to Cuba of the articles listed above only when the Department of State has been informed by the Cuban Embassy in Washington that it is the desire of the Cuban Government that the exportation of the shipment be authorized.

No export licenses will be issued for shipments destined to China, Cuba, Honduras, or Nicaragua of the appliances and substances listed under category VI in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937.

In the case of shipments of arms, ammunition, or implements of war from the United States not ostensibly destined to China, Cuba, Honduras, or Nicaragua, the Secretary of State may require exporters to present convincing evidence that they are not destined to any of those countries and may refuse to issue an export license for the same until such convincing evidence has been presented to him.

PART VII—SPECIAL PROVISIONS IN REGARD TO THE EXPORTATION OF TIN-PLATE SCRAP

The act of Congress approved February 15, 1936, entitled "An Act To provide for the protection and preservation of domestic sources of tin" reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, in the interest of national defense, it is hereby declared to be the policy of Congress and the purpose and intent of this Act to protect, preserve, and develop domestic sources of tin, to restrain the depletion of domestic reserves of tin-bearing materials, and to lessen the present costly and dangerously dependent position of the United States with respect to resources of tin.

SEC. 2. There shall not be exported from the United States after the expiration of sixty days from the enactment of this Act any tin-plate scrap, except upon license issued by the President of the United States. The President is authorized to grant licenses upon such conditions and regulations as he may find necessary to assure in the public interest fair and equitable consideration to all producers of this commodity.

SEC. 3. Any violations of the provisions of this Act shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment of not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

On February 16, 1936, the President issued an Executive order as follows:

TO PROVIDE FOR THE PROTECTION AND PRESERVATION OF THE DOMESTIC SOURCES OF TIN

WHEREAS section 2 of an act of Congress approved February 15, 1936, entitled "AN ACT To provide for the protection and preservation of the domestic sources of tin," provides:

"There shall not be exported from the United States after the expiration of sixty days from the enactment of this Act any tin-plate scrap, except upon license issued by the President of the United States. The President is authorized to grant licenses upon such conditions and regulations as he may find necessary to assure in the public interest fair and equitable consideration to all producers of this commodity."

NOW, THEREFORE, I, FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT, President of the United States, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the aforesaid act, do hereby delegate to the Secretary of State as Chairman of the National Munitions Control Board the power to grant licenses for the exportation of tin-plate scrap upon such conditions and under such regulations as he may find necessary to assure in the public interest fair and equitable consideration to all producers of this commodity, and as he may prescribe by and with the advice and consent of the Board.

FRANKLIN D ROOSEVELT

THE WHITE HOUSE,
February 16, 1936.

In virtue of the authority vested in him by the Executive order of February 16, 1936, the Secretary of State by and with the advice and consent of the National Munitions Control Board prescribed on December 7, 1936, the following regulations:

"(1) For the purpose of the act the term 'tin-plate scrap' is construed, provisionally, to mean tin-plate clippings, cuttings, stampings, trimmings, skeleton sheets, and all other miscellaneous pieces of discarded tin plate, which result from (1) the manufacture of tin plate, or (2) the manufacture of tin-bearing articles from tin plate. As thus defined, the term 'tin-plate scrap' does not include tin-plate waste waste, tin-plate circles, tin-plate strips, tin-plate cobbles, and tin-plate scroll shear butts, when packed separately and sold as such, and when not intermingled with tin-plate scrap.

"(2) Blank forms of application for export licenses similar to that printed below will be furnished by the Secretary of State on request.

PART VIII—SPECIAL PROVISIONS IN REGARD TO THE EXPORTATION OF HELIUM GAS

Section 3 of the act of September 1, 1937 (50 Stat. 885), entitled "An Act Authorizing the conservation, production, exploitation, and sale of helium gas, a mineral resource pertaining to the national defense and to the development of commercial aeronautics, authorizing the acquisition, by purchase or otherwise, by the United States of properties for the production of helium gas, and for other purposes," provides in part as follows:

(b) That helium not needed for Government use may be produced and sold upon payment in advance in quantities and under regulations approved by the President, for medical, scientific, and commercial use, except that helium may be sold for the inflation of only such airships as operate in or between the United States and its Territories and possessions, or between the United States or its territories and possessions and foreign countries: Provided, That no helium shall be sold for the inflation of any airship operating between two foreign countries notwithstanding such airship may also touch at some point in the United States * * *

Section 4 of the act provides as follows:

SEC. 4. No helium gas shall be exported from the United States, or from its Territories and possessions, until after application has been made to the Secretary of State and a license authorizing said exportation has been obtained from him on the joint recommendation of all of the members of the National Munitions Control Board and the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, That, under regulations governing exportation of helium approved by the National Munitions Control Board and the Secretary of the Interior, export shipments of quantities of helium that are not of military importance as defined in said regulations, and which do not exceed a maximum to be specified therein, may be made under license granted by the Secretary of State without such specific recommendation. Such regulations shall not permit accumulations of helium in quantities of military importance in any foreign country, nor the exportation of helium to countries named in proclamations of the President issued pursuant to section 1 (a) or (c) of the Neutrality Act of May 1, 1937 (Public Resolution Numbered 27 of the Seventy-fifth Congress[1]) while such proclamations are in effect, and shall require exporters to submit a sworn statement to the Secretary of State showing the quantity, destination, consignee, and intended use of each proposed exportation.

Any person violating any of the regulations made pursuant hereto, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and the Federal courts of the United States are hereby granted jurisdiction to try and determine all questions arising under this section.

The National Munitions Control Board shall include in its Annual Report to the Congress full information concerning the licenses issued hereunder, together with such information and data collected by the Board as may be considered of value in the determination of questions related to the exportation of helium gas.

In view of the afore-mentioned provisions of law and under the authority of and pursuant to the proviso in section 4 thereof, the Secretary of State prescribed and promulgated on May 23, 1939, with the approval of the National Munitions Control Board and the Secretary of the Interior, the following regulations governing the export of helium gas:

(1) Wherever the word helium is used in these regulations, it shall be understood to mean "contained helium" at standard atmospheric pressure (14.7 pounds per square inch) and 70° Fahrenheit. The expression "contained helium" means the actual quantity of the element helium (i. e. 100 percent pure helium) present in a mixture of helium and other gases. Purity determinations shall be made by usually recognized methods.

(2) Applications for license to export helium gas shall be submitted to the Secretary of State on forms similar to that printed below, copies of which will be furnished by the Secretary of State on request. Each application must be signed and sworn to (or affirmed) in the presence of a notary public before it is transmitted to the Secretary of State. All applications must be submitted in duplicate.

(When countersigned and impressed with the seal of the Department of State, this application becomes a license.)

For the Secretary of State:
By ----------
(For official use only)

(3) Licenses authorizing export shipments of helium gas for medical, scientific, and commercial use will be issued by the Secretary of State for quantities not to exceed, during any one year, to the ultimate consignees or purchasers within any one country, 500,000 cubic feet.

(4) Quantities of helium gas that are not of military importance, within the meaning of the term as used in Section 4 of the Act of September 1, 1937 (50 Stat. 885), are defined to be quantities of helium gas not exceeding 500,000 cubic feet.

(5) Applicants for license to export helium gas under paragraph (3) hereof may be required to submit with their applications evidence to show that the helium gas to be exported will be used for only the purposes indicated therein and that subsequent disposition of the helium gas will not in any way violate provisions of the Act of September 1, 1937 (50 Stat. 885), or regulations promulgated thereunder. The Secretary of State may refuse to issue a license if such evidence is not deemed sufficient.

(6) All applications for license to export helium gas shall be accompanied by evidence to show that reasonable safeguards have been adopted to insure that there shall be no unnecessary waste of the helium gas desired.

(7) No license will be issued under these regulations to authorize the exportation of helium gas to a foreign country if it appears that the issuance of such a license would permit the accumulation in that country of helium gas in quantities of military importance. The Secretary of State may, in the case of applicants who have already obtained one license, require that succeeding applications for license to export helium gas be accompanied by information indicating the manner of disposal of the helium gas exported under licenses preceding that applied for. No license will be issued under these regulations if the amount of helium gas authorized for export under such license, taken in conjunction with the amount of helium gas already accumulated within the country of destination and any further amount already licensed for export to such country but not actually delivered would be in excess of 500,000 cubic feet.

(8) No licenses will be issued by the Secretary of State for the exportation of helium gas to any country named in a proclamation issued by the President pursuant to section 1 (a) or (c) of the Neutrality Act of May 1, 1937 (50 Stat. 121),[1] while such proclamation is in effect.

(9) Licenses which have been issued under these regulations authorizing the exportation of helium gas to a country which is subsequently named in a proclamation issued by the President pursuant to the provisions of law referred to in paragraph (8) hereof, shall automatically become null and void and further shipment thereunder shall be considered in violation of these regulations.

(10) Licenses authorizing the exportation of helium gas are not transferable and are subject to revocation without notice. If not revoked, such licenses are valid until the date of expiration indicated on the face thereof.

(11) No alterations may be made except by the Department of State, or by collectors of customs or postmasters acting under the specific instructions of the Department of State, in licenses which have been issued under the seal of the Secretary of State.

(12) Licenses which have been revoked or which have expired must be returned immediately to the Secretary of State.

(13) The country of destination and the consignee named in the application for license to export helium gas must, in each case, be the country of ultimate destination and the ultimate consignee, respectively.

(14) The shipper's export declaration (customs form 7525) or such other document as the Bureau of Customs may require must contain the same information in regard to the quantity and value of the helium gas as that which appears on the application for license. If the person designated on the export declaration as the actual shipper of the goods is not the person to whom the export license has been issued by the Secretary of State, the name of this shipper should appear on the export license as that of the consignor in the United States.

[1] Repealed November 4, 1939.

(15) The originals of licenses authorizing the exportation of helium gas must be presented to the collector of customs at the port through which the shipment authorized by the license is being made. Export licenses and export declarations, or other documents required by the Bureau of Customs, concerning helium gas must be filed with the appropriate collector of customs at least 24 hours before the proposed departure of the shipment from the United States, and, in the case of a shipment by a seagoing vessel, 24 hours before the lading of the vessel.

(16) Licenses authorizing the exportation of helium gas which is being shipped by parcel post must be presented to the postmaster at the post office at which the parcel is mailed.

(17) Helium gas leaving the United States when used for or intended for the inflation of an aircraft under American registry will not be considered as exported within the meaning of section 4 of the Act when it is the intention of the owner of the aircraft that it shall remain under American registry and shall be commanded by a duly certificated United States airman during the entire period of its sojourn abroad, and when there is no intention on the part of the owner of the aircraft to dispose of the helium gas in any foreign country.

REGULATIONS UNDER SECTION 6 OF THE JOINT RESOLUTION OF CONGRESS APPROVED NOVEMBER 4, 1939

Section 6 of the joint resolution of Congress approved November 4, 1939, provides as follows:

Whenever the President shall have issued a proclamation under the authority of section 1 (a), it shall thereafter be unlawful, until such proclamation is revoked, for any American vessel, engaged in commerce with any foreign state to be armed, except with small arms and ammunition therefor, which the President may deem necessary and shall publicly designate for the preservation of discipline aboard any such vessel.

The President's proclamation of November 4, 1939, issued pursuant to the provisions of section 1 of the above-mentioned joint resolution provides in part as follows:

§ 245.1 Statutory authority. The act of February 15, 1901 (31 Stat. 790; 43 U.S.C. 959), authorizes the Secretary of the Interior, under general regulations to be fixed by him, to permit the use of rights-of-way over and upon public lands and certain reservations of the United States for electrical plants, poles, and lines for the generation and distribution of electrical power, to the extent of the ground occupied by such electrical plants, and not to exceed fifty feet on each side of the marginal limits thereof, or not to exceed fifty feet on each side of the center line of such electrical lines and poles, by any citizen, association, or corporation of the United States, where it is intended by such to exercise the use permitted under said act.

The act of March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1253; 43 U.S.C. 961), authorizes the head of the department having jurisdiction over the lands, under such regulations as may be fixed by him to grant an easement for rights-of-way for a period not exceeding fifty years, over and across public lands and reservations of the United States, for electrical poles and lines for the transmission and distribution of electrical power, to the extent of twenty feet on each side of the center line of such electrical lines and poles, to any citizen, association, or corporation of the United States, where it is intended by such to exercise the use permitted under said act.

§ 245.2 When application for power permit may be filed. The acts of February 15, 1901, and March 4, 1911, with respect to rights-of-way for power purposes over public lands, were repealed and superseded by the Federal Power Act of June 10, 1920 (41 Stat. 1063), as amended, except where the electrical energy is generated other than by water power, or in case of rights-of-way over allotted Indian lands. No application for a power permit should be filed under said acts for electrical plant sites, or rights-of-way for transmission lines, unless the electrical energy to be generated or conveyed is to be generated by means other than by water power, or the lands affected are allotted Indian lands. All other applications for power plants or transmission lines must be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D. C., under the act of June 10, 1920, as amended.

§ 245.3 Jurisdiction over land. Section 1 of the act of February 1, 1905 (33 Stat. 628), vested jurisdiction in the Department of Agriculture to pass upon all applications under the act of February 15, 1901, for permission to occupy and use lands in national forests. For the purpose of the act of March 4, 1911, national parks, Indian reservations, and reservations for water power sites, irrigation, classification of lands, or other purposes, created under the withdrawal act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 847), are considered to be under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior; military reservations under the jurisdiction of the War Department; and reservations created for the special occupancy, use, or control of other departments under the jurisdiction of such departments, respectively. Therefore, when it is desired to obtain permission to use rights-of-way over public lands within a national forest, an application should be prepared in accordance with the regulations issued by the Department of Agriculture and the same submitted to the proper officer of that department.

§ 245.4 Nature of permit. The act of February 15, 1901, does not make a grant in the nature of an easement, but authorizes a mere permission revocable at any time, and it gives no right whatever to take from public lands, reservations, parks, or national forests adjacent to the right-of-way any material, earth, or stone for construction or other purposes. The act of March 4, 1911, which authorizes the granting of easements for transmission lines, for stated periods not to exceed fifty years, follows as closely as possible in the accomplishment of its purposes, the act of February 15, 1901.

§ 245.5 Unsurveyed lands. Permission may be given under the act of February 15, 1901, and the act of March 4, 1911, for rights-of-way over unsurveyed lands as well as surveyed lands.

That hereafter no permit, license, lease, or authorization for dams, conduits, reservoirs, power houses, transmission lines, or other works for storage or carriage of water, or for the development, transmission or utilization of power within the limits as now constituted of any national park or national monument, shall be granted or made without specific authority of Congress, etc.

§ 245.7 Effect of permit. Power permits issued by the Secretary of the Interior allow the occupancy and use of Interior Department lands for the construction, maintenance, and operation of works that involve the use of or interference with valuable power resources or that involve the development, transmission, or use of power. All permits will be issued, extended, renewed, or revoked only by the Secretary of the Interior.

§ 245.8 Trespass. Any occupancy or use of public lands, reservations, parks, or national forests for the purposes set forth in said statutes, except under authority first secured from the proper department, is trespass.

§ 245.9 Filing of application. All applications for power permits for occupancy or use of Interior Department lands should be submitted in duplicate on form 1, which is made a part hereof, and filed at the local land office of the land district in which the lands are situated. If the lands are situated in more than one district, the lands in both districts shall be embraced in one set of application papers, which shall be submitted in any one of such districts at the option of the applicant, who shall submit to the local land office in each other districts a print copy of the maps submitted to the local land office of the first district. If there is no local land office, the application should be filed with the Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington, D. C.

An application for a power permit shall not be completed until every map or paper required by the regulations has been filed in the form prescribed.

§ 245.10 Priority rights. Priority of consideration of applications for power permits shall be initiated in the order of filing complete applications as prescribed in section 245.9. Priority shall be maintained, however, only in so far as the projects are within the limits of the project works as shown in the application for the permit. Priority initiated or maintained by an application for permit shall be lost if the applicant fails to make the payment required and to return a duly executed agreement, as prescribed in section 245.21, within 30 days from a date fixed in the letter transmitting such agreement to him, unless a longer time is allowed by written authority of the Secretary. Priority initiated or maintained by an application for a permit shall be lost if the permit is revoked. No other application, for a like use covering in whole or in part the same or adjacent lands, will be accepted from the permittee whose priority is lost until the expiration of one year thereafter; and this restriction shall extend to transferees of the permittee and if the permittee is a corporation to reincorporations representing the same or associated interests, whenever in the judgment of the Secretary a transfer or reincorporation has been effected for the purpose or with the result of escaping the restriction of this regulation, it being the intent of such restriction to leave open to other applicants for a period of one year power sites upon which priorities have lapsed as provided in this regulation.

§ 245.11 When permit may be granted. Power permits will be issued only in case it appears that the proposed development will be in general accord with the most beneficial utilization of the resources involved and consistent with the public interest. No power permit will be issued if the works to be constructed thereunder would in any way be incompatible with works operated or constructed or to be constructed under an existing power permit. No power permit will be issued for the construction of works within an area covered by a prior permit until after the loss of priority by the prior permittee. Applications for power permits involving in whole or in part the same lands will be examined in order of their priority, but before the issuance of final permit consideration may be given, in the discretion of the Secretary, to the financial ability and business connections and affiliations of the applicants.

§ 245.12 Termination of permit. Unless otherwise specified in the permit and unless sooner revoked by the Secretary, a power permit shall terminate at the expiration of 50 years from the date of the permit. If, however, at any time not less than 2 or more than 12 years prior to the termination of the permit, the permittee shall formally notify the Secretary that he desires a new permit to occupy and use such lands as are occupied and used under the existing permit, and will comply with all then existing laws and regulations governing the occupancy and use of lands of the United States for power purposes, the existing permit will be considered as an application for such new permit.

§ 245.13 Words and phrases. The following terms, wherever used in these regulations, shall have the meaning hereby in this regulation assigned to them, respectively, viz:

"Municipal purposes" means and includes all purposes within municipal powers as defined by the charter of the municipal corporation itself with the primary object of promoting the security, health, good government, or general convenience of its inhabitants.

"Power business" means the entire business of the applicant or permittee in the generation, distribution, and delivery of power by means of any one power system, together with all works and tangible property involved therein, including freeholds and leaseholds in real property.

"Power system" means all interconnected plants and works for the generation, distribution, and delivery of power.

"Power project" means a complete unit of power development, consisting of a power house, conduit, or conduits conducting water thereto, all storage or diverting or forebay reservoirs used in connection therewith, the transmission line delivering power therefrom, any other miscellaneous structures used in connection with said unit or any part thereof, and all lands the occupancy and use of which are necessary or appropriate in the development of power in said unit.

"Project works" means the physical structures of a power project.

"Construction of the project works" means the actual construction of dams, water conduits, power houses, transmission lines, or some permanent structure necessary to the operation of the complete power project, and does not include surveys or the building of roads and trails, or the clearing of reservoir sites or other lands to be occupied, or the performance of any work preliminary to the actual construction of the permanent project works.

"Operation period" means the period covered by permit subsequent to the actual beginning of operation.

"Survey-construction period" means the period covered by permit prior to the operation period.

"Nominal stream flow" means the sum of (a) the natural flow available for 90 percent of the time, and (b) the increase in such natural flow for 90 percent of the time due to artificial means other than the project works.

"Project storage flow" means the estimated increase in nominal stream flow made practicable by the project works.

"Load factor" means the ratio of average power output to maximum power output.

"Total capacity of the power site" means the power estimated to be available for transmission, and is determined as the continued product of (1) the factor 0.08;[1] (2) the average gross head, in feet; (3) the available stream flow at the intake (in second-feet and in amount not to exceed the maximum hydraulic capacity of the project works); and (4) a factor, not less than the average load factor of the power system, representing the degree of practicable utilization of the available stream flow, and based on the extent of practicable fore-bay storage and the load factor of the power system.

"Net capacity of the power site" means the capacity on which the calculation of the compensation hereinafter required to be paid is based, and is determined by making a deduction from the total capacity of the power site which, in percent, shall be the product of the square of the distance of primary transmission in miles and the factor 0.001, but in no case shall such deduction exceed 10 percent.

§ 245.14 Rental charges. Unless otherwise ordered by the Secretary the occupancy and use of Interior Department lands under a power permit for power sites of more than 100 horsepower total capacity will be conditioned on the payment in advance for each calendar year of compensation calculated from the "net capacity of the power site", as defined in section 245.13, at not less than the following rates per horsepower per year:

|---|---|
| For the unexpired portion of the calendar year and for the first full calendar year of the survey-construction period, and similarly for the operation period | $0.01 |
| For the second full calendar year of each of said periods | .02 |
| For the third year | .03 |
| For the fourth year | .04 |
| For the fifth year | .05 |
| For the sixth year | .06 |
| For the seventh year | .07 |
| For the eighth year | .08 |
| For the ninth year | .09 |
| For the tenth and each succeeding year | .10 |

The rates per horsepower per year will be ten times such minimum rates, however, unless good cause for fixing other rates appears. The compensation on account of a power permit will be calculated from the net capacity of the power site as estimated by the Secretary at the time of granting said permit, provided that said estimated net capacity may be adjusted by the Secretary annually to provide for changes in length of primary transmission, for increase or decrease, by storage or otherwise, of available stream flow to an amount of 10 percent or more, or for increase or decrease of 10 percent or more in average gross head, or in degree of practicable utilization.

(a) The charge for occupancy and use of Interior Department lands under a power permit for transmission lines shall be at the rate of five dollars ($5) per mile or fraction thereof per annum, the minimum charge to be five dollars ($5).

(b) The charge for occupancy and use of Interior Department lands under a power permit for plants generating power by means of coal, oil, gas, or other fuel shall be five dollars ($5) per acre or fraction thereof per annum, the minimum charge to be five dollars ($5).

(c) The first payment by every permittee shall be the compensation for a full year, but any excess of said payment over the pro rata compensation for the unexpired portion of the calendar year in which the permit is issued will be credited to the permittee as a part of his payment for the first full calendar year.

* These regulations are issued under the authority of the Acts of February 15, 1901 (31 Stat. 790; 43 U.S.C. 959), and March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1253; 43 U.S.C. 961).

[1] The factor 0.08 represents the horsepower at 70 percent efficiency of a second-foot of water falling through a head of 1 foot.

The permittee shall annually, on or before the first day of February next following the close of each calendar year of the period for which right-of-way is authorized, deposit with the Register of the District Land Office, in cash, post office money order, bank draft, or check payable to the Treasurer of the United States, the rental charges specified in the permit. If the permittee shall fail to pay the rental charges required in the permit, and such default shall continue for sixty days after the first day of February, then the Secretary of the Interior may in his discretion terminate and revoke the permit. After default has occurred, no structures, buildings, or other equipment may be removed from the right-of-way except upon written permission first obtained from the Secretary of the Interior.

(d) At any time not less than 5 years after the issuance of a permit, or after the last revision of rates per year thereunder, the Secretary may review such rates and impose such new rates per year as he may decide to be reasonable and proper.

(e) All payments made under a power permit shall be deposited to the credit of the tribe or individual Indian entitled thereto in so far as Indian lands are affected and to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States in so far as any other Interior Department lands are affected.

§ 245.15 Showing required of corporations. Application by a private corporation must be accompanied with a copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, duly certified by the proper officers of the company under its corporate seal or by the secretary of the State where organized.

When a company is operating in a State other than that in which it is incorporated, it must submit the certificate of the proper officer of the State that it has complied with the laws of that State governing foreign corporations to the extent required to entitle the company to operate in such State.

A corporation other than a private corporation should file a copy of the law under which it was formed and due proof of organization under the same.

If the company shall have filed with the Department of the Interior the papers required by this section, the requirements shall be held to be met if, in making subsequent applications, specific reference is made by date and case number of such previous filing.

§ 245.16 Showing required of individuals or associations of individuals. Application by an individual must be accompanied with affidavit of citizenship if the applicant is native-born. If he is not a native-born citizen he must submit the usual proofs of naturalization. If the applicant is an association of citizens, each member must make affidavit of citizenship, and a complete list of the members must be given in an affidavit by one of them. Associations must, in addition, submit their articles of association; if there be none, the fact must be stated over the signature of each member of the association.

§ 245.17 Evidence which must accompany application. Each application for power permit must be accompanied with the following data:

(a) A map prepared on tracing linen, in duplicate, with two print copies showing the survey of the right-of-way or site properly located with respect to the public-land surveys so that said right-of-way or site may be accurately located on the ground by any competent engineer or land surveyor. The map should comply with the following requirements:

The scale should be 2,000 feet to the inch for canals, ditches, pipe lines, and transmission lines, and 1,000 feet to the inch for reservoirs, except where a larger scale is required properly to represent the details of the proposed project, in which case the scales should be 1,000 feet to the inch and 500 feet to the inch, respectively.

Courses and distances of the center line of the right-of-way or traverse line of the reservoir should be given; the courses referred to the true meridian either by deflection from a line of known bearing or by independent observation, and the distances in feet and decimals thereof. Station numbers with plus distances at deflection points on the traverse line should be shown.

The initial and terminal points of the survey should be accurately connected by course and distance to the nearest corner of the public-land surveys, unless that corner is more than six miles distant, in which case the connection will be made to some prominent natural object or permanent monument, which can be readily recognized and recovered. The station number and plus distance to the point of intersection with a line of the public-land surveys should be ascertained and noted, together with the course and distance along the section line to the nearest existing corner, at a sufficient number of points throughout the township to permit accurate platting of the relative position of the right-of-way to the public-land survey.

All subdivisions of the public-land surveys within the limits of the survey should be shown in their entirety, based upon the official subsisting plats with the subdivision, section, township, and range clearly marked.

The width of the canal or ditch, at highwater line should be given and if not of uniform width, the location and amount of the change must be definitely shown. In the case of a pipe line, the diameter should be given. For reservoirs, the capacity in acre-feet, the area within the highwater line, the source of the water supply, and the location and height of the dam must be shown.

Each copy of the map should bear upon its face an affidavit of the engineer who makes the survey and the certificate of the applicant (Form 2, which is made a part hereof).

(b) A general map of the entire power project or transmission line on tracing linen, in duplicate, with two print copies, prepared on such a scale and in such a manner that each quarter section of land affected is clearly shown. If this information is shown on the map filed under section 245.17 (a), supra, the general map may be omitted.

(c) Evidence of water right, if the project involves the storage, diversion, or conveyance of water. Control and jurisdiction over the appropriation of water are vested in the State authorities. The applicant, therefore, must file evidence, obtained from the proper State official, that he has the right to appropriate the water to be stored, diverted, or conveyed.

§ 245.18 Power plants to be platted on map in main drawing and in separate drawing. When application is made for a permit for power plants, the location and extent of ground proposed to be occupied by buildings, pipe lines, or other structures necessary to be used in connection therewith must be clearly designated on the map and described by reference to course and distance from a corner of the public survey. In addition to being shown in connection with the main drawing, the buildings or other structures must be platted on the map in a separate drawing on a scale sufficiently large to show clearly their dimensions and relative positions.

(a) A description of the plant or plants which generate or will generate the power to be transmitted over such lines (hereinafter called "the connected generating plant", which term shall include all hydraulic, hydroelectric, and electric generating works), such description to be in sufficient detail to show, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior, the character, capacity, and location of such plant.

(b) A statement in detail to the Secretary of the Interior showing whether the connected generating plant is located, in whole or in part, on land owned or controlled by the United States, or on land not so owned and controlled, and whether any part of the connected generating plant or of the system of transmission and distribution in connection with such plant affects lands in reservations other than those under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior.

§ 245.20 Use of transmission lines. Rights-of-way granted under these regulations for transmission lines shall not be used for the transmission of any power generated otherwise than by and at "the connected generating plant" as defined in section 245.19, until the Secretary of the Interior shall have given written authority for such use and then only on the terms and conditions expressed in such written authority.

§ 245.21 Agreement required as a condition precedent to issuance of permit. Before a power permit will be issued for a power project, the permittee shall execute and file an agreement which, upon its approval in writing by the Secretary, shall constitute and express the conditions of the permit. Such agreement shall expressly bind the applicant—

(a) To construct the project works on the location shown upon and in accordance with the maps and plans submitted with the application for permit, and to make no material deviation from said location unless and until maps and plans showing such deviation shall have been submitted and approved.

(b) To begin the construction of the project works, or the several parts thereof, within a specified period or periods from the date of execution of the permit, and thereafter diligently and continuously to prosecute such construction unless temporarily interrupted by climatic conditions or by some special or peculiar cause beyond the control of the permittee.

(c) To complete the construction and begin the operation of the project works, or the several parts thereof, within a specified period or periods from the date of execution of the permit. To furnish the Secretary with a statement, under oath, of the actual cost of construction of the project when completed.

(d) To operate the project works continuously for the development, transmission, and use of power, unless upon a full and satisfactory showing that such operation is prevented by unavoidable accidents or contingencies this requirement is temporarily waived by the written consent of the Secretary.

(e) To pay annually, in advance, such amounts as may be fixed and required by the Secretary under section 245.14.

(f) On demand of the Secretary to install at such places and maintain in good operating condition in such manner as shall be approved by the Secretary accurate meters, measuring weirs, gauges, or other devices approved by the Secretary and adequate for the determination of the amount of electric energy generated by the project works and of the flow of the stream or streams from which the water is to be diverted for the operation of the project works and of the amount of water used in the operation of the project works and of the amounts of water held in and drawn from storage; to keep accurate and sufficient records of the foregoing determinations to the satisfaction of the Secretary; and to make a return during January of each year, under oath, of such of the records of measurements for the year ended on December 31, preceding, made by or in the possession of the permittee, as may be required by the Secretary.

(g) That the books and records of the permittee shall be open at all times to the inspection and examination of the Secretary, or other officer or agent of the United States duly authorized to make such inspection and examination.

(h) On demand of the Secretary to install a system of accounting for the entire power business in such form as the Secretary may prescribe, which system as far as is practicable will be uniform for all permittees, and to render annually such reports of the power business as the Secretary may direct.

(i) To protect in a workmanlike manner, at crossings of and at places in proximity to its transmission lines on the right-of-way authorized, in accordance with the rules prescribed in the National Electric Safety Code, all Government and other telephone, telegraph, and power-transmission lines from contact, and all highways and railroads from obstruction, and shall maintain its transmission lines in such manner as not to menace life or property.

(j) To clear and keep clear the Interior Department lands along the transmission line for such width and in such manner as the officer of the United States having supervision of such lands may direct.

(k) To dispose of all brush, refuse, or unused timber on Interior Department lands resulting from the construction and maintenance of the project works to the satisfaction of the officer last aforesaid.

(l) To build and repair such roads and trails as may be destroyed or injured by construction work or flooding under the permit, and to build and maintain necessary and suitable crossings for all roads and trails that intersect the water conduit constructed, maintained, or operated under the permit.

(m) To do everything reasonably within the power of the permittee both independently and on request of the Secretary or other duly authorized officer or agent of the United States to prevent and suppress fires on or near the lands to be occupied under the permit.

(n) To pay the full value as fixed by the Secretary for all timber cut, injured, or destroyed on Interior Department lands in the construction, maintenance, and operation of the project works.

(o) To pay the United States full value for all damage to the lands or other property of the United States resulting from the breaking of or the overflowing, leaking, or seeping of water from the project works, and for all other damage to the lands or other property of the United States caused by the neglect of the permittee or of the employees, contractors, or employees of the contractors of the permittee.

(p) To indemnify the United States against any liability for damages to life or property arising from the occupancy or use of Interior Department lands by the permittee.

(q) To abide by such reasonable regulation of the service rendered and to be rendered by the permittee to consumers of power furnished or transmitted by the permittee, and of the prices to be paid therefor as may from time to time be prescribed by the State or any designated agency of the State in which the service is rendered: Provided, That for the purposes of this paragraph any such regulation shall be deemed to be suspended pending proceedings in the courts of such State, or in the Supreme Court of the United States on appeal from said State courts where such proceedings are in the nature of an appeal taken direct from the officer, commission, or board prescribing such regulation to said State courts.

(r) Upon demand in writing by the Secretary to surrender the permit to the United States or to transfer the same to such State or municipal corporation as he may designate, and to give, grant, bargain, sell, and transfer with the permit all works, equipment, structures, and property then owned or held by the permittee on lands of the United States occupied or used under the permit, and then valuable or serviceable in the generation, transmission, and distribution of power: Provided, (1) That such surrender or transfer shall be demanded only in case the United States or the transferee shall have first acquired such other works, equipment, structures, property and rights of the permittee as are dependent in whole or in essential part for their usefulness upon the continuance of the permit; (2) that such surrender or transfer shall be on condition precedent that the United States shall pay or the transferee shall first pay to the permittee the reasonable value of all such works, equipment, structures, and property to be surrendered or transferred; (3) that such reasonable value shall not include any sum for any permit, right, franchise, or property granted by any public authority in excess of the sum paid to such public authority as a purchase price therefor; and (4) that such reasonable value shall be determined by mutual agreement of the parties in interest, and in case they cannot agree, by the Secretary under a rule, which, except as modified by the requirements of this paragraph, shall be the then existing rule of valuation for power properties in condemnation proceedings in the State in which the properties to be surrendered or transferred are located. But nothing herein shall prevent the United States or any State or municipal corporation from acquiring by any other lawful means the permit or the works, equipment, structures, or property then owned or held by the permittee on lands of the United States occupied or used under the permit.

(s) That in respect to the regulation by any competent public authority of the service to be rendered by the permittee or the price to be charged therefor, and in respect to any purchase or taking over of the properties or business of the permittee or any part thereof by the United States, or by any State within which the works are situated or business carried on in whole or in part, or by any municipal corporation in such State, no value whatsoever shall at any time be assigned to or claimed for the permit or for the occupancy or use of Interior Department lands thereunder, nor shall such permit or such occupancy and use ever be estimated or considered as property upon which the permittee shall be entitled to earn or receive any return, income, price, or compensation whatsoever.

(t) That any approval of any alteration or amendment, or of any map or plan, or of any extension of time shall affect only the portions specifically covered by such approval; and that no approval of any such alteration, amendment, or extension shall operate to alter or amend, or in any way whatsoever be a waiver of any other part, condition, or provision of the permit.

(u) To perform such other specified conditions with respect to the occupancy and use of lands within any of said parks or any military, Indian, or other reservation as may be found by the chief officer of the department under whose supervision such park or reservation falls to be necessary as conditions precedent to the issuance of the permit in order to render the same compatible with the public interest.

§ 245.22 Change in location or plans of construction. During the progress of construction, amendments to maps of location or plans of structures will be required from the permittee if there is a material deviation from the maps or plans as originally filed, but no amendment will be allowed that is incompatible with the occupancy and use of lands under existing permits or pending applications. Any approval of an amendment of a map or plan or of any extension of time shall be in the form of a supplemental agreement and permit so drawn as to become a part of the original agreement and permit and a substitute for the clauses amended. Any approval of any amendment of any map or plan shall apply only to the portions specifically covered by such approval, and no approval of any such amendment shall operate to amend or be in any way a waiver of any other part, condition, or provision of the permit.

If, after the completion of the project works, there are any deviations in location from those shown upon the original map or approved amendments thereof, additional maps prepared in the manner prescribed for original maps of location will be required to be filed within six months after the completion of the project works, showing the extent of such deviations and the final locations of such project works. Also upon the completion of the project works detailed working plans will be required of the works as constructed, except such parts as have been constructed in compliance with plans originally filed or approved amendments thereof. Such new or additional plans may be originals on tracing linen or Van Dyke negatives of the permittee's own working plans. The plans of conduits, dams, and appurtenant structures must be complete; of power houses, only general layout plans are required.

§ 245.23 Extension of time for beginning or completing construction. An extension of the periods stipulated in the permit for beginning or completing construction and for beginning operation will be granted only by the written approval of the Secretary after a showing by the permittee satisfactory to the Secretary that the beginning or completion of construction and beginning of operation has been prevented by engineering difficulties that could not reasonably have been foreseen, or by other special and peculiar causes beyond the control of the permittee.

§ 245.24 Transfer of permit. A permit may be transferred to a new permittee only (1) by a court of competent jurisdiction under a decree of foreclosure to enforce a mortgage or deed of trust that shall have been given in good faith to secure capital for the power business as defined in section 245.13, embracing the works constructed or to be constructed under such permit, and without any intent to evade the restrictions upon transfers in this section hereafter set forth; or (2) under the following conditions: The proposed transferee shall file with the Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington, D. C., the decree, execution of judgment, will, proposed contract of sale, or other written instrument upon which the proposed transfer is based, or a properly certified copy thereof, also an application by the proposed transferee in the form of an agreement binding the proposed transferee to the performance of such new and additional conditions expressed therein as the Secretary may deem necessary; and thereupon the Secretary may, in his discretion, approve in writing the proposed transfer, and after such approval the transferee shall succeed to all the rights and obligations of the permittee, subject, however, to such new and additional conditions as shall have been embodied in such agreement and so approved.

§ 245.25 Revocation of permit. Violation by a permittee of any of the provisions of these regulations, or of any of the conditions of a permit issued to him thereunder, shall be sufficient ground for revocation of such permit.

No permit will be deemed to be revoked except on the issuance by the Secretary of a specific order of revocation. Change of jurisdiction over lands from one executive department to another will not revoke but will change the administrative jurisdiction over a permit for the occupancy and use of such lands. The final disposal by the United States of any tract traversed by a right-of-way permitted shall not be construed to be a revocation of such permission in whole or in part, but such final disposal shall be deemed and taken to be subject to such right-of-way until such permission shall have been specifically revoked.

§ 245.26 Abandonment of project. Any power project under permit, or any part thereof, whether constructed or unconstructed, may be abandoned by the permittee upon the written approval of the Secretary after a finding by the Secretary that such abandonment will not tend to prevent the subsequent development of such project or part thereof so abandoned, and after the fulfillment by the permittee of all the obligations under the permit, in respect to payment or otherwise, existing at the time of such approval. Upon such abandonment, after such approval thereof and fulfillment of existing obligations, so much of the agreement and permit as relates to the abandoned project or part of a project will be formally revoked by the Secretary.

§ 245.27 Action on application. When an application is filed, the register will place on the papers and accompanying maps, the serial number, the name of the office, and the date of filing. Notations will be made on the local office records opposite each unpatented tract affected by the right-of-way or site, giving serial number, date of filing and the name of the applicant. The register will certify on each map over his written signature, that unpatented land is affected. The application will then be transmitted promptly to the General Land Office. If no unpatented land is affected, the register will return the map and duplicate to the applicant with notice of that fact.

(a) Upon receipt of the application at the General Land Office it will be noted on the records of that office. The General Land Office will examine the application and determine whether it is complete with respect to the requirements of that office; and will call upon the applicant through the local land office to supply any deficiency. If the application affects Indian land the General Land Office will call upon the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for report and recommendation, in duplicate, so that the interest of the Indians may be protected and such compensation for the land or right-of-way taken as the law and facts may warrant, may be secured. Thereupon the General Land Office will promptly transmit the entire record to the Director of the Geological Survey, stating the fact of such completion and the date thereof as determined by the receipt at the local land office of the last paper required to be filed.

(b) Upon receipt of the application for permit at the Geological Survey, that office will promptly call upon other offices for such reports and recommendations, in duplicate, with respect to the status of the lands, interference with matters under the jurisdiction of such offices, and conditions precedent to the issuance of the permit, as the nature of the case may require; and will determine whether the application papers are complete with reference to the requirements of the Geological Survey, and will call upon the applicant directly to supply any deficiency. When the application is found by the Geological Survey to be thus complete, the fact of such completion and the date thereof as determined by the receipt at the Geological Survey of the last paper required (or in case the application is thus complete when received by the Geological Survey, the date as specified by the General Land Office) will be noted on the records of the Geological Survey; and said date will be taken as the date of initiation of priority as defined in section 245.10 and as the date of initiation of valid rights of the applicant as against other claimants, and will be so specified in the permit, if issued.

The recommendation of the Geological Survey, together with the application papers shall be transmitted to the General Land Office, and that office will submit the case to the Secretary for action, presenting therewith its recommendation and that of the Geological Survey. In case the Geological Survey recommends that a permit be issued to the applicant that office will submit with its recommendation to the General Land Office a draft of such permit and agreement, in duplicate, together with five copies thereof, whereupon, the General Land Office shall transmit the draft of agreement in duplicate to the applicant for execution. After such execution and return of the agreement to the General Land Office, that office shall submit a complete record to the Secretary with its recommendations through the Geological Survey, for the concurrence of the Director. The compensation for the first year shall be transmitted by the applicant to the Commissioner of the General Land Office with the executed agreement prior to the issuance of the permit, in the form of a post office money order, bank draft, or check payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

§ 245.28 Action on approved permit. Upon approval of the permit by the Secretary, the General Land Office will note the fact of such approval on the maps of location, will transmit one original of the permit to the permittee and one copy thereof to the Geological Survey, and two copies to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs where the permit for right-of-way affects Indian lands, and will transmit one tracing of all maps of location and one copy of the permit to the local land office for filing, and will retain one original of the permit and one tracing of all maps of location in the files of the General Land Office. The approval of the permit and the date of initiation of priority and of valid rights of the permittee will thereupon be noted on the tract records of the General and local land offices.

(a) After the issuance of the permit, the Geological Survey will make such investigations and reports to the Secretary of the Interior as may be necessary for the determination and revision of rates and capacities, the supervision of construction and operation, and of the records of the permittee as contemplated by these regulations, and, in general, for all engineering matters pertaining to the power development and the power resources involved.

(b) The permittee shall at all times keep the Secretary informed of its address, and in case of corporations, with the address of its principal place of business and of the names and addresses of its principal officers.

§ 245.29 Former regulations superseded. The foregoing regulations supersede the regulations approved January 6, 1913 (41 L.D. 454), and March 1, 1913 (41 L.D. 532), and amendments thereto.

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY TO PETITION FOR REVIEW OF DETERMINATION AND ORDER REEMPLOYMENT OF LEARNERS IN THE COTTON TEXTILE INDUSTRY AT WAGES LOWER THAN THE MINIMUM WAGE APPLICABLE UNDER SECTION 6 OF THE FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT OF 1938

Whereas, the original applications made by the Cotton Textile Institute and sundry other parties pursuant to Section 14 of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and regulations (Part 522—Regulations Applicable to Employment of Learners Pursuant to Section 14 of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938—Title 29, Labor, Chapter V—Wage and Hour Division) issued by the Administrator thereunder, for permission to employ learners in the Textile Industry at wages less than the minimum applicable under Section 6 of the Act were withdrawn after a public hearing was held upon said applications in Washington, D. C., on November 28, 29, and 30, 1938 before Merle D. Vincent, a representative of the Administrator duly authorized to conduct said hearing; and

Whereas, the Cotton Textile Institute and sundry other parties made application for a reconvening of the said hearing under said Act and regulations and for permission to employ learners in the Cotton Textile Industry at wages lower than the minimum wage applicable under Section 6 of the Act by virtue of the Textile Wage Order; and

Whereas, after due notice[1] a reconvened public hearing was held on these applications in Washington, D. C., on October 12, 1939, before Merle D. Vincent, authorized representative of the Administrator, who was duly designated to preside at the hearing and to determine:

(a) What, if any, occupation or occupations in the Textile Industry require a learning period; and

(b) The factors which may have a bearing upon curtailment of opportunities for employment within the Textile Industry, or branch thereof, and

(c) Under what limitations as to wages, time, number, proportion, and length of service special certificates may be issued to employers in the Textile Industry, or branch thereof, for whatever occupation, or occupations, if any, are found to require a learning period; and

Whereas, the said Merle D. Vincent duly made findings of fact, copies of which were filed in the office of the Acting Administrator on November 4, 1939, and are there available for inspection by interested parties, and made the following determination and order:

1. On or after October 31, 1939, special certificates shall be issued permitting employment of learners in the Textile Industry at subminimum rates in the textile occupations of machine operating, tending, fixing, and jobs immediately incidental thereto, except that no certificate shall be deemed to apply to any employees performing functions similar to those performed by the following: sweepers, scrubbers, yard employees, watchmen, clerical workers and supervisors, time keepers, machine cleaners, janitors, and truckers. In the tufted bedspread branch of the industry, certificates shall be issued for the occupations of punchwork operation and chenille operation, and only such occupations. In the curtain branch of the industry, certificates shall be issued for the operation or sewing machines, but for no other occupation.

All such special certificates shall be issued, upon the following terms, to all plants in the industry making application therefor representing that experienced workers are not available to the plant, unless experienced workers are found to be available.

(a) Learners employed under the certificate shall be paid at a rate of not less than 25 cents an hour; Provided, That in all plants where experienced operators are paid on a piece-work rate, learners in the same occupations shall be paid at least the same piece-work rate and shall receive earnings paid on this rate, if in excess of the above-stated minimum.

(b) No learner shall be employed under the certificate longer than 6 weeks; Provided, That in the tufted bedspread branch of the industry no learner shall be employed longer than 8 weeks as a chenille operator, and not longer than 16 weeks as a punchwork operator, and not longer than one 8-week retraining period for chenille operators learning punchwork; Provided, further, That in the curtain branch of the industry no learner shall be employed under the certificate longer than 8 weeks.

(c) Learners employed under the certificate shall not exceed 3 percent of the total number of persons in the learner occupations, provided that in the tufted bedspread branch of the industry learners shall not exceed 5 percent of the total number of chenille and punchwork operators; provided further that, in the curtain branch of the industry, learners shall not exceed 5 percent of the total number of sewing-machine operators; and provided finally that the employment of as many as 3 learners may be authorized by any certificate except that in the tufted bedspread and curtain branches of the industry as many as 5 learners may be authorized by any certificate. In cases of plant expansion or new plants, certificates may be issued under Part 522 of the Regulations for a larger number of learners if need therefor is found.

(d) Only learners shall be employed at a subminimum wage under the certificate, and no learner shall be employed under the certificate unless hired when an experienced worker was not available.

(e) No learner shall be employed at a subminimum wage under the certificate until and unless a copy of this certificate is posted and kept posted in a conspicuous place in the plant in which learners are employed.

2. Any special certificate issued pursuant to this order may be cancelled as of the date of issue if it is found that such certificate was issued when experienced workers were available and may be cancelled prospectively or as of the date of violation if it is found that any of its terms have been violated or that skilled workers have become available. No certificate issued pursuant to this order shall be valid after October 24, 1940, subject to modification or extension on or before that time following an appropriate reconsideration of this Order.

3. In this Order the term "learner" shall mean a person who has had less than 6 weeks' experience in the aggregate in any of the learner occupations in any branch of the textile industry except tufted bedspreads and curtains. In the tufted bedspread branch of the industry the term "learner" shall mean a person who has had less than 8 weeks' experience as a chenille operator, or 16 weeks' experience as a punchwork operator, or less than 8 weeks' experience as a chenille operator plus 8 weeks retraining as a punchwork operator. In the curtain branch of the industry, the term "learner" shall mean a person who has had less than 8 weeks' experience as a sewing-machine operator. If any worker has partially completed the applicable learning period, as prescribed above, the time thus served shall be deducted from the learning period authorized by special certificate upon any subsequent employment.

4. In this Order the term "Textile Industry" is defined as under the Textile Wage Order as follows:

(a) The manufacturing or processing of yarn or thread and all processes preparatory thereto, and the manufacturing bleaching, dyeing, printing and other finishing of woven fabrics (other than carpets and rugs) from cotton, silk, flax, jute or any synthetic fibre, or from mixtures of these fibers; or from such mixtures of these fibers with wool or animal fiber (other than silk) as are specified in clauses (g) and (h); except the chemical manufacturing of synthetic fiber and such related processing of yarn as is conducted in the establishments manufacturing synthetic fiber;

(f) The manufacturing of cordage, rope or twine from any fiber or yarn;

(g) The manufacturing or processing of yarn or thread by systems other than the woolen system from mixtures of wool or animal fiber (other than silk) with any of the fibers designated in clause (a), containing not more than 45 percent by weight of wool or animal fiber (other than silk);

mittee to require adjustment, in order to take into account more adequately past acreage (harvested and diverted) making due allowance for abnormal weather conditions, plant bed and other diseases; land, labor and equipment available for the production of tobacco; crop-rotation practices; and the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco.

(c) If the acreage allotment determined for any farm (except a farm operated, controlled, or directed by a person who also operates, controls, or directs another farm on which tobacco is produced) is less than that acreage which, with the normal yield for the farm, would produce 3,200 pounds of tobacco, then such acreage allotment shall be increased to the smaller of (a) 120 percent thereof, or (b) that acreage which, with the normal yield for the farm, would produce 3,200 pounds of tobacco.

§ 727.216 Determination of 1940 normal acreage. The 1940 normal acreage for an old tobacco farm shall be the 1939 usual acreage subject to such adjustment as the local committee determines is necessary to obtain a fair and reasonable 1940 normal acreage, taking into consideration the acreages indicated for the farm by land, labor and equipment and the 1939 harvested acreage: Provided, That:

(a) The 1939 usual acreage shall not be adjusted upward so as to exceed the largest of (1) 110 percent of the 1939 usual acreage; (2) four acres; or (3) the acreage obtained by adding to the 1939 usual acreage one-fifth of the number of acres by which the 1939 harvested acreage exceeds the 1939 usual acreage.

(b) The 1939 usual acreage shall not be adjusted downward to less than 80 percent of such acreage unless further adjustment is required by (c) below.

(c) The 1939 usual acreage shall be adjusted downward, if necessary, so as not to exceed the maximum normal acreage for the farm as shown in the table below:

ACRES OF CROPLAND IN FARM AND MAXIMUM NORMAL ACREAGE

25 acres or more, 40 percent of cropland.

20 to 24.0 acres, 44 percent of cropland, but not over 10 acres.

15 to 19.9 acres, 48 percent of cropland, but not over 8.8 acres.

10 to 14.9 acres, 52 percent of cropland, but not over 7.2 acres.

9.9 acres or less, 60 percent of cropland, but not over 5.2 acres.

(d) The total upward adjustments in any county pursuant to this section shall not exceed the total downward adjustments pursuant to this section by more than one-fifth of the number of acres by which the 1939 harvested and diverted acreage exceeds the 1939 usual acreage for all old farms in the county, except as otherwise approved by the State committee.

§ 727.217 Determination of 1939 usual acreage. The 1939 usual acreage for a farm shall be determined from the 1939 acreage allotment in accordance with the following table:

Size of allotment and 1939 usual acreage:

|---|---|
| 3.6 acres or more | —acreage obtained by dividing allotment by 70 percent. |
| 3.5 acres | —4.9 acres. |
| 3.4 acres | —4.6 acres. |
| 3.3 acres | —4.2 acres. |
| 3.2 acres | —3.8 acres. |
| 3.1 acres | —3.5 acres. |
| 3.0 acres or less | —acreage obtained by dividing allotment by 90 percent. |

§ 727.218 Determination of harvested and diverted acreage. The 1939 harvested and diverted acreage for a farm shall be determined as follows:

(a) Harvested acreage. The harvested acreage shall be the number of acres actually harvested on the farm in 1939, except that if such number of acres was less than 60 percent of the 1939 usual acreage because of flood, drought, hail or blue mold, or other tobacco plant diseases, the harvested acreage shall be adjusted upward to 70 percent of the 1939 usual acreage.

(b) Diverted acreage. The diverted acreage for 1939 shall be the 1939 usual acreage minus the 1939 harvested acreage; provided that the diverted acreage shall not exceed 30 percent of the 1939 usual acreage.

§ 727.219 Subdivided farms. If land operated as a single farm in 1939 has been subdivided into two or more tracts, the base acreage, harvested acreage and diverted acreage of tobacco for the farm for 1939 shall be apportioned among the tracts in the proportion which the acres of cropland suitable for the production of tobacco on each such tract in such year bore to the total number of acres of cropland suitable for the production of tobacco on the entire farm in such year; provided, that if the local committee finds that such apportionment would not be equitable in view of the intended production on the farms which include such tracts it shall make such other apportionment as it determines to be fair and equitable.

(2) Sec. 727.220 is amended as follows:

The term "past tobacco acreage", wherever it appears, shall be deleted and there shall be inserted in lieu thereof the term "1939 usual acreage".

There shall be added at the end of section 727.220 the following new subsection (d):

(d) Determination of county averages. In computing the county averages under subsections (a), (b) and (c) of this section, there may be used, in lieu of the 1939 acreage allotments and crop acreages, the comparable data obtained in connection with the determination of 1938 flue-cured tobacco marketing quotas. Wherever the number of tobacco farms in any county is less than 200, the county averages computed for a nearby county may be used if the relation of the land, labor and equipment available for the production of tobacco to the 1939 usual acreages in the two counties are found by the State committee to be substantially the same.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 8th day of Nov. 1939. Witness my hand and the seal of the Department of Agriculture.

AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE

PART 29—THE TOBACCO INSPECTION ACT

ORDER OF DESIGNATION OF TOBACCO MARKETS (LEBANON, KENTUCKY; PARIS, COLUMBIA, AND MT. PLEASANT, TENNESSEE)

Whereas, the Act of Congress approved August 23, 1935 (49 Stat., 731: 7 U.S.C., Sup. I, Chap. 21A), entitled "The Tobacco Inspection Act" contains the following provisions:

SEC. 2. That transactions in tobacco involving the sale thereof at auction as commonly conducted at auction markets are affected with a public interest; that such transactions are carried on by tobacco producers generally and by persons engaged in the business of buying and selling tobacco in commerce; that the classification of tobacco according to type, grade, and other characteristics affects the prices received therefore by producers; that without uniform standards of classification and inspection the evaluation of tobacco is susceptible to speculation, manipulation, and control, and unreasonable fluctuations in prices and quality determinations occur which are detrimental to producers and persons handling tobacco in commerce; that such fluctuations constitute a burden upon commerce and make the use of uniform standards of classification and inspection imperative for the protection of producers and others engaged in commerce and the public interest therein.

SEC. 5. That the Secretary is authorized to designate those auction markets where tobacco bought and sold thereon at auction, or the products customarily manufactured therefrom, moves in commerce. Before any market is designated by the Secretary under this section he shall determine by referendum the desire of tobacco growers who sold tobacco at auction on such market during the preceding marketing season. The Secretary may at his discretion hold one referendum for two or more markets or for all markets in a type area. No market or group of markets shall be designated by the Secretary unless two-thirds of the growers voting favor it. The Secretary shall have access to the tobacco records of the Collector of Internal Revenue and of the several collectors of internal revenue for the purposes of obtaining the names and addresses of growers who sold tobacco on any auction market, and the Secretary shall determine from said records the eligibility of such grower to vote in such referendum, and no grower shall be eligible to vote in more than one referendum. After public notice of not less than thirty days that any auction market has been so designated by the Secretary, no tobacco shall be offered for sale at auction on such market until it shall have been inspected and certified by an authorized representative of the Secretary according to the standards established under this Act, except that the Secretary may temporarily suspend the requirement of inspection and certification at any designated market whenever he finds it impracticable to provide for such inspection and certification because competent inspectors are not obtainable or because the quantity of tobacco available for inspection is insufficient to justify the cost of such service: Provided, That, in the event competent inspectors are not available, or for other reasons, the Secretary is unable to provide for such inspection and certification at all auction markets within a type area, he shall first designate those auction markets where the greatest number of growers may be served with the facilities available to him. No fee or charge shall be imposed or collected for inspection or certification under this section at any designated auction market. Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to prevent transactions in tobacco at markets not designated by the Secretary or at designated markets where the Secretary has suspended the requirement of inspection or to authorize the Secretary to close any market.

Whereas, pursuant to said Act referendums have been held among the growers of fire-cured tobacco who sold tobacco at auction on the Paris, Tennessee, market, and among growers of Burley tobacco who sold tobacco at auction on the markets of Lebanon, Kentucky, and Columbia and Mt. Pleasant, Tennessee, during the last marketing season, in which referendums said growers were given an opportunity to vote for or against the designation as provided in Section 5 of said Act; and

Whereas, more than two-thirds of the growers voting in said referendums and who sold tobacco at auction on said markets during the last marketing season voted in favor of said designation, § 29.301 (n) Designation of tobacco markets.

Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority conferred upon me by Section 5 of The Tobacco Inspection Act and the affirmative results of the referendums conducted thereunder, the fire-cured tobacco market of Paris, Tennessee, and the Burley tobacco markets of Lebanon, Kentucky, and Columbia and Mt. Pleasant, Tennessee, are designated as markets where tobacco bought and sold thereon at auction, or the products manufactured therefrom, moves in commerce.

It is hereby ordered, That, effective 30 days from this date no tobacco shall be offered for sale at auction on the above-named markets until it shall have been inspected and certified by an authorized representative of the United States Department of Agriculture according to standards established under the Act: Provided, however, That the requirement of inspection and certification may be suspended at such times as it is found impracticable to provide inspection or when the quantity of tobacco available for inspection is insufficient to justify the cost of such service. No fee or charge shall be imposed or collected for the inspection and certification of tobacco sold or offered for sale at auction on the markets designated herein. (49 Stat., 731, 7 U.S.C., Sup. I, Chap. 21A)

Done at Washington, D. C. this 7th day of November 1939. Witness my hand and the seal of the Department of Agriculture.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

PUBLIC UTILITY HOLDING COMPANY ACT OF 1935

ADOPTION OF RULE U-12C-3

Acting pursuant to the authority conferred upon it by the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, particularly Sections 20 (a) and 12 (c) thereof, and finding such action necessary and appropriate in the public interest and for the protection of investors and consumers, and to carry out the provisions of said Section 12 (c), the Securities and Exchange Commission adopts the following rule, which is designated Rule U-12C-3:

§ 250.U-12C-3 (Rule U-12C-3). Payments on account of obligations declared as dividends. (a) Hereafter, except in accordance with this rule, no registered holding company and no subsidiary company thereof shall, directly or indirectly, make any payment of principal or interest on any note, bond, book account or any indebtedness however evidenced which is or was issued as, or based upon a dividend or dividends created or issued or declared from, or charged against, capital or unearned surplus, or in renewal of, or in exchange for, any such obligation, whether such dividend was declared before or after the Act took effect. In determining whether proposed payments on any such indebtedness issued or declared as a dividend in part out of earned surplus and in part out of capital or unearned surplus, or issued in renewal of, or in exchange for, such indebtedness, are permissible under this rule, past payments on account of such indebtedness or any predecessor indebtedness shall be deemed to have been first applied in reduction of the portion of such indebtedness issued or declared as a dividend out of earned surplus.

(b) A company proposing to make such a payment shall file with the Commission an application stating said purpose and setting forth the pertinent facts.

(c) After hearing on such application, the Commission will, by order, permit such payment subject to such terms and conditions as it finds necessary or appropriate in the public interest or the interest of investors or consumers unless the Commission finds that such payment

1. will be, in substance or effect or equivalence, the payment of a dividend from capital or unearned surplus and that such payment would not be permitted as a dividend on application pursuant to Rule U-12C-2 [Sec. 250.U-12C-2]; or

2. will impair the financial integrity of the applicant or of its subsidiaries, or will render inadequate the working capital of a public-utility company, or will result in the circumvention of the provisions of the Act, or the rules, regulations or orders of the Commission thereunder.

Effective November 8, 1939.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Food and Drug Administration.

REPORT OF PRESIDING OFFICER, SUGGESTED FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS AND ORDER RELATIVE TO IDENTITY OF CANNED PEAS

IN THE MATTER OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PURPOSE OF RECEIVING EVIDENCE UPON BASIS OF WHICH REGULATIONS MAY BE PROMULGATED (A) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONAELE DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY, (2) REQUIRING LABEL DECLARATION OF CERTAIN OPTIONAL INGREDIENTS; (B) (1) FIXING AND ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF QUALITY, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD QUALITY; (C) (1) FIXING AND

ESTABLISHING A REASONABLE STANDARD OF FILL OF CONTAINER, (2) SPECIFYING FORM AND MANNER OF LABEL STATEMENT OF SUBSTANDARD FILL OF CONTAINER; FOR THE FOOD COMMONLY KNOWN AS CANNED PEAS

General Statement

1. In conformity with subsection (e) of Section 701 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act [Section 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U.S.C. 371 (e)], the Secretary of Agriculture on his own initiative published on March 7, 1939, which appeared on page 1148 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, a notice of a public hearing to be held on April 17, 1939, in the South Ballroom, Tenth Floor, Raleigh Hotel, Twelfth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which, in pursuance of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the provisions of Sections 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2) [Secs. 401, 403 (g), (2), and 403 (h), (1) and (2), 52 Stat. 1046 and 1047; 21 U.S.C. 341, 343 (g), (2), and 343 (h), (1) and (2)], regulations may be promulgated (a) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity, and (2) requiring the label declaration of certain optional ingredients; (b) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of quality, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard quality; and (c) (1) fixing and establishing a reasonable standard of fill of container, and (2) specifying the form and manner of label statements of substandard fill of container; for the food commonly known as canned peas. The notice contained a proposal, in general terms, for defining and so standardizing such food. John McDill Fox was designated as presiding officer to conduct such hearing. Thereafter, a public hearing was held at the time and place specified, and John McDill Fox acted as presiding officer. (Government's Exhibit No. 1)

2. At said hearing the presiding officer announced that he would first hold a hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peas and that the hearing would proceed in the order set forth in the FEDERAL REGISTER of March 7, 1939.

3. On April 17, 1939, at 10 a. m., the hearing for the purpose of receiving evidence upon the basis of which a regulation may be promulgated fixing and establishing a reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peas was convened, and was adjourned from time to time until April 19, 1939, at 11: 30 a. m., when it was reconvened, and was concluded at 3: 50 p. m., on April 20, 1939. All interested persons were notified, pursuant to the rules of procedure, of their opportunity to file proposed findings of fact and argument.

4. Within the time announced at the hearing within which interested persons might file written argument, proposed findings of fact, or both, various interested persons filed proposed findings of fact, together with written argument in support thereof, based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing, which, if granted, would modify the proposal contained in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

5. Pursuant to the rules of procedure, the presiding officer, therefore, makes this his report and suggests that the Secretary issue the regulation hereinafter set forth and make, on the basis of the substantial evidence of record at the hearing, the findings of fact herein contained as part of the order promulgating and making public such regulation.

Suggested Findings

1. Canned peas are the food prepared from shelled common peas of any variety of Pisum sativum. Salt, sugar, dextrose or other seasonings may be added. The ingredients are sealed in a container and processed by heat. (R. pp. 36, 101–102, 252–254)

2. The food has a characteristic flavor, odor, appearance, both as to shape and color of the finished peas, texture and liquid. All canned peas have the same identifying characteristics. (R. pp. 36, 58, 102, 118–122)

3. The characteristic flavor of canned peas is the flavor of cooked peas fresh from the garden, preserved and restored to the degree that the canning process permits. All canned peas have the same flavor in differing degrees of intensity, and such flavor distinguishes the food from all other foods. (R. pp. 36–37, 102)

4. Canned peas have a characteristic odor which is the odor of cooked peas fresh from the garden, preserved or restored in so far as the canning process permits. All canned peas have the same characteristic odor in differing degrees of intensity. (R. pp. 37, 102)

5. Canned peas have a characteristic appearance both as to shape (which is a general effect of roundness, although sizes may vary) and as to color, which is always green, although the intensity of the green color depends on the variety of the peas, the stage of their growth at the time they are canned, and the processes used in canning them. (R. pp. 37, 102–103, 118–122)

6. Canned peas also contain a characteristic liquid consisting largely of water, colored or clouded by the elements which cook from the peas in the canning process. The extent to which the liquid is colored or cloudy is governed by the stage of growth at which the peas were canned, and also the length of time since the peas were canned, and by such conditions of storage as temperature. Such liquid is colored or clouded to some extent in all cases. (R. pp. 38, 103)

7. The characteristic flavor and odor of canned peas result from the combination of soluble and volatile substances that make up the product, including sugar, dextrose, salt, and other constituents. The shape is a natural attribute. The color results from the transparency of the skin and the natural color of the cotyledons. Young, succulent peas appear greener than old, dry or partly dried peas because the cotyledons are held more closely against the skin by their greater moisture content. Dry peas processed so that they are swelled with water appear greener than many fairly succulent peas of the same variety, both before and after cooking. The characteristic texture of peas results in part from their moisture content and in part from the soluble solids they contain, but, principally, from the insoluble solids such as cellulose and starch. (R. pp. 38–39, 102–103)

8. Canned peas have a characteristic chemical composition. All varieties have the same constituents in varying proportions. It is not possible to distinguish between various kinds of canned peas by a chemical examination of the entire contents of the can. (R. pp. 39–40)

9. Canned peas are used as a vegetable dish either alone or mixed with other vegetables. They are also used to make pea soup and are used in other soups, and are some times used in salads, omelets, stews, and meat loaves. All types of canned peas are used interchangeably for the same food purposes. (R. p. 40)

10. The ingredients present in canned peas are shelled peas horticulturally known as Pisum sativum, water, and possibly salt, sugar, dextrose, or other seasonings. (R. pp. 41, 131, 144–146)

11. There are two distinct horticultural types of Pisum sativum, those in which the skins of the dry seed are smooth and those in which the skins are wrinkled. The size of peas varies, depending on the variety. One type is commonly known as early peas, and the other type is known as sweet peas. There are many varieties of the sweet type, but there is some evidence that the smooth-skinned or early peas are all strains of the Alaska variety, although they are sold under many other varietal names. (R. pp. 41, 77, 115–116, 252–253)

12. Peas of both varieties have the same identifying characteristic flavor, although the degree of sweetness is higher in sweet peas than in early peas; the same odor; the same shapes and sizes, although the dry seed of sweet peas is wrinkled, whereas the dry seed of early peas is smooth; most varieties of sweet peas are somewhat larger than early peas; and the same characteristic green color. (R. pp. 41–42)

13. Peas of either the smooth-skinned or early type, or of the sweet or wrinkled type, are optional pea ingredients of canned peas. (R. pp. 42, 103, 252–253)

14. The common name of the smooth-skinned type of peas is "Early Peas", and the common name of the sweet or wrinkled type of peas is "Sweet Peas." (R. pp. 103, 108, 109, 201, 249, 254)

15. Early Peas have been variously known as "Early", "Early June", and "June." "Early June" is confusing because it sometimes means a specific sieve size of the Alaska variety and means standard grade in some instances. (R. pp. 69, 161, 175, 191, 195, 206, 207, 223)

16. Peas are succulent during their growing period because they have a high moisture content which makes them tender. As they ripen they lose their moisture content by evaporation, and when fully ripened they are hard and dry. This necessitates the restoration of the moisture content before fully ripened peas can be made into the product commonly known as canned peas. (R. pp. 42–43)

17. Peas in both the succulent state and the dried state are canned by identical processes, with the exception of the restoration of their former moisture content to the dried peas. (R. pp. 43–45)

18. Canned peas prepared from succulent and from dried peas have the same identifying characteristics, i. e., flavor, odor, shape, color and texture in differing degrees of intensity. (R. pp. 45, 104)

19. Peas in either the succulent state or the dried state are an optional pea ingredient of canned peas. (R. pp. 45, 103–104, 252–253)

20. The common name of peas in the succulent state is simply "Peas" with the name of the varietal type of peas, and the common name of peas in the dry state is "Dried Peas" with the name of the varietal type of peas. (R. pp. 45–46, 104, 253)

21. Early Peas and Sweet Peas are not mixed in commercial canning. (R. pp. 46, 252–253)

22. Water is an essential ingredient of canned peas. Its presence is expected and it would serve no good purpose to indicate its presence on the label. It is necessary to so process the product as to prevent spoilage. (R. pp. 46, 117–118, 252–253)

23. Seasonings may be ingredients of canned peas. Salt is always used and sugar and dextrose are sometimes used. Flavorings such as mint oil or mint extract, or seasonings such as mint leaf, green peppers, onions, garlic, horseradish, and other condimental vegetable seasonings are sometimes used. (R. pp. 46, 112–113, 114–115, 127–133, 139–140, 144–146, 188, 253, Affidavits of F. F. Torsch and Sydney P. Craig)

24. The use of seasoning is not universal. It is optional, but its use takes away no identifying characteristics of the product. (R. pp. 46, 253)

25. Such seasonings may be used singly or in combination, and the quantity used is self-controlling. (R. pp. 46–47, 55, 56–57, 79, 86–87, 89, 113, 253)

26. Each of such seasonings has a common name, to wit: salt, sugar, dextrose, flavoring, mint leaves, green peppers, onions, garlic, horseradish, and the common name of other vegetables used as seasonings. (R. pp. 47, 55, 84–85, 133–134, 253–254, 261)

27. It is essential to the identity of canned peas that they be sealed in a container. (R. p. 47)

28. It is essential to the identity of canned peas that they be processed by heat so as to prevent spoilage. (R. p. 47)

29. Canned peas have never been known by any name other than canned peas. (R. pp. 47, 105)

30. The optional pea ingredient should be declared on the label by their common names, that is, Early Peas, Sweet Peas, Dried Early Peas, or Dried Sweet Peas, if the consumer is to be accurately informed of the character of the product. (R. pp. 48, 71, 105, 178–179, 186–187.

31. Inasmuch as water, salt, and sugar are generally used in the preparation of canned peas, and within the last few years, dextrose, together with sugar, and inasmuch as the sweetening ingredient is relatively slight, the declaration of the presence of water, salt, sugar, or dextrose would furnish the consumer no useful information. (R. pp. 48, 75, 93–96, 105–106, 111, 130, 245, 256, 260, 262)

32. Other seasonings are not universally used in the preparation of canned peas and their presence may not be anticipated by the consumer. In order to furnish full information as to the character of the product, it is necessary that their presence be declared by their common names on the label. (R. pp. 48, 75, 112)

33. Such products are highly flavorsome, adding their odor and taste to the characteristic pea flavor. (R. pp. 48–49)

34. Honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer requires that wherever the name "Peas" appears on the label so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase, the names of the optional ingredients present shall immediately and conspicuously precede or follow such name without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, except that the specific varietal name of the peas may so intervene.

Suggested Conclusion in the Form of a Regulation

Upon the basis of the foregoing findings of fact, the following reasonable definition and standard of identity for the food commonly known as canned peas is hereby suggested to be promulgated as a regulation:

§ 51.000 Canned peas—Identity; label statement of optional ingredients. (a) Canned peas are the food prepared from one of the following optional ingredients:

(1) Shelled, succulent peas (Pisum sativum) of Alaska or other smooth skin varieties;

(2) Shelled, succulent peas (Pisum sativum) of sweet, wrinkled varieties;

(3) Shelled, dried peas (Pisum sativum) of Alaska or other smooth skin varieties;

(4) Shelled, dried peas (Pisum sativum) of sweet, wrinkled varieties.

To such ingredient water is added. The food may be seasoned with one or more of the optional ingredients:

(5) Salt;
(6) Sugar;
(7) Dextrose;
(8) Flavoring;
(9) Spice;
(10) Green peppers, mint leaves, onions, garlic, horseradish, or other condimental seasonings.

The food is sealed in a container and so processed by heat as to prevent spoilage.

(b) The label shall bear the word or words "Early"; "Sweet"; "Dried Early"; or "Dried Sweet"; showing respectively the presence of optional ingredient (1), (2), (3), or (4), as the case may be. If optional ingredient (8) or (9) is present, the label shall bear the statement "Flavoring Added", or "With Added Flavoring"; "Spice Added", or "With Added Spice"; as the case may be. In lieu of the words "Flavoring" and "Spice", the common or usual name of the flavoring or spice may be used in such statement. If optional ingredient (10) is present, the label shall bear the words "Seasoned With Green Peppers"; "Seasoned With Mint Leaves"; "Seasoned With Onions"; "Seasoned With Garlic"; "Seasoned With Horseradish"; or "Seasoned With ----------", the blank to be filled in with the common name of such other condimental vegetable seasoning, as the case may be. Wherever the name "Peas" appears on the label so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase, the words and statements herein specified showing the optional ingredients present shall immediately and conspicuously precede or follow such name, without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, except that the specific varietal name of the peas may so intervene.

Time Within Which to File Objections

Within ten days after the receipt of the copy of the FEDERAL REGISTER containing this report, any interested person who wishes to object to any matter set out in the suggested findings of fact and suggested conclusion in the form of a regulation shall transmit such objection in writing to the Hearing Clerk. At the same time, each such interested person shall transmit in writing to the Hearing Clerk a brief statement concerning each of the objections taken to the action of

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.

Children's Bureau.

IN THE MATTER OF THE PROPOSED FINDING AND ORDER RELATING TO THE EMPLOYMENT OF MINORS BETWEEN 16 AND 18 YEARS OF AGE AS MOTOR-VEHICLE DRIVER OR HELPER UNDER THE FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT OF 1938

NOVEMBER 8, 1939.

Whereas, section 12 (a) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (Act of June 25, 1938, chapter 676, 52 Stat. 1060, U.S.C., Supp. IV, title 29, section 201) prohibits the shipment or delivery for shipment of goods in commerce, as defined in the Act, which are produced in establishments situated in the United States in or about which within 30 days prior to the removal of such goods therefrom any oppressive child labor has been employed; and

Whereas, section 3 (l) of the said Act, which defines oppressive child labor, provides in part as follows:

(l) "Oppressive child labor" means a condition of employment under which (1) any employee under the age of sixteen years is employed by an employer • • • in any occupation, or (2) any employee between the ages of sixteen and eighteen years is employed by an employer in any occupation which the Chief of the Children's Bureau in the Department of Labor shall find and by order declare to be particularly hazardous for the employment of children between such ages or detrimental to their health or well being; • • •."

and

Whereas, the Chief of the Children's Bureau issued on November 3, 1938, a regulation prescribing the "Procedure Governing Determinations of Hazardous Occupations";[1] and

Whereas, pursuant to the said regulation, an investigation was conducted with respect to the hazardous nature of driving motor vehicles and of serving as helpers on such vehicles with special reference to the employment of minors between 16 and 18 years of age; and

Whereas, a report of the investigation was submitted to the Chief of the Children's Bureau and was made available for public inspection; and

Whereas, a finding and order relating to the occupations of motor-vehicle driver and helper was proposed for final adoption by the Chief of the Children's Bureau upon the basis of the said investigation and under the authority of section 3 (l) of the said Act; and

Whereas, a public hearing was held in Washington, D. C., on October 27, 1939, by a presiding officer designated by the Chief of the Children's Bureau, pursuant to public notice of the time and place thereof published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on October 10, 1939,[2] at which public hearing all parties appearing were given opportunity to be heard with respect to the said proposed finding and order, to question witnesses, and to file briefs and additional statements subsequent to the hearing; and

Whereas, all such evidence and arguments submitted in connection with the said hearing have been carefully considered and upon the basis thereof it has not been found necessary or appropriate to make any changes in the provisions of the proposed finding and order,

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that objections will be received for a period of 15 days following publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER of the following proposed finding and order, after which time the proposed finding and order will be made final by the Chief of the Children's Bureau unless, in her opinion, objections thereto disclose just cause for revision thereof:

§ 422.2 Motor-vehicle driver and helper—(a) Finding of fact. By virtue of and pursuant to the authority conferred by section 3 (l) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938[1] and pursuant to the regulation prescribing the "Procedure Governing Determinations of Hazardous Occupations";[2] an investigation having been conducted with respect to the hazards for minors between 16 and 18 years of age of employment in the occupations of motor-vehicle driver and helper; a report of the investigation having been submitted to the Chief of the Children's Bureau showing that:

[1] Published in 3 F.R. 2640 DI, November 5, 1938, under the heading "Title 29—Labor, Chapter IV.—Children's Bureau—Child Labor—Part 421, Procedure Governing Determinations of Hazardous Occupations."

"1. Work on motor vehicles involves a high degree of accident risk for persons of all ages, a risk which is particularly high in the case of young persons, who are lacking in the experience and in the caution required for safety in motor-vehicle operation.

"2. Workmen's compensation experience generally shows for the occupational classifications representing motor-vehicle drivers and helpers a compensation cost higher than the average for manufacturing classifications.

"3. The opinion of experts in motor-vehicle safety and of others having practical experience in the field of motor-vehicle operation who were consulted in the course of the investigation is that employment as driver or as helper on motor vehicles is especially hazardous for young persons.

"4. Motor-vehicle drivers between 16 and 18 years of age have been found to be involved in a larger number of fatal accidents in proportion to miles driven than drivers in any older age group. In a study covering fatal accidents within a 5-year period in one State the fatal-accident rate was found to be nine times greater for 16-year-old drivers and six times greater for 17-year-old drivers than for those 45 to 50 years of age, the age group with the lowest fatal-accident rate.

"5. Under many industry codes adopted pursuant to the National Industrial Recovery Act the work of motor-vehicle drivers and helpers was listed as a hazardous occupation and as such was prohibited for minors under 18 years of age.

"6. Acting pursuant to the authority conferred upon it by the Motor Carrier Act of 1935, the Interstate Commerce Commission has established as necessary for safety a minimum age of 21 years for motor-vehicle drivers, in regulations applicable to common carriers and contract carriers engaged in interstate commerce. An examiner for the Commission has recommended, after investigation and public hearing, that the same minimum age for motor-vehicle drivers be applied, with certain exceptions not here material, to private carriers engaged in interstate commerce.

"7. State legislation, which reflects public recognition of the special hazards incident to the driving of motor vehicles by young persons, has established the following standards:

"(a) In each of the States and the District of Columbia there is a legal minimum age for drivers of motor vehicles which is higher than that for general employment, the legal minimum age for drivers being applicable to (1) all persons operating motor vehicles, or (2) persons operating motor vehicles as employees, or (3) persons operating motor vehicles for common, contract, or private carriers.

"(b) In 28 States and the District of Columbia there is a minimum age of at least 18 years applicable to (1) all persons operating motor vehicles or (2) persons operating motor vehicles as employees.

"8. A minimum age of 18 years or higher for the employment of motor-vehicle drivers and helpers has been adopted voluntarily as a general policy by many employers and by the branch of organized labor especially concerned with employment in this field"; a finding and order relating to the employment of minors between 16 and 18 years of age in the said occupations having been proposed for final adoption by the Chief of the Children's Bureau upon the basis of the said report of investigation; a public hearing having been held with respect to the said proposed finding and order; all statements submitted in connection with the said hearing having been carefully considered, and sufficient reason appearing therefor, I, Katharine F. Lenroot, Chief of the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, hereby find that the occupations of motor-vehicle driver and helper are particularly hazardous for the employment of minors between 16 and 18 years of age.

(b) Order. Accordingly, I hereby declare that the occupations of motor-vehicle driver and helper are particularly hazardous for the employment of minors between 16 and 18 years of age.

Definitions. For the purpose of this order—

(1) The term "motor vehicle" shall mean any automobile, truck, truck-tractor, trailer, semitrailer, motorcycle, or similar vehicle propelled or drawn by mechanical power and designed for use as a means of transportation but shall not include any vehicle operated exclusively on rails.

(2) The term "driver" shall mean any individual who, in the course of his employment, drives a motor vehicle at any time.

(3) The term "helper" shall mean any individual, other than a driver, whose work in connection with the transportation or delivery of goods includes riding on a motor vehicle.

This order shall not justify noncompliance with any Federal or State law or municipal ordinance establishing a higher standard than the standard established herein. This order shall become effective on January 1, 1940, and shall be in force and effect until amended or repealed by order hereafter made and published by the Chief of the Children's Bureau.

A declaration and an application pursuant to sections 7 and 9 (c) (or in the alternative 10 (a) (1)) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, having been duly filed with this Commission by the above-named parties;

It is ordered, That a hearing on such matter be held on November 27, 1939, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Securities and Exchange Building, 1778 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. The officer so designated to preside at any such hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of said Act and to a trial examiner under the Commission's Rules of Practice to continue or postpone said hearing from time to time.

Notice of such hearing is hereby given to such declarant or applicant and to any other person whose participation in such proceeding may be in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers. It is requested that any person desiring to be heard or to be admitted as a party to such proceeding shall file a notice to that effect with the Commission on or before November 22, 1939.

The matter concerned herewith is in regard to

(1) The proposed issue and sale by North American Light and Power Company, a registered holding company and a subsidiary of The North American Company, a registered holding company, of 2,666,667 shares of the common stock of said North American Light and Power Company of the par value of $1 per share. It is proposed that 2,000,000 shares of such stock shall be offered at $1 per share to all common stockholders of said declarant of record on March 5, 1935 and to all common stockholders of record of said declarant as of a date to be fixed by the board of directors of said declarant prior to the making of such offer. It is proposed that the remaining 666,667 shares of said common stock shall be offered at $3 per share to all common stockholders of said declarant of record on March 5, 1936 and to all common stockholders of record as of the date, above indicated, to be fixed by the board of directors of said declarant. It is further proposed that all of said common stock not purchased by such shareholders shall be issued and sold to The North American Company.

(2) The application of The North American Company for an order pursuant to Section 9 (c) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 exempting the acquisition by it of the stock so proposed to be offered by said North American Light and Power Company to said The North American Company, or, in the alternative, for an order approving such acquisition under Section 10 of said Act.

(3) The proposed surrender by The North American Company to North American Light and Power Company of two promissory notes of the latter company, each in the principal amount of $2,000,000 and dated, respectively, April 1, 1935, and April 1, 1936, together with an amount equivalent to the interest collected upon said notes and with interest upon such interest to the date of the conclusion of the proposed transactions, in consideration of the payment to said The North American Company of all moneys received by North American Light and Power Company in payment of stock subscribed for, or purchased, pursuant to the offerings above mentioned, by shareholders of North American Light and Power Company other than The North American Company and the issue and delivery to The North American Company of all of said common stock so proposed to be issued which is not purchased, or subscribed for, by other shareholders of said North American Light and Power Company.

It is represented that the foregoing transactions are required, subject to the approval of this Commission, by certain decrees of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in two causes lately pending in said Court, designated, respectively, as John H. Murphy, etc., v. North American Light and Power Company and The North American Company, Docket No. E85-335, and *John W. IN THE MATTER OF REGULATIONS FOR TRANSPORTATION OF EXPLOSIVES AND OTHER DANGEROUS ARTICLES

[Decided November 3, 1939]

Application for authority to construct for experimental service in the transportation of petroleum products one hundred tank-car tanks fabricated by fusion welding granted—A. E. Smith for Union Tank Car Company

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT OF THE COMMISSION[1]

ALLDREDGE, Commissioner:

In our several prior reports we granted upon applications therein considered authority to build and use for experimental transportation of dangerous articles other than explosives a total of 767 tank cars equipped with tanks fabricated by fusion welding but otherwise conforming to I. C. C. shipping container specifications.

By application filed with the Association of American Railroads on September 29, 1939, and transmitted to us October 18, 1939, we are asked to authorize Union Tank Car Company to construct one hundred (100) additional cars conforming to current I. C. C. specification 105A300 for tank cars, except that tanks will be fabricated by fusion welding instead of forge welding; cars to be used in further service tests in the transportation of petroleum products. Riveted anchors will be used.

Applicant states that tanks will have capacity of 11,000 gallons, all features of design of cars have been passed upon as satisfactory by the Association, construction will conform to all effective requirements, and of the total of 767 fusion-welded cars previously authorized, 321 are in service. Applicant further states that service trials and periodical inspections show all cars in use to be in good condition after 7,673 trips over a total of 5,953,698 miles, an increase of over a thousand trips and a million miles of safe transportation since our next previous authorization dated March 13, 1939. The Bureau of Explosives and the Association recommend favorable action on the application.

Upon further consideration of the record and in the light of added facts disclosed, construction and use of one hundred (100) additional tanks of tank cars, in accordance with current I. C. C. specification 105A300, is forthwith authorized for transportation of petroleum products, provided that tanks may have riveted anchors, may be fusion welded instead of forge welded, and must be constructed and marked in compliance with proposed revised I. C. C. specification 105A300W, filed as an exhibit at the hearing herein and referred to in our prior reports.

In all respects other than as provided for herein the regulations for the transportation of petroleum products are and shall remain in full force and effect.

Owners or operators of cars shall make semiannual inspections of the tanks authorized herein and report their condition to the same parties as receive reports required by I. C. C. specification 105A300.

By the Commission, Commisioner Alldredge.

The farm unit plats referred to above were approved on the date of this notice and are on file in the office of the Superintendent, Bureau of Reclamation, Riverton, Wyoming, and in the local land office at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

2. Limit of acreage for which entry may be made or water rental secured. For the farm units described above, the limit of area of public land per entry, representing the area which, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior, may be reasonably required for the support of a family upon such land, is fixed at the amounts shown upon the said farm unit plats for the respective farm units thereon. The maximum limit of area for which water rental application may be made for lands in private ownership shall be 160 acres of irrigable land for each landowner.

3. Filing of water rental applications. Water rental applications for lands in private ownership must be filed in the office of the Superintendent and such applications may be made on or after the date of this notice. For public land farm units the water rental applications must be made in accordance with the conditions hereinafter stated.

4. Payment for land required. The public lands covered by this notice were formerly a part of the Wind River or Shoshone Indian Reservation, and, in accordance with the Act of March 3, 1905 (33 Stat. 1016), as amended by the Act of March 4, 1921 (41 Stat. 1404), the entryman must pay, in addition to the reclamation charges, one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per acre for said land in the local land office at Cheyenne, Wyoming, of which fifty cents ($0.50) per acre will be payable on the date of entry, and twenty-five cents ($0.25) per acre per year for each of four years thereafter. Failure to make deferred payments when due will render the entry subject to cancellation.

5. Preference rights to ex-service men. Pursuant to the provisions of joint Public Resolution No. 85, 71st Congress, approved June 12, 1930 (46 Stat. 580), and up to and including February 25, 1940, the farm units described in paragraph 1 will be open to entry only by officers, soldiers, sailors, or marines who have served in the Army or Navy of the United States, in any war, military occupation, or military expedition, and have been honorably separated or discharged therefrom or placed in the regular Army or Naval Reserve. The same preference rights are applicable to those citizens of the United States who served with the allied armies during the World War and who were honorably discharged, upon their resumption of citizenship in the United States, provided the service with the allied armies was similar to the service with the Army of the United States for which recognition is granted in the aforesaid Public Resolution No. 85: Provided, however, That they must be qualified to make entry under the homestead laws and also possess the qualifications as to industry, experience, character, and capital required of all applicants under this notice. No entry of any of the farm units described above can be made by any person who is not entitled to a preference right on account of military service until on and after February 26, 1940, as provided in paragraph 17 of this notice.

6. Applicants must be qualified. No entry shall be accepted by the local land office until the applicant therefor has satisfied the examining board appointed for the Riverton Project to consider such matters, that he is possessed of such qualifications (in addition to the qualifications required under the homestead laws) as to industry, experience, character, and capital, as in the opinion of the board are necessary to give reasonable assurance of success by the prospective settler.

7. Requirements as to industry, experience, character and capital. Each applicant must possess good health and have had at least two years' actual experience in farm work and farm practice. He must have at least $2,000 in money free of liability or the equivalent thereof in livestock, farming equipment, or other assets deemed by the examining board to be as useful to the applicant as money, except as otherwise provided in paragraph 9 hereof.

8. Examining Board. An examining board of three members has been appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, to consider the fitness of each applicant to undertake the development and operation of a farm on the Riverton Project. Each applicant, except those described in paragraph 14 (a), must appear in person before the examining board, and the Superintendent, who is the member representing the United States, and who will act as secretary of the board, will notify each applicant by registered mail with return receipt demanded of the period of time set for his appearance and examination. The members of the board will be present at the project office when the opening is being held, and interested applicants, and particularly non-residents, will be examined at such times as it is convenient for them to be present. There must be, of course, some limit of time covering this feature, and the board will fix this limit, and will also announce such other incidental rules as will necessitate one appearance only by each applicant. Careful investigation shall be made to verify the statements and representations made by applicants, to the end that no misunderstanding may prevail, either regarding the applicant's fitness or his appreciation of the problem before him. If requested by the examining board, each applicant will furnish the board a letter, or letters, signed by the applicant addressed to and authorizing banking and other institutions or persons to supply to the board any information it may require regarding the applicant's assets or other qualifications. Refusal of an applicant to furnish such authority, or his failure to do so within a period considered reasonable by the board, shall be sufficient reason for rejecting his application.

9. Determination of relative standing of applicants. The relative standings of the applicants will be based upon a percentage rating with the following maximum weights given to the four prescribed qualifications:

| | Percent |
|---|---|
| Character | 15 |
| Industry | 20 |
| Capital | 30 |
| Farm Experience | 35 |

Applicants will be rated according to the following schedules and no applicants will be considered eligible who fall below the minimum named in any one of the headings of these schedules, or who do not, in the opinion of the board, possess the health and vigor necessary for active farm work:

| | Percent |
|---|---|
| Character: | |
| Fair | [1] 5 |
| Good | 6–10 |
| Excellent | 11–15 |
| Industry: | |
| Fair | [1] 5 |
| Good | 6–10 |
| Excellent | 11–20 |
| Capital: | |
| $2,000 to $2,999 | 27 |
| $3,000 to $3,999 | 28 |
| $4,000 to $4,999 | 29 |
| $5,000 or above | 30 |

[1] Minimum.

Provided, That in the event an applicant does not possess sufficient unencumbered assets for the establishment of an economically sound farming operation upon one of the farm units described in paragraph 1, but he is able within 15 days from the date of his appearance before the examining board for examination, to furnish a certificate or other satisfactory showing that he will be granted a loan by the Farm Security Administration, Department of Agriculture, of an amount of money which will be sufficient, either itself or together with his personal net worth as determined from his original farm application, for the establishment of an economically sound farming operation, the examining board, under authority of the Act of August 7, 1939 (Public No. 307—76th Congress, 1st Session), will reconsider his application for making such change in the applicant's rating on capital as will reflect the additional asset of the loan assured to him by the Farm Security Administration. To enable the Examining board to give a definite rating to each application, in accordance with the scale set forth under "Capital" in this paragraph 9, the exact total amount of any such prospective loan shall be stated in the certificate or other showing presented: Provided, however, That no loan by the Farm Security Administration shall be considered in lieu of the possession by any applicant of equivalent actual assets after June 30, 1940: Provided, further, That where such farm units have or may be improved by means of funds made available by the Farm Security Administration, the Secretary of the Interior, as authorized by the said Act of August 7, 1939, shall require the entryman of any such unit to enter into a mortgage contract with the Farm Security Administration to repay the value of such improvements thereon before entry is allowed.

| Farm experience: | Percent |
|---|---|
| A. In farming other than irrigation: | |
| 2 years, any time | [1] 10 |
| Additional credit of 5% to be allowed for each year in farming other than irrigation for more than 2 years, up to a total of 7 years (10% for 2 years, plus 5% per year up to 5 additional years), or a maximum of | 35 |
| B. In irrigation farming: | |
| 2 years, any time | 15 |
| 2 years, in last 4 years | 20 |
| 2 years, in last 2 years | 25 |
| 3 years, in last 4 years | 30 |
| 3 or more years in responsible charge of irrigation farm in last 4 years | 35 |

[1] Minimum.

In determining the percentages to be given for experience under irrigated farming, the members of the examining board may reduce the percentages from 1 to 5 percent, if, in their judgment, the experience indicated by the applicant as having been gained in other irrigated areas is not of the type that would justify his being rated for farming under the particular conditions on the Riverton Project, at any of the percentages above listed.

10. When, and how to apply for a farm unit. Any person desiring to acquire any of the farm units described in paragraph 1 must, as a first step, secure from the Superintendent, Riverton, Wyoming, or from the Commissioner, Bureau of Reclamation, Washington, D. C., a farm application blank. The blanks will be available on and after the date of this notice, and full answer must be made to each question propounded therein. The farm application must designate in the first paragraph the particular farm desired. If the applicant claims a preference right on account of military service, he shall attach to this application an affidavit setting forth such military service. The affidavit shall state the applicant's time of service, the unit of which he was a member, the date on which he was honorably discharged, or separated, or transferred to the regular Army or Naval Reserve, and that he did not refuse to wear the uniform of such service or to perform the duties thereof. If the applicant claims a preference right on account of military service with the allied armies during the World War, the affidavit should also state, if true, that the service with the allied armies was similar to the service with the Army of the United States for which recognition was granted in the said Public Resolution No. 85. There shall be attached to said affidavit a copy of such honorable discharge or separation from the service, or the order of transfer to the regular Army or Naval Reserve. In the event that the original of an applicant's honorable discharge or of such order of transfer has been lost or otherwise is not readily available for copying purposes, a record of his military service and of his discharge, separation or transfer under the seal of the War Department may be furnished in lieu of the copy of the aforementioned original, and shall be attached to said affidavit.

11. When and where to file the farm application. The farm application with the proof to be furnished by the ex-service man, must be filed with the Superintendent at Riverton, Wyoming, in person, if convenient, or by mail, or otherwise, prior to November 28, 1939, if the applicant desires to qualify under paragraph 12 below. No advantage will accrue to an applicant presenting his application in person rather than by mail, and, if the applicant does not reside at Riverton, Wyoming, his application should be mailed. Farm applications received from ex-service men on and after November 28, 1939 will be noted and filed in the order of their receipt but will not be considered for allocating farm units until all applications received prior to that date, from persons who are entitled to preference under paragraph 5 hereof, have been disposed of in accordance with this notice.

12. Simultaneous filing of farm applications. All applications received prior to November 28, 1939, the date of opening, will be held and treated as simultaneously filed.

13. Preference rights for ex-service men not filing in accordance with Paragraph 12. In order that ex-service men may take advantage of the preference right as provided in paragraph 5 of this notice, in the event that they fail to file prior to November 28, 1939, as set forth in paragraph 12 above, their applications together with the proof to be furnished by them, must be filed in the office of the Superintendent, Riverton, Wyoming, on or prior to February 25, 1940 the day before the date upon which the farm units herein described, except those units for which applications of ex-service men have been accepted, become open to entry by the general public. No advantage will accrue to an applicant presenting his application in person rather than by mail.

14. Showing of applicants and selection thereof. (a) Where the applicant, in the original application which he filed, failed to make a prima facie case—that is, where the applicant (1) does not possess good health; (2) fails to make the necessary showing as to character; (3) fails to make the necessary showing as to industry; (4) fails to make the necessary showing as to citizenship; (5) does not show at least two years' farm experience; (6) does not possess the assets required in paragraph 7; (7) is disqualified because of having already made homestead entry; (8) is the owner of more than 160 acres of land in the United States; (9) has not furnished any or satisfactory evidence of military service; (10) or is otherwise disqualified, the application shall be rejected and the applicant notified thereof by registered mail, with return receipt demanded, and of his right to appeal to the Secretary of the Interior within 10 days from receipt of such notification. All appeals allowed under this Public Notice No. 19 must be filed in the office of the Superintendent at Riverton, Wyoming, and within 10 days from receipt by applicants of rejection notices.

(b) Each applicant who makes a prima facie case and has not been previously examined by the board shall be notified by the board, by registered mail, with return receipt demanded, of the time within which he must appear before it. After such personal examination, and after consideration of the showing made in the application, the board will rate the applicant in accordance with the scale set forth above, and place such rating in red ink, with the initials of each member of the board upon the face of the farm application blank. Should the applicant fail to appear for examination after due notice, his application will receive no further consideration by the board at that time. Should he later appear his application may be considered for any farm then remaining unassigned. The date of receipt of his application shall then be considered as being the day he actually appeared before the board. The rating necessary to establish qualification is the minimum named in Paragraph 9 of this Public Notice No. 19 for each of the requirements as to character, industry, capital and farm experience and the applications of all who fail to attain this minimum shall be rejected and the applicants notified thereof by registered mail, with return receipt demanded, and of their right to appeal to the Secretary of the Interior within 10 days from receipt of such notification. After the expiration of the appeal periods fixed by the above mentioned notices, if any are required, to applicants who failed to make prima facie cases and to those who failed to attain the minimum rating, and in the absence of any pending appeals, the board shall select the 39 applicants having the highest ratings (there being 39 farm units described in paragraph 1 subject to entry). Immediately following the selection of the successful applicants the board shall send a notice by registered mail with return receipt demanded to each of the other applicants below the first 39 in qualification ratings, advising him of his rating, and that since the number of qualified applicants exceeds the number of available farms, his application must be held for rejection. Each applicant whose application is so held may appeal to the Secretary of the Interior within 10 days of receipt of such notice. In the event that any of the 39 applicants with the highest ratings fail to fulfill the requirements of paragraph 15 hereof, the examining board will select other applicants in the order of their qualification ratings to replace those of the selected applicants who failed to complete their filings before the land office. If necessary, the same procedure will be followed until homestead filings have been completed for all of the public land farm units opened to entry by this Public Notice. In the event that the number of qualified applicants is less than the number of available farm units, and also if in such case there are several applications for the same farm unit, the board shall assign a farm unit to each of such applicants. Whenever practicable, the board shall allow the applicants to exercise a choice of farms; and if it is found practicable to do so, the applicants will be given the right of selection, regardless of other applications, in the order of their ratings. The intent of the law is to select the best qualified applicants for the farms available, and the Government reserves the right to assign the farms regardless of individual preferences. Where two or more applicants have received identical ratings a drawing shall be made by the examining board to determine its selections and the order in which the available farms shall be awarded.

15. Notification of applicant that he has been selected. After the expiration of the period or periods fixed by notices to applicants in the contingencies named in paragraph 14 above, or any other that may arise, and upon the completion of action which may become necessary because of such notices, the board shall notify each applicant selected for a farm, by registered mail with return receipt demanded, that he has been selected for a farm unit. With such notice the board will enclose a water rental application for the farm selected which must be executed by the applicant and returned to the Superintendent, Bureau of Reclamation, Riverton, Wyoming, within 10 days from receipt of the notice, together with payment of the minimum water rental charge, as specified in paragraph 22 hereof, before he is entitled to file a homestead application with the local land office to enter the farm unit designated in connection with his selection. Upon the receipt by the Superintendent of the water rental application, executed by the applicant and accompanied by the required payment, before the expiration of the said 10-day period, the secretary of the examining board will furnish each such selected applicant by registered mail, unless delivered to him in person, a certificate stating that his qualifications to enter public lands, as required by subsection C of Section 4 of the Act of December 5, 1924 (43 Stat. 702), have been passed upon and approved by that board. Such certificate, in which the applicant's ratings will also be stated, and a copy of which will be forwarded by the secretary of the board to the local land office immediately upon the issuance thereof, must be attached by the applicant to his homestead application when he files such application at the local land office at Cheyenne, Wyoming. Such homestead application shall be made within 15 days from the date of the receipt by the applicant of the said certificate. Failure to pay the water rental charge or to make application for homestead entry within the periods specified herein will render the application subject to rejection. Entry to any of the public land farm units described in paragraph 1 which are outside the Midvale Irrigation District shall be allowed by the land office only when the applicant shall have executed an appropriate petition for inclusion in the District of the farm unit involved, as required by paragraph 19 of this Public Notice. The project superintendent shall submit to the local land office the petition executed by the applicant or such other showing as that office may require as evidence that this requirement on the part of the applicant has been met.

16. Failure of selected applicant to complete transaction. If the applicant fails to comply with any of the requirements named above the board will select the next highest in qualification rating, and when the list has been exhausted, and if there still remain lands unallotted, the board will consider applications filed thereafter in the order filed, and such applications will otherwise be handled by the board as prescribed in paragraph 14.

17. General entry. On and after February 26, 1940 any farm units described in paragraph 1 above which remain unentered, shall be subject to entry under this notice by any person having the necessary qualifications. Farm applications filed prior to February 26, 1940 by persons who are not ex-service men, and who are not entitled to preference rights under paragraph 5 hereof, will be received and all applications of such persons so received prior to 2:00 p. m. of that date will be held and treated as simultaneously filed and will be considered as having been filed at 2:00 p. m. February 26, 1940. If on February 26, 1940, at 2:00 p. m., the number of applications so filed exceeds the number of farm units available at that time, then the right to make entry for such farm unit shall be determined in accordance with paragraph 14 of this notice, the provisions of which shall continue in effect in a similar manner in the future if the number of applications filed simultaneously exceeds the number of remaining available farm units. Otherwise, applications filed after 2:00 p. m. February 26, 1940 will be considered by the board in the order filed.

18. Warning against unlawful settlement. No person shall be permitted to gain or exercise any right under any settlement or occupation of any of the public lands covered by this notice except under the terms and conditions prescribed by this notice: Provided, however, That this shall not affect any valid existing right obtained by settlement or entry while the land was subject thereto.

19. All land to be included in an irrigation district. Each water rental application in connection with any of the land covered by this Public Notice which is not within the Midvale Irrigation District shall be accompanied either by a petition drawn in compliance with the laws of Wyoming to have such land included within that district, and executed by the applicant, or by evidence satisfactory to the project superintendent that such a petition has already been filed with the Board of Commissioners of the District.

20. Contract with Midvale Irrigation District. A contract was entered into February 12, 1931 between the United States and the Midvale Irrigation District. This contract, a copy of which is available for inspection in the office of the Bureau of Reclamation, Riverton, Wyoming, provides for the levying and collection by the District of assessments for water rental and construction charges and the payment thereof to the United States.

21. Construction charges and water right application under Public Notice. The construction cost shall be paid in accordance with the contract of February 12, 1931 between the United States and the Midvale Irrigation District. However, if required by the Secretary of the Interior, each entryman of a farm unit or owner of other land covered by this Notice No. 19, shall, within three months from the date of a public notice announcing the construction charges against such land, if such a public notice is issued, make a formal water right application covering his farm unit or such other land. Upon failure of the entryman or owner to execute such water right application, the Secretary may, at his option, cancel the entry, together with all rights acquired thereunder, or refuse to deliver further water on a water rental basis, as the case may be.

22. Water rental charges. The minimum water rental charge for the irrigation season of 1940 and thereafter until further notice will be One Dollar and Fifteen Cents ($1.15) per acre for each irrigable acre of land for which application has been or is hereafter made. Such minimum charge, which must be paid in advance and whether water is used or not, will entitle the applicant to two and three-tenths (2.3) acre-feet of water per acre, or so much thereof as may be necessary for beneficial use, for said season. Additional water, if available, will be furnished during the same season at the rate of Fifty Cents ($0.50) per acre-foot, payable on December 1 of the year during which such water is furnished. Provided, That in any case when water rental application is not approved until after June 15 of any year for any of the farm units described in paragraph 1, or until after August 1 for land in private ownership to which water is made available pursuant to this notice, the minimum charge shall apply as a credit on the minimum charge for the irrigation season next following such year, subject, however, to the further proviso that all water actually delivered after those dates during any current irrigation season, and under those conditions, will be charged for at the rate of Fifty Cents ($0.50) per acre-foot, which charge shall be deducted from the minimum water rental charge paid previously for that season and the balance of such minimum charge shall apply as a credit on the minimum charge for the next irrigation season. Each selected applicant for any of the farm units described in paragraph 1 of this notice, shall, as a condition precedent to the filing of homestead application with the local land office, pay the minimum water rental charge prescribed above.

23. Place and manner of payment of water rental charges. All initial water rental charges must be paid at the office of the Bureau of Reclamation at Riverton, Wyoming, by cash or bank draft, cashier's check, certified check, or postal or express money order, payable to the Bureau of Reclamation.

24. Reservation of rights of way for county highways. Rights of way are reserved for county highways along all section lines, such rights of way being 30 feet in width on each side of said section lines.

25. Waiver of mineral rights. All homestead entries for any of the above described farm units will be subject to the laws of the United States governing mineral land and all homestead applicants under this notice must waive the right to the mineral content of the land, if required to do so by the Land Office, otherwise the homestead application will be rejected or the homestead entry cancelled.

OSCAR L. CHAPMAN,
Assistant Secretary.

BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY

PART 27—SOUTHEASTERN REGION: INDIVIDUAL NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGES

ORDER PERMITTING AND REGULATING HUNTING OF CERTAIN MIGRATORY GAME BIRDS WITHIN THE LAKE MATTAMUSKEET WILDLIFE REFUGE, NORTH CAROLINA

§ 27.604 Order permitting and regulating hunting of certain migratory game birds within the Lake Mattamuskeet Wildlife Refuge, North Carolina. Pursuant to section 84 of the act of March 4, 1909, 35 Stat. 1088, as amended by the act of April 15, 1924, 43 Stat. 98, section 10 of the Migratory Bird Conservation Act of February 18, 1929 (45 Stat. 1222), and to the President's Reorganization Plan No. II, promulgated May 9, 1939, in accordance with the Reorganization Act of 1939 (Public No. 19, 76th Congress), and in extension of regulation 9 of the regulations of November 23, 1937,[1] for the administration of national wildlife refuges under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Biological Survey, it is hereby ordered that, until further notice, migratory waterfowl (except those species for which no open season is prescribed by the Migratory Bird Treaty Act Regulations) and coots may be taken within the areas of Lake Mattamuskeet Wildlife Refuge, North Carolina, hereinafter described, and hereby designated "shooting areas," when, in manner, by means, and to the extent not prohibited by either Federal or State law or regulation, and under the following special provisions, conditions, restrictions, and requirements:

(a) Shooting areas. Those areas within the refuge described as follows:

Area No. 1. Starting at the point where Canal No. 5 East intersects East Main Canal; thence south 3°30' east to the refuge boundary; thence westward and southwestward along said boundary to a point approximately 20 chains westward from Station 109; thence north 4° west to Canal No. 1 East; thence north along said canal to a point approximately 145 chains from East Main Canal; thence north 86° east to the place of beginning.

Area No. 2. Starting at the point where Canal No. 1 West intersects West Main Canal; thence south 3°30' east to the refuge boundary; thence westward and northwestward along said boundary to Canal No. 6 West; thence north along said canal to West Main Canal; thence north 86° east to the place of beginning.

(b) Entry upon refuge; firearms. No permit from the officer in charge of the refuge shall be necessary for entry thereupon for the purpose of hunting in compliance with this order, but the having or carrying of firearms on the refuge without permit from the officer in charge, except on highways, thoroughfares, and shooting areas, or routes of travel to and from such areas designated by such officer, or when appropriate to the object for which any special permit may have been issued, will not be permitted. Persons entering or crossing the refuge for the purpose of hunting, as permitted by this order, shall use the established routes of travel and shall not otherwise enter upon the refuge.

(c) Shooting from blinds only. There shall be no shooting on Sunday. On other days during the open season hunters may shoot within either shooting area from a blind only. No blind shall be located within 500 yards of any other blind, or within 200 yards of the inside limits of the shooting area and then only subject to the approval of the refuge manager. The number of blinds, the number of guides, and the number of persons shooting from any blind shall be determined and fixed by the State officer in charge of the shooting areas, and blinds shall be located in the shooting areas as directed by him, subject to the approval of the refuge manager, to the end that the shooting shall be restricted within limits compatible with the preservation of waterfowl and other species of migratory game birds.

(d) Guides. Each person, or party of persons, shooting from a blind in a shooting area of the refuge shall be accompanied by a guide who has been previously designated as such. The designation of qualified guides for service on the refuge shall be made without favor or discrimination, and no person shall be so designated unless he is a citizen of the United States, has had experience in hunting and in handling guns and pushboats, is familiar with the territory comprised within Lake Mattamuskeet Wildlife Refuge, is able to identify and distinguish the various species of migratory waterfowl that resort to said refuge, is familiar with the State and Federal laws governing the hunting of migratory game birds, is in possession of such guide license as may be required by the laws of North Carolina, and is equipped for service as a guide with the essential hunting paraphernalia, including artificial decoys, and he shall comply with the requirements in respect to such equipment as may be prescribed by the State officer in charge, subject to the approval of the refuge manager. No guide shall charge for his services as a guide a fee or other compensation in excess of amounts approved as reasonable by the said officers. A guide shall not hunt any migratory waterfowl or coots on the refuge or be in possession of a gun thereon while employed as a guide, except that he may use the gun of a hunter in his party in an effort to recover any crippled legal game bird without getting into the range of another blind and without leaving the prescribed shooting area. Guides in adjacent blinds must cooperate in recovering cripples, and every reasonable effort must be made by all guides to recover crippled birds. The designation of any person as a guide shall be suspended or canceled by the State officer upon the approval or at the request of the refuge manager upon failure of such guide promptly to report to said State officer any violation of Federal or State laws or regulations of which he has knowledge, committed on said refuge. The State officer shall report promptly all such violations to the refuge manager.

(e) Limitation on hunting methods. No hunter shall use or be in possession of ammunition loaded with slugs or single balls, or with shot larger than Standard No. 2 shot while hunting on the refuge.

(f) State cooperation in management of shooting areas. The provisions of this order shall be incorporated in and be deemed to be a part of any cooperative agreement between the Chief, Bureau of Biological Survey, and the Commissioner of Game and Inland Fisheries of North Carolina for the regulation, management, and operation of shooting areas established hereunder, the details of which shall be mutually agreed upon between said Chief and Commissioner.

The order of the Secretary of Agriculture, H. A. Wallace, dated November 6, 1936, and amendment, dated October 29, 1937, are hereby revoked.

Approved, November 2, 1939.

§ 639.0 Scope and content. After a local housing authority has obtained an earmarking of funds, but before a formal application for financial assistance can be considered, the local authority must have selected a site or sites for its housing project. This Part 639 discusses the problems encountered in site selection and takes into consideration site selection in its relationship to city planning, sectional distribution of housing projects within the city, racial considerations, alternative site possibilities, comparison costs and items to be considered in selecting the site.*† [Introduction]

§ 639.1 Site selection in its relationship to city planning. The problem of site selection should be approached with a full realization of the importance of the relationship of the low-rental housing program to city planning, city building and city rebuilding in the locality concerned. Where such a program is being undertaken with the financial cooperation of the USHA, it must immediately assume more of a long-term aspect than can possibly be assured for the usual type of residential community development. This is apparent because of the policies of the USHA. These policies require that the planning and design of housing projects to which it gives financial assistance shall be such that their useful life shall be at least the term of its loan, which is usually not less than 60 years, with the prospect of a much longer life; and that maintenance including provision for replacements, shall be such that living conditions on the site, insofar as they may be affected by the physical state of the property itself, shall remain unimpaired during this entire period. Permanency as to character is necessarily an idea inherent in any housing plans based upon these policies. In the development of American cities in the past, permanency of character for residential areas has not often been attained. The people who, acting individually, have been responsible for the piecemeal and haphazard building of urban residential areas, have either not given sufficient thought to the idea of permanency of character or have naively invested their money, their efforts and their hopes in the belief that such permanency was assured. There have been expedients applied in the hope of insuring stability of character for at least a reasonably long period for specific residential areas. But they have not been effective in forestalling the apparently inevitable change, which in the vast majority of cases takes the final form of complete deterioration. And the end products of this deterioration are the slums. Among such expedients are deed restrictions of various kinds; but the protection from these is at best transitory and they cannot prevent the creeping mutations in the character of the surrounding community which follow in the footsteps of the passing years. Likewise, the latter-day instrumentality of zoning, essential as it is as a method of protection and stability, cannot be relied upon to hold back, by itself, these inevitable changes. How, then, may there be for a new housing project assurance as to a continuingly satisfactory environment and a proper position in the city structure? There is no infallible formula for the attainment of these ends. But this question leads logically to the main theme of this part of the discussion, which is the essential inseparability of housing planning from city planning. The sad picture of decay and disintegration which almost every city presents should be enough to prove the fact of this inseparability. But the long-term provisions under which housing projects are built with the aid of USHA funds make mandatory the application of this principle. As has been indicated above, the long-term character of housing projects sponsored by the USHA is to be insured, insofar as the property within the boundaries of the project is concerned, through the design and maintenance policies to be followed. But this internal protection must be supplemented by the protection of initial appropriateness of the position of the site within the city structure. The city planning aspect of site location for low-rental housing (and, in fact, for residential development of any type) is double-edged in its implications: first, there is the effect of the location within the city plan upon the future of the housing project; second, the effect of the project's location upon the city plan. The latter is as important as the former—from the standpoint of the broader interests of the city, perhaps more important. City planning implies the visualization of a pattern for the city's structural and functional elements. Among these elements are the system of major highways, the supplementary system of secondary and of local streets; the areas of specialized land use, including areas allotted to industry, commerce, and residence; the system of local passenger transportation facilities, including street car and rapid transit lines, stations for suburban commuters, and existing or possible bus routes; the railroads and railroad facilities, including passenger stations, freight stations, switching yards, repair shops, and the like; the parks and parkways; the cemeteries; the public and parochial schools; the universities and institutions of higher education; the civic and governmental centers; the permanent stadiums, ball parks, athletic fields, race tracks, and fairgrounds; the playgrounds, swimming pools, and minor recreational system; the libraries; the hospitals, medical centers, and correctional institutions; the waterfront facilities; the airports; the major system of utility mains and utility plants, including water supply, gas works, and sanitary sewage disposal; the permanent plant for such municipal services as garbage and refuse disposal and fire protection. These are the elements which form the complex physical structure of a city. The pattern as a whole must necessarily change as time goes on; no American city has reached a static condition in its physical development. But the uncontrolled and unguided changes to which our cities have been subject in the past have left a trail of heart-breaking economic and aesthetic loss; and the resulting burden of inconvenience and economic hardship must be borne not only by the present generation but by generations to come. It is the object of city planning to reduce to a minimum this loss and burden through a rational guidance and control of these inevitable changes in the community's structure. It is obvious that the housing program must be properly fitted into this city pattern, both existing and as projected into the future. Its relationship to all of these constituent elements must be considered. Among the items of most vital importance to housing projects for low-income families, however, is assurance of the continuance of ample opportunities for employment within reasonable distances. The relationship of the site, not only to industrial areas and other fields of employment, but also to the transportation system is therefore very important. The local authority should take into account any trends affecting employment opportunities such, for example, as the tendency of industries to move to the suburbs along certain favored lines of transportation. Reference will be made in other sections of this Part to numerous other items which should be considered during the process of site selection; some of these are inherently associated with city planning. The local authority then, with a full realization of the importance of the relationship between the task with which it is charged and the broader phases of city planning and regional planning, is confronted with the problem of bringing into play such planning instrumentalities as may be available. If there is an active and technically competent city planning commission, so much the better. Its advice and, if possible, its services should be enlisted. But the local authority, must itself do sufficient city planning to insure the proper integration of its program with the city structure, particularly if the local planning body is not active or technically competent. In such case, it will do well to stimulate the interest of the local planning body and to encourage it to improve its technical competence. Where no planning agency whatever exists in the community, there is a wonderful opportunity for a group so strategically placed as a local authority to take the lead in bringing into being an effective movement to establish city and regional planning as an active and permanent force in its locality. Because of the fact that housing and city planning are so closely inter-related, such promotional activity is certainly a legitimate interest of a local authority. If there is an active city or county planning commission, the local authority should endeavor to obtain from it definite and official approval for its selection of sites. The timing of the announcement of such approval may be subject, sometimes, to the question of expediency as to when the selection should be made public. Even in communities where the local planning body is not active, or where there is doubt as to its technical competency, the local authority will strengthen its position and lessen the danger of future attack upon its choice of sites by bringing the official planning agency into its deliberations. In the city planning aspects of its work, as well as in all other aspects, whether technical, legal, social, economic or financial, the advice and services of the USHA are available to the local authority to the extent to which it may wish to make use of them.

(a) Zoning. An adjunct and instrumentality of city planning is zoning. As has been indicated above, the mere zoning of the project or its immediate neighborhood, without relation to the more permanent elements of city planning and without integration with a broad plan of city-wide zoning, can be by itself little more than a temporary protection. Even so, such zoning protection as may be available is necessary for each housing project. The protection of the site through proper zoning should be considered one of the essentials. Not only should the surrounding areas be so zoned as to insure continued protection for the project, but the site itself must be appropriately zoned for the type of structures which are to be built upon it. Where there is not an adequate plan of zoning in the community, adequately enforced, there is the opportunity for the local authority, as in the field of city planning discussed above, to take the leadership in promoting an effective zoning program by sponsoring a comprehensive zoning ordinance. Rezoning of adjacent areas for the protection of the project is frequently a requirement written into the contract under which the USHA extends financial assistance to the local authority. Rezoning is sometimes difficult to bring about, as is also the elimination of objectionable nonconforming uses under existing zoning. The matter of zoning technique and zoning procedure, including the legal problems involved in the establishment of zoning, is frequently outside of the experience of the local authority. A separate Part of this series will deal with this subject. On all matters related to zoning protection for housing projects there is available to the local authorities the advice of the special city planning consultants of the USHA, as well as of its legal and project planning advisers.

(b) Preliminary determination of minimum size of site required. Before beginning its search for a site the local authority should have determined, at least in a general way, the principal characteristics and the approximate size and racial composition of the market for the type of housing which it is proposed to build, and from this information a tentative determination should have been made of the number of residence units which are to be constructed. The services of the USHA advisers, and particularly of its Research Division, are available in this essential preliminary investigation. If the conditions in a given locality call for special consideration of major racial elements in the market and if the needs, customs and preferences of racial groups should properly enter into the question of site selection and occupancy assignment, it would be well to have, at this point, a fairly well-defined idea as to the distribution of the total number of units to be built among the racial groups which are to be served. Racial policy in its relationship to site selection is discussed in section 639.3 of this Part. Although the number of units to be built will influence the question of the amount of ground which must be obtained and will establish a minimum limit to the size of the buildable area of the site, this factor will not necessarily fix the maximum size of the site. The advisability in a given case of obtaining presently land for future enlargement of the project will be influenced by the availability and the cheapness of additional suitable land. In certain cases the purchase of more land than may ever be needed for the housing project itself may be desirable for purposes of protection to the project, provided that the cost is not too great. There are many cases, particularly in the more congested cities, where there is no single site available at a reasonable cost which is large enough, without overcrowding, for the number of units which it may be desired to build on a single site in the city as a whole or in an approximately defined section of the city. In such cases study should be given to the possibility of dividing the desired number of units among more than one site, and sites which fulfill the requirements of the project in respects other than size should be sought; but the reduced number of units to be built on any site must not be below the minimum necessary for operating efficiency.

(c) Size of site in relation to site density. Although the foregoing discussion of the influence of the number of units on the size of the site suggests an aspect of the site selection problem which the local authority should have in mind when it begins the search for sites, actual experience shows that among projects which have been approved by the USHA there has been the widest variation in the relationship of the size of site to the number of units. The average condition as to density for a group of 72 of the sites which have been approved is 21 units per net acre. (Net acreage is the area of the developed portion of the site after public thoroughfares have been deducted.) Certain projects with exceptionally high densities, such as those in New York City and Boston, are not included in this group. The range of density in this group of 72 sites is from 39.8 to 5.4 units per net acre. The median figure for this group is 19.7 units per net acre. The principal significance of these figures is that they show the wide range of density and indicate that there can be no rule of thumb whereby the size of the site required for a given number of units can be figured with satisfactory exactitude. The existence of this wide range shows that a large degree of individuality has been used in site planning and the provision of open spaces, recreation areas, and types of dwelling and non-dwelling buildings. The density will be influenced materially by the type of structures which are built. During the development of the plans, but not necessarily at the time of site selection, there must be a decision as to the dwelling types or combination of types. These types may be apartment buildings, either of the walk-up kind or of the multi-story elevator kind, one-story or two-story row houses, flats, "twin" houses, or single detached houses. It is obvious that site density which may be appropriate for one type of housing may not be appropriate for some other type. The fundamental consideration is that density must not be so great as to jeopardize the admittance of sunlight and air, privacy, and other amenities of living for the tenants, or as to be inconsistent with the characteristics of the community and the neighborhood in which the project is located. In considering site density and the most desirable types of buildings, the objective of the USHA-Aided program, namely, the building of housing for the lowest income groups, should always be kept in mind. Enthusiasm for the ideal must be restrained and solutions adopted which, while fulfilling the requirements of good housing for the lowest income groups, are nevertheless within the limits imposed by the necessity of careful economy both in first cost and in subsequent operating cost. Under ordinary conditions a decrease in density will increase the cost per unit for land, utilities and site improvements, and, in most cases, the cost of operation thereafter. This is one of the considerations which has caused the widespread adoption of the row house plan of development, frequently in cases where it was the original desire of the local authority to fulfill the ideal of the detached house on an individual lot. Although the economic factors of site density must be carefully considered, there are other factors for the influencing of density and the type of buildings which must not be neglected. Among these are the geographical location of the city, which influence its climate and the habitation customs of its inhabitants, the size of the city, and the location of the site in the city in its relationship to existing densities or densities which may be contemplated by an established city plan or zoning plan. The details of the site plan will finally determine the density. The principles of site planning are discussed in Part 635. In the matter of appropriate densities, as in other problems of the local housing program, the advice of the local city planning body should be sought at the very beginning of the search for possible sites.*† [Par. I]

§ 639.2 Sectional distribution of housing projects within the city. In many cases the total market as determined for the community as a whole should not be the sole basis for the determination of the number of units for which a site must be selected. Sectional influences within the community may tend to prevent freedom of movement of families from one part of the community to another. The total market may be divided into geographic segments, between which there may be but little hope of interchange of families. Such sectionalization of the market may result from the existence of various employment concentration points, together with transportation difficulties and distance or topographic barriers; or from a determined preference of special groups, racial or otherwise, for certain sections of the community in which they have long been established. The question of site selection, as affected by the number of units to be built, should therefore be studied in its relationship to the geographical distribution of the total market, insofar as such distribution may be considered as being set in a somewhat permanent pattern.*† [Par. II]
